spome the jucompast work so fully kno both the Poles of Heaven at once didva are Silent Sun & Stars Will care gifter their Fellow-Traveller

THE

English Her

OR,

Sir Fran. Drake Reviv'd.

mirable Adventures, Notable Discoveries, and Magnanimous Archievements of that Valiant and Renowned Commander.

- I. His Voyage in 1572, to Nombre de Dios in the West Indies, where they saw a Pile of Bars of Silver near seventy foot long, ten soot broad, and ewelve foot high.
- He incompassing the whole World in 1577, which he perform'd in two years and ten months, gaining a vast quantity of Gold and Silver.
- III. His Poyage into America in 1585, and taking the Towns of St. Fago, St. Domingo, Carthagena and St. Augustine. Also his Worthy Actions, when Vice Admiral of England in the Spanish Invasion, 1588.

IV. His last Voyage into those Countries in 1595, with the manner of his Death and Burial.

Recommended to the Imitation of all Heroick Spirits.

Marcel reduced into Chapters with Contents, and beauti-

By R. B.

The Fifth Edition Inlarged.

DON, Printed for Nath. Grouch at the Bell in the Poultrey ver Cheapside, 1898.

TO THE # READER.

Ver since Almighty God commanded Adam to subdue the Earth, there I have not wanted Heroick Spirits in all Ages who have adventured their Estates and Persons to make new Discoveries of the unknown Parts of the World, and many bave industriously indeavoured to find out the true Circuit thereof, some striving to effect it by Mathematical Conclusions and School demonstrations; Others with much more certainty have added their own Experience and Travels thereto; all whom deserved much commendation in their several times. For if he who surveys only some few Mannors or Lordships shall be thought worthy of some reward both for his Pains and Skill, how much more are the Travels of those Famous Worthies to be Eternized who have bestowed their Studies and Labours in measuring out and incompassing this almost immensurable Globe. Neither is this Question valuable here, which is of Force in Private Possessions; Whose Land do you survey? Since the vast Oceans the Lord's alone, and is by him left free, as sufficient for the use, and large enough for the Industry of all men.

Among these gallant Adventurers, none is more renowned, than our present Hero Sin Francis Drake, who may be a Pattern to sti up all Heroick and Active Spirits in thele days to benefit their Prince and Country, and immortalize their Names by the like noble Attempts, who by first turning up a furrow about the whole World, bath exceeded all that went before him. Of whose Worthy Travels and Exploits there baving not hitherto been published any just or exact Account; I have Collected all I could any where meet with upon this Excellent Subject, and reduced it into the present Method, to make it the more useful and acceptable to my Countrymen, whom as I have oft beretofore endeavoured to oblige by the like pleafant, and I bope not unprofitable Diversions, I shall still continue the lame according to my Ability and Power.

R. B.

THE

THE

Voyages and Adventures

OF

Sir FRANCIS DRAKE:

CHAP: I.

His Birth and Education. His Losses by the Spaniard. His making two Voyages into the West-Indies for Discovery. His Voyage in 1572. to Nombre de Dios, and surprizing it with only fifty two Men, where they had a view of a Pile of Bars of Silver seventy Foot in length, ten Foot broad, and twelve Foot high.

His Famous Sea-Captain and our present
Hero, one of the first who put a Sea Girdle, as it were, about the World, was Born near South Tavestock in Devonshire, and had his Name given him by Sir Francis Russel after Earl of Bedford, his Godfather; He was brought up in Kent, his Father being a Minister, who for fear of the six Articles in the Reign of Henry the 8th, was forced to secure himself in the Hull of a Ship, where he had divers of his younger Sons, having twelve in all, who being most of them Born on the Water, for the greatest part died at Sea, the young est only dying at home, whose Posterity still inherit what was gallantly, though dangerousty gained by out Sir Francis their elder Brother. After the death of King Henry, 8 his Father got a place to read Prayers in the Royal Navy and bound his Son Francis an Apprentice to a Ship Master, who traded to France and Holland with whom he, endured much hardship, and was thereby sitted to suffer the Fatigues and Labours of the Sea.

His Mafter dying, bequeathed him his Bark, with which he for forme time followed his Mafters Profes fion; and thereby gained confiderably; But the Nar-Tow Seas being not large enough for his aspiring mind he fold his Bark, and in 1565 and 1566 engaged with Capt. Lovel and others, in a Voyage to the West Indies, and received much wrong from the Spaniards at Rio de Hacha; yet the very next year Capt. John Hawkins making preparations for a Voyage into those Parts he accompanied him to St. John de Ullua in the Bay of Mexico, where by the Treachery of Don Martin Henrique their Vice-Roy he lost all his Goods, and several of his Kinsmen and Friends, himself hardly escaping with his Life: This so exasperated Drake that he vowed the Spaniards should pay him with adyantage, and to make good his word, having served for some time in one of Queen Elizabeth's Ships to his great Advantage, and finding he could procure noRedress from the King of Spain for his Losser; though the Queen had sent Letters thither upon that account, it raised such indignation in his Breast, that he resolved to use all possible endeavours to recover the damages he had suffained; in pursuance whereof, he made two feveral Voyages into America to gain Intelligence, first with two Shrps the Dragon and Swan in 1570 and the next year in the Swan alone, whereby having obtained certain Notice of the Persons and Places be aimed at, he fully refolved on a third Voyage.

the

ng.

ent

OUL

1 of

s in

IDd

ind

RIS

ith

cf

ar.

nd

ich

In-

at hn

ofe

he

11-nd

lly

ke

d.

ed

715

Pursuant thereto May 24. 1572. being White Eve. Drake in the Paicha of Plymouth of feventy Tuns, and his Brother John Drake in the Swan of twenty five Tuns, having in both Ships seventy three men & Boys all Volunteers, well provided with Victuals for a year. with all other Ammunition and Provision for Men of War, and three handsome Pinnaces raken afunder. & flowed aboard to be fet together upon occasion, they failed out of the Sound of Plymouth for Nombre de Dios in the West-Indies. June 2. They had fight of the Maderas, and Canary Islands, and made no flay rill they came in view of Guadalupe an high Island in the West-June 29, entring between this place and Dominica, they espied two Capoes a fishing about three Leagues off, then lauding on the South of Dominica in one of the Rivers that fall from the Mountains they staid three days to refresh their men, and saw divers poor Cottages of Palmetto. Boughs and Brenches, but no People appeared, they feeming not to be fetled habirations, but only used during their fishing July 1. they failed thence toward the Main Land of America. and faw the high Land of Sancta Martha, from whence they directed their course to Port Pheasant, so nam'd by Drake in his former Voyage for the multitude of those Fowls they there met with. Being arrived they hardly knew the place again it was so overgrown with Wood and Grass, though the year before they had made made my ways and paths therein.

At the entrance into the Bay, Admiral Drake intended to have gone alhoar with only a few in his company fince he knew that no Spaniards dwelt within thirry five miles of the place, that is at Tolou Eaftward, and Nombre de Dios to the West; when rowing toward the shore he saw a smoak in the Woods, near the place where he had frequented last year, and therefore taking more strength, with Guns and other Weapons, support of the same and example of the same strength of the same should example that the same should example that the same should example the same should be same should formerly with Drake in that Voyage, he had left a Plate of Lead fastned to a very great Tree, which four men could not fathom, on which were these words,

Captain Drake if you forrune to come to this Port make hafte away; For the Spaniards which you had

here with you the last year have betray'd this Place, and taken away all that you lest here; I departed from hence this present 7. of July, 1572. Your very Loving Friend John Garret.

The Smoke they saw was from a Fire made by Garret at his departure in a great Tree, which had conrinued burning at least five days before their Arrival Notwithstanding this warning, Drake resolved to build his Pinnaces in this convenient Port; Which they finished in seven days, by the help of some large Trees growing there near forty yards about, being white and as heavy as Brafil wood; There came into the same Bay an English Bark of the Isle of Wight, James Rawse Capt. with thirty men, some of whom thad been there with Drake the year before; They brought in a Spanish Carvel or Advice Boat bound for Nombre de Dios, and a shallop with Oars taken at Cape Blank, and being acquainted with Drake's de. fign, they joined with him therein. July 22. They sailed out of this Harbour for Nombre De Dios, and coming in three days to the Isle of Pines took 2 Frigats laden with Plank and Timber from Nombre de Dios; The Negro's aboard informed them of the prefent State of the Town, and that some Souldiers were daily expected from the Governour of Panama to defend it against the Symerons, a black People who about eighty years past sled from the cruelty of their Masters the Spaniards, and grew fince into a Nation under two Kings of their own, one inhabiting West ward, and the other East, in the way from Nombre de Dios to Panama, who had almost surprized the Town fix weeks before. Capt. Drake resolving not to hard these Negroes, set them ashoar on the Main Land, that if they would, they might join themselves to the Syme fons their Countrymen, and thereby gain their liberty, or if not, yet the way being long and troublesome by land to Nombre de Dios, they might not give notice to them of his arrival, whom he intended to surprize with the utmost speed and secrecy.

Leaving then his three Ships and the Carvel with Capt. Rawse, and putting fifty three men with Targets, Pikes, Fire Pikes, Mulkers, Bows and Drums into his four Pinnaces, he parted from his Company and in five Days landed in the Island Carivaas, about twenty fiveLeagues diffant, and having muftred and armed his men betimes in the morning, he exhorted them to be valiant and couragious, representing to them the greatness of the Booty, the weakness of the Town, & the hope of prevailing and recompencing the wrongs; he had received, especially fince he was accompanied with many of as much resolution as himself, & at such a time as they were very likely to be undiscovered; In the afternoon they again fet Sail for Nombre de Dios, and in the evening reacht the River Francisco, and lay close to the Shore all day to prevent discovery from the Watch houses; In the night they rowed hard till they came into the Harbour under the High land, refolving after they were refreshr, to attempt the Town next morning by break of day; but Cap. Drake observing that his men from the report of the Negroesfeemed to apprehend the danger of this attempt because of the greatness and strength of the Town, to prevent their fears, he took theopportunity of therifing of the Moon that night, perswading them that it was the dawning of the day, whereby they came to the Town above an hour sooner than was at first proposed; which was about three in the morning, when it happened that a Ship of fixty Tuns, lately arrived from pain with Canary Wines and other goods came info to the Bay, having not yet furled her Sails, who Wing the Pinnaces so well manned and Ogred, fent Gondelo to give notice to the Town; which Drake receiving, got between her and the Town, foremet

0 à

the least resistance, sinding only one Gunner upon the Fort, with six great brass Guns on Carriages, and some whole and Demy Culverin, which they instantly dismounted; The Gunuer sted and gave the Town the alarm, who were usually upon the Guard, by reason of the disturbances the Symerons often gave them, as the English now perceived by the cries of the People the Ringing out of the great Bell, and Drums beat up and down the Town.

Capt. Drake leaving twelve of his men to keep the Pinnaces and secure their retreat, and having firengthened the Fort, went with the rest to view the Town. and especially a Mount where he was the year before informed some Ordnance were defigned to have been planted, which might fcowr round about the Town; but upon his Arrival there was never a Gun, only the place seemed prepared for that purpose. He then commanded his Brother and JohnOxenam with fixteen of his Company to go above the King's Treasure house and enter near the East end of the Market place, himfelf with the reft defigning to march up the broadfireer, with Trumpets founding and Drums beating to the Market place, the Fire Pikes being divided between both Companies, which no less affrighted the Enemy than they gave light to the English, who thereby discovered every place as if it had been broad day. The Inhabitants were amazed at fo ffrange a fight, imagining them far stronger than they were, by hearing their Drums and Trumpets at several places at once, ver the Souldiers and fome of the Townsmen got together in Arms at the Market place, by the Governor's House near the gate of the Town, either to shew their valour in his presence, or from thence to make their escape to Panama, which was the ready way thither. And to make thew of greater numbers of thor, or elfe from a Custom they had whereby to terrifie the Symerons; they hung lines with marches lighted crofs the end of the Market place, as if there had been a Company of Musqueteers, whereas the ywere only two or three, that made these lines move and dance, who all fled when they perceived themselves discovered; But the Souldiers and their affistants gave them a hot Volley of shot, which came full upon them as they marched up the Street, shooting so very low that their Bullets oft grazed on the Sands; The Finglish having discharged their first Volley of Shot & Arrows which were made light on purpose for Service, they came to push a Pike, wherein the Fire Pikes, Pikes, and short Weapons, with the But-ends of their Musquets, were very serviceable, and made the Spaniards retreat, when the Captains Brother arriving at the same instant,

g

the Enemy threw down their Arms and fied all out of Town by the aforesaid Gate, which was made to se-retreat to the flying Spaniards, who being pursued, many of the English were wounded by the Weapons of the Enemythan lay cross their way.

Being returned they made a stand in the midst of the Market place, Drake lending some from thence to stop the Alarm-Bell, which continued Ringing all this while; but the Church being firing built and firmly Lockt and Bolted, they could not get in without firing it, which the Capt, absolutely forbid; Mean time two or three Spaniards being taken in the flight, commanded to direct them to the Governor's House, where usually all the Mules who brought the King's Treasure from Panama were unladen, though the Silver only was kept there, the Gold, Pearl, and Jewels when entred by the King's Officer, being carried from thence to the Treasury hard by, which was very Brougly built of Lime and Stone for securing it; Coming to the Governour's, they found the great door where the Mules unload just opened, a Candle lighted on the Stairs, and a very fine Spanish Horse ready sadled either for the Governour or some of his Family, By means of this Light, they saw a vast heap of Silver in the lower Room, confifting of Bars of Silver piled up against the Wall 70 foot in length, 10 in breadth, and twelve in height, each Bar between thirty five and forty pound weight. At fight hereof Capt. Drake gave firic charge none should touch a Bar of it, but stand upon their guard, the Town being full of people and there being in the King's Treasury near rhe Water fide more Gold and Jewels than the four Pinnaces could carry, which he told them they should instantly attempt to break open, notwithstanding the report the Spaniards gave of the firength thereof.

Returning back to the Market place, news came their Pinnaces were in danger to be seized by the Souldiers of Townsmen, of which they had intelligence by one Diego a Negro, who during the skirmish came to the Pinnaces and inquired whether they belonged to Capt.

tl

ſc

1

Capt. Drake, and thereupon defired to be taken aboard, which was done though he had several shot made at him from the shoar; By him they had notice that about eight days before their arrival the King had fent thither an hundred and fifty Souldiers to secure the Town against the Symerons, which was likewise full of other People; this was the rather believed as agreeing with the report of the Negroes taken formerly at the Isle of Pines; Drake therefore sent his Brother and John Oxenham to discover the Truth, who found the men aboard the Pinnaces much frighted with the great Troops they faw running about with lighted Matches, and Weapons crying, 'Que gente? que gente? Of what Nation are they? What Countrey men are they? Who not having been at the confict at the Marker-House, but coming thither from the furthest parts of the Town; ( which was as large as Plymouth in England) came many times near them, & finding they were English, discharged their Guns at them and ran awuy. After this fell a terrible fform of Rain, Thunder and Lightning with fuch violence, as usually happens in those Countries, that before they could shelter themselves under the Treasure house some of their Bow Strings, Match and Powder were wet, and caused much diffurbance, which Drake perceiving, told them, 'That he had brought them to the mouth of the Treasure of the World, which if they did not now gain, none but themselves were to be blamed; After this, the storm having continued near an hour, ceasing, to prevent the fears of his men, and the preparations of the Enemy, he commanded his Brother with John Oxenham and their Company to break open the Treasure house, and the rest to follow him to the Market place till they had finished the buffness they came about. As Drake stept forward, his Strength, Sight and Speech failed him, and began he to fant for want of Blood, which he then perceived had iffued in great quantity from a wound in his Leg in the first encounter, and which he hitherto had con-Cealed left he should discourage his Company or tempt them to for lake him, many having already got confiderable booty; He loft fo much blood filling his very footsteps on the Sands therewith, that his men were much troubled, not thinking it possible he could live after so great an evacuation, giving him therefore fomewhat to drink which recovered his Spirits, they bound up his wound with his Scarf, and persuaded him to go aboard for his recovery, which he absolutely, refused, doubting whether ever he should have the like opportunity, so that joining force and intreaties together, they carried him into the Pinnace, and the whole Company being imbarqued by break of day July 19. many of their men, besides Drake, being wounded, though only a Trumpeter flain, they refolved to be gone, taking the Spanish Ship of Wines along with them for relieving their Capt, and themfelves yet before they got out of the Harbour; the Townsmen remounting one of their great Guns shot at them, but without damage, so that they carried off their prize to an Island two Leagues thence, called the Isle of Victuals, where they staid two days to cure their-wounded men, and refresh themselves in the Gardens they found there, abounding with all forts of Roots, Fruits, Poultrey, and other Fowls no less ffrange than delicate.

Soon after their Arrival, a Gentleman who belonged to the Garison lately sent to the Town came to them, protesting the intent of his coming was only to see and admire the courage of those who with so small. Forces had made so great and incredible an attempt, that at first they seared they had been French, but perceiving them by their Arrows to be English, their sears were abated, since they were satisfied that the they took their Treasures, yet they would use no cruelty to their Persons; but though this Gallant pretended his Visit was only to honour their Virtues, yet they were after satisfied, that he came directly by the Governor's command to discover whether their Cap-

C

C

y i

d

y.

C

:5

IC.

y

1-

C

at

B

10 re

10 ts

S

g-

OJ

to.

ıll.

t,

ut

ir

10'

on

ect

he

P-.

ua.

tain were the same Drake who had been the two last years on their Coasts, whom the Townsmen affirmed they knew very well, and who had always used them kindly; and because many of the Spaniards were wounded wish Arrows, he defired to know whether the English had poisoned them, and how they might be cured; laftly what Provisions they wanted, the Governor promiting to supply them to the urmost of his power; the Captain though he judged this Souldier only a Spy, yet treated him civilly, and returned this answer to his demand; 'That he was the same Drake whom they meant, that it was never his cuftom to poylon Arrows, that their wounds might be cured with ordinary remedies, that the Island they were upon was sufficient to supply all his necessities, and that he only wanted some of that excellent commodity of Gold and Silver which that Country yielded, for the "use of himself and his Company; He therefore advised the Governor to look about him, declaringthat by the help of God he was resolved before his departure to reap some of that golden Harvest which they got out of the Earth, and fent into Spain to trouble all the Earth.

To this unexpected answer the Gentleman replied. Pray Sir may I without offence, alk what was the cause of your leaving the Town now, where there was above three hundred & threescore Tun of Silver, ready for the Fleet, and a much greater quantity of Gold locke up in Chefts in the King's Treasury? The Captain giving him a true account of his unfortunate wound and unwilling retreat aboard, the Spaniard acknowledged they had no less reason in departing than courage in attempting, and that it was more necessary for the Town to provide for their own defence, than to fet out any Ships to offend the English; After this he was dismift with gifts from the Captain, to make his report to the Governor, protesting he bever recelved fo much honour from any Person in his Life. The Negro aforementioned confirmed all that the Spa related of the vast Treasures in the Town, adding, That they might have Gold and Silver enough if they would make nie of the Symerons, and that he would venture with them, if the Capt, would undertake his Protection, fince they hated him for betraying several of them into the hands of their Mafters, and that he knew they had a great respect for the Name and Valour of Captain Diake; Hereupon they resolved to leave that Island as neither safe nor healthy, and the next night arrived at the Ifle of Pines or Port Plenty, where they had left their Ships, from whence Drake sent his Brother and Ellis Hixon to the Wellward, to search the River Chagro where he had been the year before, and defigned a further discovery fince it ran Southward within fix Leagues of Panama near a little Town called Venta Cruz, whence all the Treasure usually brought by Mules from Panama was shipt down this River into the North Sea, the tyde not running up far into the land, so that it requires three days to go up against the Stream.

F

n

1

When they came to their Ships Aug 1. Captain Rawle despairing of the hoped for success, and their security on those Coasts, being now discovered, was upon his desire freely dismist; after the return of the Pinnaces from fearthing the River Chagro, the rest continuing in the Isle about fix days, when it was concluded that Drake with his two Ships and three Pinnaces should fail to Carthagena, which they did in fix days, the calms they met with much hindring their speed, attempting nothing by the way neither at Tolou nor elsewhere. Aug. 13. their two Ships anchored between the Islands of Caresha and Sc. Bernards, the Capt bringing the Pinuaces about into the Harbour of Carthagona, where at the entrance he found a Ship ar anchor with only one old man aboard, who upon demand answered, 'That the rest of his Company were gone ashoar in a Gondelo that Evening to fight about a, young Lady; and freely told them. That about two hours before night a Pinnace failed swiftly by with Oars, inquiring whether any French or English had been lately there, and being answered none, they bid them look to themselves, and that within an hour after this Pinnace was come to the further fide of Carthagena, many great Guns were discharged, whereupon one going to the top Mast espied several Ships and Vessels coming into the Caftle; This report the Captain credited, fince themelves had heard the Ordnance and perceived they were now fully discovered, yet having notice by this old Martiner, that a great Spanish ship newly unladen lay in the next Point, bound next morning for St. Domingo in Hispaniola, they took him aboard their Pinnace to verifie his information, and coming new the faid Ship they askt whence they came, the English replied, from Nombre de Dios, whereupon they abused and railed at them, who difregarding their words inflantly boarded her, tho' with some difficulty by reafon of her height, the being 240 Tun; Having entred. the Deck, the Spaniards perceiving they had taken possession, got all into Hold with their Arms, except two youths; when finding no danger from the Enemy, they towed the Ship without the Island into the Sound, just before the Town, tho' out of reach of their great Guns.

Mean while the Town having intelligence hereof by their Watch, took the Alarm, rung out their Bells, and shot cff about thirty Cannon, and divers Horse and Foot came down to the very Point of the Wood to prevent their going out of the Sound; next Morning the English took two Vessels, wherein were two who called themselves the King's Scrivanoes, one of Carthagena the other of Veragua, with seven Mariners and two Negroes, who came from Nombre de Dios, bound for Carthagena, with double Letters of Advice to certific them; 'That Captain Drake had been at Nombre de Dios, and had probably taken and plundred it, if he had not been prevented with some blessed Shot, and that he being still on the

Coatt,

Coaft, they should carefully provide for their score ty; The Captain bringing all his Fleet together, the earnest intreaty of the Scrivanoes, set them and their Company ashore, and failed thence 3 League off the Town, where they found store of Fish to re fresh them; and Drake considering he was now disco vered in two of the chief places on the Coast, yet no intending to leave it till he had found the Symeron and performed his Voyage which would require time and the well manning of his Pinnaces, he resolved in burn one of his Ships, and make the other a store house thereby to strengthen the Pinnaces; but knowing his Company would hardly consent, the Ships being both Sailers and well provided, he resolved to use Policy, and sending for Thomas Moon, Carpenter in the Swan, took him into his Cabin, and charged him to conceal for some time a piece of service, which he must needs do him aboard his own Ship, which was in the middle of the second Watch, to go privately down into the Well of the Ship and boar three holes at near the Keel as possible, laying tomewhat against it to prevent the Noise of the Water entring in; Moor was aftonishe to hear him propose the Loss of so good a Ship, which was his own, new, strong, & in which he himself had before made 2 rich and gainful Voyage, alledging, if his Brother, the Malter or any of the Sailors should know of such a Fact, they would certainly kill him. But the Captain satisfying him of the necessity of it, and affuring him of secrefie till they should all be glad of it, he undertook and performed it accordingly.

Next morning Aug. 15. Drake going early a fishing in his Pinnace, and falling aboard the Swan, calls for his Brother to go with him, who rifing hastily, replied, he would instantly follow or attend him if he pleased to stay; The Captain perceiving the business done would not hasten him, but rowing away, carelessly demanded of them, 'Why their Ship was so deep in the 'Water? Upon which his Brother sent to the Stew

arl

and ud

re co

DO

OU

ne,

to 山山

Oth

20.

in 1111

he

s in

WI

4 tit

BOO

od

he

CI,

he

-12

he

er

ed

ng

715

de

ed

DC

C+

ard to know whether there were any Water in her or what might be the cause, the Steward stepping hastily down, suddenly his usual scottle was wet up to the wast, and getting up again with much affright, cried out, the Ship was full of Water; There was no need of hallning them, some went to pump, and others to learch for the Leak, which the Master observing, 10flantly followed his Brother, certifying him of the firange accident befallen them at night. that whereas they had not pumpt in fix weeks before, they had now fix foot water in hold, and therefore defired to be excused from fishing to search and remedy the Leak; and the Captain offering his affiftance, his Brother answered they had men enough aboard, defiring him to continue his fishing, that they might have part thereof for dinner; His Brother returning, found the Company had taken much pains, but had freed the Water very little, yet having much Love to the Ship (as Drake forefaw) they used their utmost diligence till three in the Afternoon, when perceiving that tho' they had affiftance from the Captains ship yet they were not able to free above one foot and half of Water and were very unlikely to find the Leak, they were much discouraged, and defired Drakes advice how to remedy it: who thereupon persuaded them to take their Goods out ofher, and then fet her afire, to prevent her falling into the Enemies hands, that himself would fail in the Pinnace, till he could provide some handsom Frigor, and his Brother should be Captain of the Admiral together with the Mafter; This Advice seemed strange at first, yet was instantly put in execution that Night, Drake having his defire, and Men enough now to strengthen his Pionaces.

The next day Aug. 16. they resolved to seek out a place in the Sound of Darien to leave their Ship at Anchor safe and undiscovered, that the Enemy might judge them quite gone from the Coast, and mean while to prosecute their design with the Pinnaces. Drake going with two to the River Grand, and fire

Brother taking the third to find out the Symerons; in pursuance bereof, they in five days privately recovered the Sound, where the Captain imployed them to clear a spacious plat of ground from Trees and Buffies, to build Houses large enough for their Lodgings, and one particularly for their publick Assembling wherein the Negro well acquainted with the Country and Buildings did them much service, the rest of the Company recreating themsslves with Shooting at Butts, Bowls, Quoits, Nine-Pins, or what they pleased; half of them working one day and the rest the next, and likewise in providing fresh Victuals of Fish, Fowl, Hop Deer, Rabbits and the like, whereof there was great plenty; The Smiths here fet up their Forge with all necessaries brought from England, which did them much service: Having continued here fifteen days to filence the Noise of their discovery, Drake leaving his Ship with his Brother, went Sept. 8. with two Pinnaces for the River Grand as was formerly concluded on, and passing by surthagena out of fight, and coming within two Leagues of the River they landed on the Main Land Westward, and saw much Caule, and finding some Indians, who kindly demanded, What they wanted, they defired tresh Viduals, which the Indians presently surnishe them with, taking what Cattle they needed, with so much ease, that they feemed to have an absolute command over them whereas these Creatures would not suffer the English to come near them; the Captain as usually before, giving them such things in exchange as much contented them, so that they promised always to supply them with necessaries,

att

th

te

th

1

g

m fu

T

D

W

tl

0

b

n tl

L

V

CHAP. II.

Captain Drake's proceeding to Rio Grand and Carthagena. His Entertaining the Symerons, and taking several Spanish Ships, and likewise the Town of Venta Cruz.

Aving received this seasonable Refreshment from the Indians, they departed for Rio Grand, and arrived at the Mouth thereof next day, where the Stream was fo violent that they took up fresh Water, tho' within half a League from the Sea; from three in the Afternoon till dark night, they rowed up against the Current, which was so strong, that theygor but two Leagues all that time; In the Night they moared their Pinnaces to a Tree, there falling a dreadful shower of Rain, with such strange and terrible. Thunder and Lightning as much aftonishe them, tho' Drake, who had before seen the like, affured them it would not last above three quarters of an hour; After this Storm it became very calm, and such a multitude of Gnats or Muskeroes fell upon them with their troublesome stings, that they could not rest all that night, nor defend themselves from them; the best remedy they found was to anoint themselves with Juice of Lemmons. At break of day they proceeded to hale without ceafing, and about three afternoon they spied a Canoo, with two Indians fishing in the River, to whom they spake nor, for fear of Discovery, nor the other to them, judging them Spaniards: Within an hour after they descried several Houses on the other side the River, the Channel whereof was twenty five fathom deep, and so broad that one can scarce see from one Shore to the other; yet a Spaniard who kept these Houses, discovering their Pinnaces, and thinking them his Countreymen, made a smoke for a Signal to them to turn that way, being defirous to speak with them; they accordingly rowed toward him, and being half way over, he waved his Hat and long hanging Sleeves to them to come alhoar; but they drawing nearer, he perceived his Muftake, and fled from his Houses with all freed: The English landing, found them to be five in number, and full of white Rusk, dried Bacon, Cheese of that Country, somewhat like that of Holland, but much better tafted, which they fend as great Presents into Spain; there were also Sweet-meats, Conferves, and a great quantity of Sugar provided for the Fleet in their return to Spain.

They loaded their Pinnaces with this store of Provisions, and by rwilight departed, having notice by an Indian Woman in those Houses, that the Frigors (usually thirty or more, which Transport Goods from Spain to Carthagena, and thence to those Houses, and so in great Canoes up to Nova Reyno with great ease. the River running many hundred Leagues within the Land, and bring back in return the Gold, Siver, Victuals and other Commodities, that Kingdom-abundantly yields) were not yet come from Carthagena, fince the first Alarm of the English being in the Country; Sept. 10. they went aboard their Pinnaces from these Store-houses, when the Spaniards having brought some Indians from a great Town two miles off, called Villa del Rey, had placed them in the Bushes by the Water fide, to annoy them with their Arrows, but the English rowed down the Stream to the mouth of the River without damage, where having unloaded all their Provisions, and cleanfing their Finnaces according to their Captain's Custom, they took all in again and failed Westward. In their return they discovered a Ship, a Bark and a Frigor, wherein they imagined to have found some Spanish Gold, but when pursued and taken, met with nothin value being bound for Sugar and Hides; so that dismissing her they proceeded

h

Di

in

pt. 10. between Carthagena and Tolon they took Frigors loaden with live Hoss, Hens and Maiz. hich we call Guiney-wheat, of whom they got what telligence they could of the preparations against em, and their opinion of them, and then discharge four of them and all the Men, retaining only two ips well flored with good provisions.

Three days after they arrived at Port Plenty (where eir Captain chose at first to leave his Ship) so called the Company, because they usually brought thither the Stores which they took going that way for Rualling Carthagena and Nombre de Dios, and from he Fleets going out and coming from Spain, which rocured them such abundance of all necessaries, that ad they been 2000 Persons, their Pinnaces would have ifficiently provided them with Wine, Meal, Rusk, affavy-bread made of a root called Yucca, whose juice poison, but the substance good and wholesome; dried eef, dried Fish, live Sheep, Hogs and Hens in abunance, with vast store of dainty Fish easily taken evey day. So that they were forced to build four feveal Store-houses ten or 20 Leagues afunder both in the flands, and on the main Land, that so if the Enemy mould surprize one, they might have another to furnish them till they had finished their defired Voyage, in building which, the Negroes were very skilful and peedy. With this store they not only relieved themelves and the Symerons, while they joyned with hem, but likewise two French Ships in much distress. in Drakes absence, Captain John Drake his Brother. who was left here with one Pinnace, failed into the Ocean, and rowing not far from the shoar, (by direction of Diego the Moor, who freely came to them R Nombre de Dios, he espied certain Symerons, with whom he treated so effectually, That at length leaving wo English with their Leader, they brought two of eirs aboard the Pinnace, concluding to meet again reday at a River about mid way between the Cacar and their ships, which they named the River

Thele two Symerons being very intelligent Men chosen out by their Commander, declared with much respect to Captain Drake upon their arrival hither; That their Nation were very joyful at his coming, knowing him an Enemy to the Spaniards, not ons ly by his late attempt at Nombre de Dios, but in his former Voyages, and they were therefore ready to affift him in all his defigns against his and their inveterate Adversaries, to which end their Captain and Company did now attend at the mouth of Rio Diego; expecting what answer should be returned them; that they would willingly have marched by Land even to this very place, had not the way been very long and troublesome with many steep Mountains, deep Rivers, and thick Woods and Bushes; they therefore defired Drake to take some speedy and convenient Order in this behalf. Who comparing the discourse of these persons with his former Intelligence, both from the Negroes and Spaniards, together with his Brothers information of their great kindness to him when lately among them, he with the advice of the reft, resolved to go with his Brother and the two Symerons that Evening to the faid River, ordering the rest of the Fleet to follow next morning, his Brother having found out a place thereabout of much fafety & conveniency, it being a very good and plentiful Country for above fixty Leagues, and not inhabited by one Spaniard or any on their behalf, and lying among a great many excellent Islands full of Trees, where though there be Channels, yet they are so full of Rocks and Shoals as makes it very dangerous to enter by night, whereas a from Ship may there lie hid among the Trees.

Next day Sept. 14, arriving at the appointed River they found fome of the Symerons according to promile, the rest of them being a mile upward in a Wood by the Rivers fide; After they had given them Enter tainment, and were fatisfied of their fidelity, they took two more into their Pinnaces, leaving two Englishmen with them to go by Land to another River call

Le

M

the

Sc

me

car

bro

jui

X.

1

ofc

div

kn

hi

the

wh

ve>

nov

der

Ran

Lan

ak

ere figi

car

ces ike

shercom

ed Rio Guana, to meet another Company of Symerons then in the Mountains; They went that day from Rio Diego in their Pinnaces toward their Ship, which they wondred did not follow them according to Order. Two days after, Sept. 16. they found her in the place where they left her, but very much damaged and indangered by a Tempest in their absence, which having refitted, they fent one Pinnace to discover the Channel at the bottom of the Bay to bring their Ship nearer the and; Sept. 19 they followed, and with much weainess sail'd safe into the best Channel; About five Leagues from Cativaas, between the Island and the Main, they moared their Ship, the Island being near he Continent, flat and full of Trees and Buffies; Sept. 22, the two English men and the Troop of Symerons, with twelve others, they met in the Mountains, came in fight of the Ship, on which they were brought aboard to their great joy, hoping now to be with their old Spanish Enemies, and the English apecting better success by their assistance.

At their first meeting, when Drake moved them to form him how he might be furnisht with Gold and liver, they plainly answered; 'That if they had known he had defired that, they could have given him enough, but at present were uncapable, because the Rivers wherein they had fuch a great quantity, which they had taken from the Spaniards, rather to vex their Foes, than for any love they had for it, were now so high that they could not get it out of such depths for them, neither could they take any more from their Enemies, because the Spaniards in these Rainy Months are not used to carry their Treasure by Land. This unexpected answer did not discontent refore the Captain, to wear out the five months they figned to spend in those Seas, commanded all his ear Guns and Ammunition ashoar, sending his Pingle ces to the main Land to fetch over great Tree's to all the a Fort upon the island to plant his Cannon shereon cal thereon, and for securing them against any attempt of the knemy. The Symerons cut down Palmeto Bough and Branches, and with strang celerity raised up two Houses large enough for all the Company. The For was made Triangular with Timber and Earth, and thirteen foot high.

Having continued here fourteen days, Octob. 7. th Captain resolved to go with three Pinnaces to Cartha gena, leaving his Brother John Drake to govern tho who remained with the Symerons to finish the For and to fetch Boards and Planks from the Prize he le at Cativaas where the was drove ashoar and broken i their absence, but might now be of use to this purpose That night Capt. Drake came to an Island he called th Spurkite Island, because they found there store of Bird like Kites, but very delicate meat; Next day Octob. they recovered a large Island where they got gre quantity of Fish, especially of a great Shel Fish 2 for long which they called Whelks. Next morning being clear of these Islands and shoals, they haled off to Se and four days after Od. 14. chased two Frigots asho near the Island of St. Bernards, from whence the proceeded to Tolou and landed Octob. 16. near the Town in a Garden, where certain Indians gave the Bows and Arrows, and presented them with the dail ty Fruits and Roots therein, for which they went n unrewarded, hoping to learn Intelligence of the Cou try and Fleets from them. They quickly went hen to Caresha an Island near Carthagena, and with all Gale sailed toward the City, casting Anchor between the Island and the Continent right against the good Garden Island; in which the Captain would not suf them to land, because he knew the Spaniards se Souldiers thither, when they heard any Men of W were on their Coast, which happened accordingly, three hoursafter passing by the Point of the Island they had a Volly of an Hundred shot from them, tot one of their Men hurt: That Evening they went Sea, and next Morning two Leagues off, they tool Ban

Bark, and found that a Captain, his Wife, and the principal Paffengers had for faken her, and were gone alhoar in their Gondelo, so that they boarded her without refistance, though very well provided with Swords, Targets, small shot and Iron Guns; she was about fifty Tun with ten Mariners, five or six Negroes, great store of Sope and sweet-meats bound from St. Domingo to Carthagena, the Captain having lest behind him a Silk Ancient with his Arms, at his hafty departing.

nei

DU

D

afi

vet

od ufl

W

nt

00

Bar

Next day Octob. 18. they fet all the Mariners ashoar to feek their Mafters, retaining only a young Negro three or four years old, and the Bark, wherein they bore into the Mouth of Carthagena Harbour and there anchored: That Afternoon divers Horse came down to the Woodfide in Company with the forementioned Scrivano, toward their Bark with a Flag of Truce defiring security for his coming and going, which being granted, he came aboard and gave the Captain many thanks for his repeated Favours, promising to bring him before Morning, as much Provision as he defired, what danger or punishment soever he incurred thereby. Yet all this was only a Trick of the Governors, to gain time and firength enough to intrap them; fo that feeing no appearance of this fair Pretender by Sun-rifing, they put to Seato the West and lay at Hull the rest of that day and night. Octob. 20 afternoon two Frigots bound for St. Domingo, came out of Carthagena, one of fifty, and the other of twelve Tun, laden only with Ballaft, which they took a League from the Town, and came to an Anchor with them within shot of the East-Bulwark; she had about thirteen common Mariners, who defiring to be fet ashoar, the Captain gave them the great Frigots Gondeloand dismist them.

Next Morning when they came down to the West Point with a Flag of Truce, the Captain rowed ashoar in his Pinnace, whereupon the Spaniards sted, and hid themselves in the Woods, pretending that of the great

B 2

great Guns, but thereby intending to draw them ashoar in pursuit, whereupon Drake leapt out on the Sand to defie them, and to shew that he durst land, tho' he stayed nor long, to let them know, that tho' he were not able to Conquer them, yet he perfeely understood their Designs; The Captain coming again aboard, they returned back upon the Sand, fend ing a youth as from the Governour, to know what they defigned by staying so long on those Coasts. Drake replied; 'He meant to traffick with them, having Tin, Pewter, Cloth and other Merchandize which he knew they had occasion for; The youth swam back again with this Answer. and instantly returned with another Message 'That the King of Spain had forbidden Traffick with any Forreigners, except for Powder and Shot, of which if he had any quantity ' they would bny it; He replied, That he was come from his Country to exchange his Goods for Gold & 'Silver, and was unwilling to return without his Er-' rand, & that he believed they would have little reft. 'if they did not fairly traffick with them; He gave the Messenger a fine shirt for a reward, & so discharged. him, who rowling his shirt about his head, swam quickly back again. They heard no answer all that day, but kept firid Watch; Next Morning about break of day, they faw two Sail making toward them but coming nigh they perceived by the many heads peering above board, that they were Manned, & fet forth from Carthagena to fight with them, or at least to regain the Frigots they had taken, but were prevented in both; for leaving John Oxnam with one Pinnace to entertain those Men of War, Drake hastned in the other to secure the Ships lest at Anchor,& caused the Spaniards, ( who mean time had gotten aboard in a small Canoo, to have towed the Frigots, within danger of the Shot ) to make all possible haste away, some being forc't to swim a land, leaving their Swords, Targets, Flasks and Calivers behind, and confidering he could not man them, he funk one, and

t

li

d

V

fi

C

h

bi

H

W

pa

th

th

the

int

Ro

the

the

for gre

DO

and

burnt the other, to shew them their secret Practices were discovered.

This done Octob. 22. he returned to John Oxnam, who mean while lay by the Men of War, without offer. ing to fight; When the Captain came up, the Wind blew so hard, that the Pinnaces were forced to give way, which caused the Spaniards to rejoyce in hope they fled, but when they came to Harbour, and had. smooth Water, the Pinnaces engaged the Enemy with advantage, so that after a few shot Exchanged, and a Storm arifing, they feared to press nearer, and the Storm continuing, whereby they doubted of success, they retired into the Town, and the English were obliged by the foul Weather, to continue there four days, feeling much cold from the Rains and Westerly Winds, and very little shelter in their Pipnaces. The fifth day after, Octob. 27. a Frigot coming from Sea, keing the English make to her, ran ashoar, taking off her Rudder and Sails to prevent being carried away, but coming up to her, they perceived near an hundred Horse and Foot well Armed, coming to the Point, with whom they exchanged some Shor, one of which passed so near a principal Commander among them that they resolved to retreat into the Woods, where they might rescue the Frigot, and sufficiently annoy the English, who therefore resolved to go to Sea again, intending to take down their Masts, and ride on the Rocks called Las Serenas two Leagues off at Sea, as they usually did, and were hardly distinguished from the Rocks; but the Waves were so high, that they were forced to continue fix days in the Harbour, to the great disturbance of the Spaniards, who contrived mother device against them.

For Novemb. 2. they sent forth a great Shallop, a condeloe, and a great Canoo, with some Spanish linketeers, and many Indians with poisoned Arrows, a if to begin a Skirmish, and then to sly, but the logish rowing toward them, and firing, they instantly anded and retired into the Woods, where an Ambush of fixty Muskets lay, besides two Pinnaces and Frigot very well mann'd. They boldly affaulted them affifted by those out of the Wood, who again goraboard the Gondelo and Canoo; and seeing the English coming up affured themselves of success from the Ambuscade; but Drake foreseeing the danger of the attempt, kept out of the reach of their shot from Land and the Enemy freely spent their Powder on them two or three hours, wherein the English had only one Man wonnded, but faw the Spanish Pinnaces shot through in several places, and the Powder of one take fire, whereupon Drake defigned to come up and board them, to prevent which, they rowed speedily to their Defence in the Wood, being disappointed of Asfiftance from their Frigot, which the wind would not suffer either to help them, or offend their Enemies Despairing therefore of any Prize in these parts, and Victuals growing scarce, Drake returned ogain Nov.3. to Rio de Grand, and on the Coast in their passage, found great store of Victuals; After two days arriving at the Villages of Store, where they were before supplied with abundance of Hens, Sheep, Calves, Hogs & the like, they now found nothing left, nor any People to be seen, flying by the Spaniards command into the Mountains, and driving away all their Cattel, that they might have no Relief from them; troubled hereat, and much of their Vsauals being spoiled at Sea, they were revived by the fight of a Frigor, from whom they expected Relief, but upon boarding, perceived the had neither Meat nor Money, being bound for Rio Grand to take in Provision upon Bills.

Ba

This adding to their grief, they lived upon a certain Allowance seven or eight days, and sailed toward Sancia Martha, in hope of Shipping in the Road of Fishes on the Rocks; when arriving near the Town, the Spaniards seeing them Men of War, placed forty Musketeers secretly among the Cliffs, who annoyed them so unrevengedly, that they were forc't to quit that Harbour, tho' endangered by a Storm without,

ſc

b

I

d

0

e

d

0

t

d

3.

e,

8

)•

e

16

y

t, y

d

1-1

n, y d

IG

and Want within, and go to Sea, and the Enemy to ive them a Farewel, made a most unlucky shor from Culverin between the Pinnaces, while they were confilting how to proceed : Some advised to land in some place Eastward to get Victuals, and rather venmre on the kindness of the Country-people, than continue at Sea in such a cold Storm, and a leaky Pinnace; but Drake resolved to bear up toward Rio de Hicca, or Coriazo, hoping there to meet with plenty, Without Resistance from the Inhabitants, or from some Prize in the Harbour; the Company in the other Pinnaces answered, 'They would willingly follow him through the World, but they did not think their Pinnace could endure a Storm, nor themselves the want of Provisions so long, having only one Gammon of Bacon, and thirty pound of Bifket for eighteen men; The Captain replyed, 'They were better provided than himself, who had but one Gammon of Bacon, and forty pound of Bilket for twenty four men, and therefore hoped they would take their Lot with him, and freely depend upon Divine Providence, which never fails those that trust therein: Upon this he hoised fail for Coriazo, which the rest perceiving, refolved to follow their Captain, tho' with forrowful hearts, because of the weakness of their Pinnace.

They had not sailed above three Leagues, when a Spanish Ship about ninety Tun appeared, which they joyfully expected to be their own; but being haled she despised their Summons, and gave them a Gun, the Sea went very high, so that they could not attempt her, but after a great Shower, a Calm ensuing, they pursued and quickly took her, which being laden with Victuals well powdred and dryed, they received as sent them by the mercy of Heaven. Nov. 13. Edward Hixom, by the Captains Order, going in search of some Harbour along the Coast, discovered a very convenient place twelve Leagues East of Sancts Martha, whither bringing in their new Prize, by promising Liberry and all their Apparel to the Spaniards to procure them water and fresh Victuals, they, by their means, obtained plenty of both from the Indian Inhabitants who went cloathed, and were governed by a Spaniard that dwelt in a Town about a League off, they stayed all day, providing necessaries, for which they satisfied the Indians: At night the Captain called all his Men aboard, leaving the Spaniards ashoar, who acknowledged their obligations to be greater to him for giving them liberty, than their dammage was by lofing their Ship.

The fickness which began among them, now appeared by the death of Charles Club their Quarter-Mafier, and a very skilful Sea man occasioned as they judged, by the cold the Men had got lately in their Pinnaces, yet the rest of the Company, though ill, recovered their Health. Next Morning, Nov. 15. Drake fent his smallest Pinnace, the Minion, to the ships at Fort Diego, to advise them of his coming, and to prepare for their Land-Journey; and if they heard of the Fleet's arrival by the Symerous, charging the Pinnace to take in a sufficient quantity of the Wine they had hid in the Sand at St. Bernard's, in their way. In 7 days after, Drake arrived at St. Bernard's, but found only twelve Potajo, s of Wine of the great store they had left there, which escaped the strict search of the Enemy, (who had been there fince, )by being buried very deep in the ground. Nov. 27. They came to their ship and received the ill Tidings of the death of John Drake the Captains Brother, and Richard Allen a young Man, both flain at one time, in attempting to board a Frigot two days after their departure from them; for in going toward their Fort with Planks for the Platform, they faw a Frigot at Sea, which the Company persuaded him to fall upon as a good Prize: He replied, 'They wanted Arms to affault them, & knew not how firong they were, and his Boat was bow loaden with Planks, to finish his Brother's Orders: This not fatisfying them, and they feeming resolved, Well, said he if you will needs venture, you fhall never say I will be hindmost, nor report to my Brother that you lost your Voyage by my Cowardise-

Making then the best provision possible, and heaving their Planks over-board, they Armed themselves with such poor weapons as they had, that is, a broken pointed Sword, an old Carbine and a rufty Musker. John Drake took the Sword, and made a shield of his Pillow, Richard Allen had the Carbine, standing in the head of the Pinnace, and Roberts managed the Musket, and so they boarded the Frigot, but found her hung round about with Hides, behind which the was full of Pikes and small shot, which they discharged in their faces, and mortally wounded John Drake in the belly, and Richard Allen in the head, who yet got off the Pinnace, freed themselves from the Frigor, and hastily recovered the ship, wherein, within an hour these hopeful Young Men died with much Regret of the Company: Having moared their Ships fast Captain Drake resolved not to go to Sea again, but to conceal himself till the coming of the Spanish Fleer, supplying himself and the Symerons out of his Storehouse, besides the dayly relief they got of wild-Hogs, Pheasants and Guav as out of the Woods, whereby they by God's bleffing continued in health till January 3. when fix of the Company fell fick, and died within two or three days; yea they had thirty at a time fick of a Calenture, occasioned by a sudden change from cold to hear, or from the Salt or brackish Water taken in at the Mouth of the River, by the floth of the Seamen who would not go further up. Among others, loseph Drake another of the Captain's Brothers, died in his Arms of that Disease, who being opened, his liver was (woln, his Heart as if boiled, and his Guts Il fair; the Surgeon that diffected him died four days firer, though not of the Calenture of which he recoered about a month before, but by presumptucusly lving himself such a strong Purge, that he never spoke ford after the taking it, and his Boy, who was fick only by tasting it, not recovering his kellth till he me to England.

d

d

d

0

of 0

m

10

e

e:

as

r.

ag

pu

11

The Symerous, who were entertained in September, and usually repaired to their thip during their absence, ranged the Country toward Nombre de Dios. and gave Drake particular notice of what happened; was affuring him that the Spanish Fleet was certainly arrived, he fent the Lyon Frigot to discover the truth. fince if it were fo, all the Ships in the Country would repair to Nombre de Dios for Provision: They in a few days after met with a Frigot laden with Maiz, Hens and Pompions from Tolou, which they took, and who affured them the Fleet was come; in her were taken one Woman and twelve Men, whereof one was the Scrivano of Tolou: The Captain used them very civilly, securing them from the fury of the symerons, who much importuned Drake that they might have leave to cut their Throats in reveng of their many wrongs and injuries received from the Spanish Nation; but the Captain adjured them neither to hurt nor affront them, while in his charge; and when he resolved to take a Journey by Land to Panama, he strictly enjoyeed Ellis Hixom to take care of his own Ship and Company and especially of those Spaniards he had put in the greatPrize which was haled ashore to the Island, (called by them Slaughter Island, because so many died there) and which was now used for their own Store-house, and a Prison for their Enemies: All things thus or. dered, and the Captain consulting with the Chief of the Symerons, what Weapons, Provisions and Apparel were convenient for this great and long Journey: They advised to carry as many shoes as possible, because of the many Rivers full of Stones and Gravel they were to pais.

Preparations of all Necessaries made, Feb. 3. being Shrove-Tuesday, they began their Journey with most of their Company, having already lost twenty eight Men, and leaving only a few sound Men with Hixom to secure the Ship and Prisoners, and tend the sick Athis departure, Drake gave Hixom strict charge not to credit any Messenger who should come in his name

With

c ration

with any Token, unless he brought his Hand-Writing, which he knew neither the Spaniards nor Symerons could counterfeit. They were in all forty eight, whereof eighteen were English, and the rest Symerons, who besides their Arms, carried each of them a great quantity of Victuals, forthat the English had nothing to toil them but their Arms in this long Journey; and because they could not carry enough for a full supply, they according to promise, provided sufficient store, with their Arrows by the way: They had each two fort of Arrows, one to affault the Buemy, and others to kill Victuals; the first are very long, and headed with Iron, Wood, or Fish bones, the others have, some a head of Iron of a pound and halfweight, shaped like the head of a Javelin, and Tharp as a Knife, making fo deep a wound into an Ox, Stag, or Wild-Boar, as is hardly credible: They have others with less heads, some to kill smaller Cattle, and others still less for Birds, and are so well tempered, as not to be easily blunted nor broken; their absolute necessity of these weapons makes them value Iron much above Gold; and whoever has skill to give a true Temper to these Arrows, is highly valued: They marched every day from Sun-rifing till ten in the Forenoon, & then again from twelve to four, always reposing near someRiver, either in Houses they found ready, or else such as were quickly erected by the Symerons, who when they came where they designed to rest, instantly cut down Branches of Palmeto Trees, which served for Posts & Rafters, and covering them close with Plantain and Palmetto Leaves, they were very well secured from the Rain and Sun: They would speedily erect fix of these Houses, and made three fires ineach, one at each end, and another in the middle, which they fo contrived, that the smoak never offended, and the place was temperately warm. Near these Rivers the found divors wholfome fruits, as Mammeas, Guava's, Palmettoes, Pines, Oranges, Lemons, and divers others which the Symerons persuaded them to eat with mo-

15

5,

e

0;

Bt

01

d

)y

ne

:d

e)

c,

.10

of 12-

y :

rel

ng

oft

m, k

DQ

me

th

deration, except roafted Plantanes, Potatoes, and the like. If in the way they faw any wild Hogs on the Hills or Valleys, the Symerons would usually, fix at a time, deliver their Burthens to their Followers, and immediately pursue, kill and bring away as much as they could carry, and the time would permit. One day they found an Otter, and went to dressing it; Drake wondring at it, Pedro the chief Symeron said, Are you a Man of War, and in want, and yet doubt whether this be Meat which hath blood in it? Whereupon the Captain secretly chied him that he had not told them of it before.

The third day of their Travels they brought them to a Town of their own, on the fide of a Hill near a fine River, encompassed with a Ditch eight foot broad, and a Mud-wall ten Foot high, to prevent a fudden surprized : It had one long broad Street East & West, and two less crossing it, confishing of about 60 Families, the Houses and Streets being very clean and fweet, and the People lived very civilly and cleanly: When the Symerons came hither, they washed themselves in the River, and changed their Apparel, which was very fine and exactly made, as were likewife their Womens Garments, much like the Spaniards, but not This Town is thirty five Leagues from so costly. Nombre de Dios, and forty five from Panama, plentifully stored with Cattle, Fowl, Maiz, and divers Fruits. As to their Religion, they have no Priefts, only they held the Cross in much Reverence, but by Drakes perswasion they left it, and learnt the Lord's Prayer, Teeming willing to be inflructed in the Worship of God: They keep a constant guard in sour parts, three Miles off the Town, to prevent Mischief from the Spaniards, who are oft conducted against them by the Symerons themselves, whereby they sometimes prevailed against them when they lived carelessy; but. fince this, having usually notice of their coming they many times surprize the Spaniards, and kill them in the Woods like Beafts. They

They flayed with the Symcrons that Night, Feb. 7. and the next day till Noon, during which, they related many strange accidents between them and the Spaniards, and among others; That a gallant Gentleman entertained by the Spanish Governors of the Country, undertook the last year, with 150 Souldiers to destroy Man, Woman, and Child in this Town, being conducted by one of their own who had been taken Prisonet, and bribed with Gifts; He accordingly surprized them half an hour before day, whereby most of the Men escaped in the Dark, but many Women and Children were murdered and taken; But at Sunrifing this Gallant their Leader being flain in purfuing another Man's Wife, the Symetons resumed their Courage, and getting together, sell so suriously on the Spaniards, that flying into the Woods without a Guide, most of them perisht by Famine, and not above thirty escaped, to carry the News to those that fent them. Their King dwelt in a City fixteen Leagues South East of Panama, and was able to raise sevencen hundred fighting Men; They were very earnest with Captain Drake to flay two or three days, ingaging to double his number of Men in that time if he thought good; but he thanking them for their kind offer, resolved to prosecute his Voyage, declaring, 'He would use no more strength if he might have twenty times as much, Which they judging to proceed not only from Kindness but Courage, they willingly marched away that Afternoon, four of the Symerons, who best knew the ways going about a Mile before, and breaking down Boughs for direction to those that followed, all being enjoyned great Silence; after them, twelve went before as a Van Guard, and twelve more in the Rear; the English & the two Symeron Captains marching in the midft: All the way through the Woods was cool & pleasant with the thick and high Trees, fo that it was as agreable travelling in that hot Country, as in England in the Heat of Summer. They were much encouraged by hearing there was a great Tace about the Mid-way where they might at once discern the North-Sea, from whence they came, and the South-Sea, whither the

were going.

The fourth day after, Feb. 17th they came to the Top of this defired Hill, which was very high, and lay East and West like a Ridge between the two Seas It was about ten a Clock in the next Morning, when one of the Chief Symerons taking Drake by the hand defired him to walk up this famous high tree, wherein they had cur divers fleps to alcend almost to the top, where they had made a convenient Arbour for twelve Men conveniently to fit, and from whence without difficulty they might plainly differn both the North and South Atlantick Ocean, many of the adjoyning Trees being cut down to clear the Prospect, and divers strong Houses built thereabout by the Symerons, who usually pass that way, and inhabit those vast Countries Drake having ascended the Tree, and the Weather being fair, taking a full View of that Sea of which he had heard such golden Reports, he befought God to give him Life and Leave once to fail an English Ship in those Seas, John Oxnam and the rest of the Company affuring them they would affift him to the utmost :All being fatisfied with this pleafing fight they descended, & being refresht, marche two days farther into the Woods, and then came into a Champain Country, where the Grass grows so very high, that their Cattle (of which they have abundance) cannot reach it, fo that the Inhabitants are forc'd to burn it thrice a year five or fix Miles together, and yet after it is burnt, within three days it Springs again like green Corn. such is the fruitfulness of the Soil by the equality of Days and Nights, and the rich Dews falling every Morning.

In these three last days March over the Hills, they are saw Panama five or fix times a day, and the ships curiding in the Road; but being come within a days Tourney, the Symerons declaring that the Ladies of the Panama

D

Y

g

4 00

he to

days

140

Panama used to employ Hunters and Fowlers, to take me curious Fowls in that Country, by whom they might be discover'd, Drake caused all his Company to travel out of the ordinary Road, with great filence, to the Grove agreed on four days before within a League of Panama, where they might lie undiscovered near the high-way to Nombre de Dios. From hence they fent a Symeron, who formerly was a ferwant in Panama, in fuch Apparel as their Negroes use in War, into the Town, to learn the certain Night and Hour, when the King's Treasure was laden from the Treasure-House to Nombre de Dios, for they always travel by night from Panama to Venta Cruz, because of the Heat of the Champain Country; but from Venta Cruz to Nombre de Dios, they go always with their Treasure by day through the cool fresh Woods inless the Simerons happily make them swear for, fear, as oft happens, and therefore their Recoes are parded with Souldiers; The last day Drake took a all view of that fair City, and the large Street thereand by three a Clock came secretly into the Grove along a River then almost dried up, from whence he hip dispatch'd a Spy into the City in the Evening, who BY quickly return'd with Intelligence from his Compa-All nions there, 'That the Treasurer of Lima intending ed, to go into Spain in a good Ship of 350 Tun called the the Adviso, defigued that Night to Travel with his try, Daughter and Family to Nombre de Dios, accompattle nied with fourteen Mules, eight of them laden with , fo car "Gold, and one with Jewels, and that there were two Lother Recoes, each of fifty Mules laden with Victuals, rnt, orn, and some small quantisy of Silver to go this Night very Company of Mules and People Travelling together, very Company of Mules and People Travelling together, they unless ten, twenty, or thirty more are hited by partihips cular Persons upon their occasions. -

Upon this notice, they inflantly march'd within s of two Leagues of Venta Cruz, when two Symerons went before discovering a Spaniard by the scent of his Match, afleep, they fropt his Mouth, put out his Match, and bound him so strictly, as had almost strangled him before they brought him to the Captain who being Examined, confirmed all that the Spy had reported and that he was a Souldier entertained with others by the Treasurer, for guarding the Treasure from Venta Cruz to Nombre de Dios. The Souldier understanding Drake was their Captain, took Courage to request him. That he would command the Symerons, (who extreamly hated the Spaniards, especially the Souldiers) not todo him any mischief, whom he knew they durft not disobey; and that fince he was a Souidier, and was affured that the Captain would gain that night more Gold, Jewels and Pearls than they could carry away, (if not, they fhould deal with him as they would) he would please, if it so happened, to bestow as much on him, as might suffice for himself and his Mittress to live upon, as he had heard he had done to divers before, for which he should proclaim his Bounty with as great Praises as others, who had received the like Favours.

Being come to the place appointed, Drake with half his Men lay about fifty paces off the High way in the long Grass, and John Oxnam with the Captain of the Symerons, and the other half were placed on the other fide the way, but so far behind, that the first Company might take the foremost Mules by the head and the other the hindmost, they being tied together and driven one after another, and especially that is they should use their Arms that Night, they might avoid hurting each other in the Dark; Having lain in Ambush about an hour, they heard the Recoes passing too and fro in the Road from Panama to Venta Cruz, they having a great Trade when the Fleets are there, the sound of their great Bells wherein they delight, being heard a long way in a dark night.

Drake had firicily commanded that none of his Men should flir or appear, but let all that came from Venta

n

d

h

e

k

d

5,

e

0

Is

d

O

f-d

C

lf

e

f

C

ft

d

1

if

t

n

Z,

t,

Cruz pale quierly with their Record as knowing they carried naching but common Merchandize, yet one Robert Pike having drank too much Aqua vitz without Water, forgetting himself, persuaded a Symeron to go into the Road, and feize on the foremost Mules. and a Spanish Horse-man riding by with his Page running at his fide; Fike unad visedly flarred up to he who he was, though the Symeron diferently endeawared to pull him down, and lay upon him to prefent further Discovery, yet by this the Gentleman taking notice of one all in white, they having put their Shirts over their Cloaths, to prevent mistakes in the Night, he put Spurs to his Horse, both to secure himfelf, and gave notice to others of the Danger; Drake observing by the hardness of the Ground, and stilness of the Night, that the Gentleman changed his Trot into a Gallop, doubted of the truth, yet had not the leifure to examine by whose fault they were discovered, but considering it might be from the danger of the place always suspected by Travellers, he lay still, expecting the Treasurer, who was now within half a League, and had come forward, had he not been met with by this Horse-man (as they after understood by the Recoes) who telling him what he had feen, and also what he had oft heard of Captain Drake, whom he fuspecked to be concerned in this business, who having been disappointed of getting any Treasure at Nombre de Dios and other places, he believed was one way or other come by Land through the Covert of the Woods to this place, in hope of better Fortune, fo that he persuaded him to turn his own Mules richly laden out of the way, and let the others pass on, which being only loaden with Victuals, the Loss would be less, yet would discover who they were as well as the other.

Thus by the solly and carelesses of one Man, and the carefulness of this Traveller, they were disappointed of a very rich Booty. The Mules coming up, were instantly stopt and seized on, the Driver a very

feulible

enfible Fellow, telling Drake how they were dife. vered, and adving them to faire for rhemfelves, un less they were able to oppose the whole Power of the City and Country, which before day, would certainly come out against them. It much displeased them to be disappointed of their Golden Hopes, and that they could not find above two Horse load of Silver but it grieved the Captain much more that he was difcovered, and that by one of his own Men; but fince it was past Remedy, and Time was pretious, Pedro Captain of the Symerons, advised either to return back privately about four Leagues into the Wood or elfe to march forward in the high way to Venta Cruz two Leagues off and fight their way through their Enemies; Drake concluded on the last course, confidering the long weary marches they had taken, chufing rather to encounter his Adversaries while they had strength, than to be fallen upon by them when wearied, especially having now some Mules to cale them in carrying their Baggage. Commanding them all to refresh themselves with the abundant Provision they had got, he declared to them his Resolution and the Reason of it, particularly asking Pedro, whether he would give him his hand not to forfake him, being affured the Symerons would follow their Captain, who glad of his Defign, gave Drake his hand, vowing that in profecuting it he would rather die at his Foot, than leave him to his Enemies.

Having refresht themselves, they travelled by the help of the Mules till within a Mile of Venta Cruz, when discharging them, they charged the Mule keepers not to follow them upon pain of death; The Way is cut through the Woods about twelve foot broad, for two Mules to pass, and the Soil so fruitful, that with often cutting, the Woods grow as thick as the thickest Hedges in England. In the midst of the Wood a Company of Souldiers, who always lye in the Town to desend it against the Symerons, came forth to stop them, or if not, to retreat to their strength and expect their countries; a Convent of Fryers, with their Leader joining likewise with them: Drake underflanding by the Symerons, who marehed with much care and filence a small distance before them, that it was time to arm themselves, since by the smell of their March and their Noise, they perceived the Enemy near; He gave charge that noue of his Men should shoor, till the Spaniards had first discharged a Volley, which he thought they would not do without speaking, as accordingly happened; for being within hearing, a Spanish Captain cryed aloud, Hoa, to which Drake answered, and being demanded, 'Que Genre, of what Country, replied, Englishmen; Wherenpon the Commander 'Charged him in the Name of the K. of Spain to yield themselves, promising supon the Word and Faith of a Gentleman Souldier, that upon Surrender he would use them very kindly; Drake hereupon drawing near to him, faid, 'That for the Honour of the Queen of England his Mistress. he must have passage that way, and therewith discharged his Pistol; upon which the Spaniards shot off their whole Volley, wherewith, tho' Drake and some of his Men were lightly wounded, yet John Harris only was killed, being so severely treated with Hailshor, which they generally use, that he could not be recovered: When Drake perceived their that to flacken, he gave his usual signal by a whistle, for his Men to answer them with their Shot and Arrows, and then fall in upon them, but perceiving them retiring to a Place of better Strength, the English pursued them, and the Symerons having for fear of the Shor flept aside, when they observed them marching forward, came all in again with their Arrows ready in their Bows, dancing and Singing, 'Yo' Peho, Yo' Peho, after the manner of their own Country Wars, till they overtook some of the Enemy, who had taken their stand as before, in a Wood at the Towns end; The Symerons now throughly encouraged, feeing this, broke through the thickest of them, forcing them to the the

I CO.

f the

aiol

hen

that

VCL

dif.

e in turn

ruz

heir

con-

hey

hen

cale

fion

tion,

he-

rim, Cap-

and,

e at

the

uz,

ep.

Vay

hat

gth

and

fly, Fryers and all, though several of the English were wounded, and one Symeron run through with a Pike, who yet had so much Courage as to kill him who gave that deadly wound.

They followed the Chase so close that they entred the Town of Venta Cruz, confisting in about fifty Houses, some very fair, with a Governour and other Officers, and many large strong Score-houses, for secaring the Goods brought thicher from Nombre de by the River Chagro, to be transported by Mules to Panama. In the Houses they found three Ladies lately delivered there of Children, though they dwelt at Nombre de Dios, they having long observed, that no Spaniard or white Woman could be fafely delivered there, their Children generally dying withto two or three days, but if born, and brought up in Sanda Cruz rill about fix years old, and then brought to Nombre de Dios, if they escaped sickness the first or fecond Month, they usually lived as healthy as in any other place; though they fay no stranger can contioue there long, without danger of Death or extream Sickness. Though these Ladies were much frighted at the approach of the English, yet Drake having strictly charged the Symerons not to hurr any Woman, nor Man unarmed while in his Company, which they faithfully obeyed; they had no injury offered them, nor any thing taken from them, tho' they much doubted it, defiring the Captain himself would please to come and secure them, not being sarisfied with those he had fent to affure them of his Protection, to which Drake complying, and repeating his promifes, they were much comforted thereby.

The English having set necessary Guards as well on the Bridge they went over, as at the Towns end where they entred, and was the only Passage by Land into it, they had Liberty to stay there quietly an hour and an half, not only refreshing themselves, but getting good Plunder, which Drake gave between his Men and the Symerons, as being cumbersome, and not what he came for. A while before they departed, about ten or twelve Horle-men as was thought from Panama, thinking they had been gone, because they were so still, came considently into the Town; but finding other Entertainment than they expected, they rid faster back out of sear, than they entred in hope.

CHAP. III.

de

ee ey

d, hia

ht

in ח-im at

OT

ey

71), ot•

CO

ose

ch

ey

on cre

it,

an

bo

he he me Captain Drake goes back from Panama, and between Rio Francisco, and Nombre de Dios, betakes a Reçoe of sifty Mules, each carrying three hundred pound Wright of Silver, and some Bars and Wedges of Gold, of which they carried off a great quantity, and buried sifteen Tun of Silver in the Sands: He comes back to his Ship, and returns safe to England.

Day-break they marched over the Bridge in the same Order as before, being as sate in their own Opinions, as if secured by a Wall or Fort, no Spaniard daring to follow them, and the Symerons being now much more valiant than before; But Drake considering he had been almost a Fortnight from his Ship, aboard, in which he lest many sick, made all possible haste back, without visiting the other Symeron Towns, though earnessly entreated by them, and encouraging his Men by affuring them that he did not doubt but they would yet be fully recompensed for all their pains before he lest that Coast: These discourses seemed to shorten the way, and their haste caused them to leave the Towns, and march many days with hangry stomachs.

machs, to the great Regret of the Symerons, who the Captains would have flayed at any place, con quickly have kill'd Victuals enough. In their absence the other Symerons had built a little Town three Leagues off the Port where their Ship lay, wheren Drake by their earnest intreaty staid some time, be cause they said, it was built for his sake, and the ma ther, that they might be supplied with Shoes by the Symerons, who were herein very useful to them; Al the Men complaining of their Feet, and their Cap tain, though sometime without cause, joyning in the Complaint to make it feem eafier to them. Symerons were extream serviceable to them all the Time they were with him, and particularly in this Journey, being Guides to direct them, Intelligencers, Purveyors of Victuals, Carpenters to build Houses. and Porters to carry all Necessaries with their strong Bodies; and when any fainted or were fick, two Syme rons would carry him with ease two Miles together. and at other times they appeared no less Valiant than Judicious.

From this Town the Caprain sent a Symeron, Feb. 22. to the Matter of the Ship, with a Token and On ders, who for three Weeks past, had kept watch upon the Enemy, and shifted in the Woods for fresh Victuals to relieve and recover his Men aboard: This Messenger coming to the Shoar, and calling to the Ship, was foon fetcht aboard, all hoping for good News from their Captain, but when he shewed the Toothpick of Gold, which he faid Drake had fent as a Token to Edward Hixom, with Charge to meet him at sucha River, though he knew it to be the Captains Toothpick, yet remembring his Caveat at parting, though he seemed not to distrust the Symeron, he stood amazed, much doubting left fome Misfortune had befallen him; which the Symeron perceiving, told him, It was night when he came away, fo that he could not fend a Letter, but yet with the point of a Knife he write emething on the Tooth-pick, which he faid looking on it, law writ, By me Francis Drake, wherewith being latisfied, he prepared for the River Tortugos, according to the Symeron's Direction. About three in the afternoon, Drake and all his Men coming down toward the River, within half an hour the Pinnace agrived to receive them, and great Joy was express among them all for their happy meeting again; Drake and his Company appeared to the resistant half and lived at rest and in plenty) strangely changed, both in Countenance and Body, occasioned by their Fasting and long Travel, but more for inward Grief, that they returned without the hoped for Gold and Treasure; The rest, who by reason of weakness, were lest behind at the Indian Jown, were next day, by another River at the bottom of the Bay, all brought aboard again.

S ... 5

C

1

OD

:A

p;

ws h-cn

14

h. gh

od

)c-

m, ild

fe

iid vas

All thus return'd from Panama, and the Company well fatisfied, and revived with hopes of Success in the next attempt which Drake resolved to undertake, who revolving in his mind the Intelligence he had received of divers other confiderable Places thereabout, and particularly of Varagua a wealthy Town West-ward. between Nombre de Dios and Nicaragua, where is the richest Mine of fine Gold on the North side of America: He consulted what was to be done; Some were for supplying themselves with Victuals, for preferving their Health till opportunity offered, which they might easily do, fince the Barks and Frigors that carried it were seldom very strong, whereas those that had Treasure, were well furnisht with Souldiers and Ammunition; others were for leizing the Treafure, fince that was nor to be had but at this Time when the Fleets were there, they being already indifferently well furnishe with Provisions, and the Country plentiful enough; the Symerons opinion being Tikt. who knew the particularities of all the Towns, they declared, 'That Senior Pezoro their former Mafter,

from whom they fied, dwelt near Veragua, in a firong frome Houle, where he had refided about Nineteen Years, never Travelling from home, u lessonce a year to Carthagena or Nombre de Di when the Fleers came, that he kept an hundre Slaves in the Mines, each being bound to bring daily clear again, three Pezoes of Gold for himsel and two for his Women, each Pezo being eigh Shillings three Pence, amounting to above 308 pour ferling a day, so that he had heaped regether amiel Mass of Treasure, which he kept in several gre chefts two Foot deep, three broad and four lone being notwithstanding all his wealth miserably vetous, and never going abroad without a Guard five or fix men to defend him from Danger, which he extreamly apprehended from all Creatures; and if the Captain would undertake the getting this mighty Booty the Symerons engaged to conduct them through the Woods without entring any dangerou Havens, but might come on their backs unexpectedly and though his House being of Stone, could not be eafily burnt, yet if the Captain would undertake it they would undermine overthrow, or break it open and make the Access to this vast Treasure easie.

in

w

up

· p

4

F

b

CI

t

0 tł

80 tho

Pc2

but

life

Silv

Sail

he

Riz

WI C

Drake hearing their Opinions, resolved to reconcil both by dividing his Company, sending John Oxnan in the Bear Frigot Eastward, toward Telou, to feiz what Victuals he could, and himfelf intending West in the Minion toward the Cabezas, where the Treasure Barks from Veragua and Nicaragua pass often to the Ships, defigning at the same time to gain both Money& Provisions; As to attempting Pezoro's House by Land through the Woods, he was loth to over weary his Men by labour whom he intended to refresh and strengthe for the next piece of Service; so courteously dif miffing those Symerons who were willing to go to their Wives, with such Gifts and Presents as were mol acceptable to them, & lindly entertaining those willing to flay aboard, the Pinnace departed, & about the C bezas they met with a Frigot of Nicaragua, wherein was some Gold and a Genoa Pilot, of which Country here are many on those Coasts; they came from Veragua eight days before, and being well treated gave Drake an account of the Town and Harbour, and that in few days another Frigot was coming from thence, wherein was above a Million of Gold, the Pilot offering apon confideration, ' to conduct them in safely by night, without danger of Sands or Shallows, as perfectly knowing the Channel, and without the least discovery, fince the Town is five Leagues within the Harbour, and the way by Land far about, and difficult through Woods: so that though they should be casually discovered at the Point of the Harbour, yet they might dispatch their business and be gone bebefore the Towns-men could have notice of their coming. He told them further, That at his being there, he perceived they had heard of Drake's being on the Coast, which much disturbed them. the Miser resolving to remove for his security toward the South-Sea, but their fears were so great in Captain Drake confidering ferioufly of this matter thought once of returning to his Ship, for some of Pezoro's former Servants to be confirmed in the Points but the Genoa Pilot pressing him to lose no time, he limist the Spanish Frigor lightening it only of the liver, to haften their speed, and then by the advice this Pilot, whom he took aboard, he laboured with fuls and Oars, to attain the Harbour of Nicaragua in he Night, fince they might now gain this golden rize, and attempt Pezaro's house asteward. Coming othe mouth of the Harvour, they heard two great buns, and two more further within the Bay answering hem, which caused the Pilot to suspect they were disovered, affirming, 'This Order was taken fince his being there, because the Governour of Panama had sent notice to all places, of Drake's being on the Coast, which caused such Terrour among them, that they

Shardly

general, that it excluded Counsel, and they had no way fecured themselves.

hardly flept quietly in their Beds, and therefore pe bably kept up this Watch at the Charge and for security of Pezoro the rich Miser. Being thus de feated of their Expectations they returned to the Ship, when Oxnam being likewise come back, had a ly taken one Frigot with tenMen, whom they fet afhor great flore of Maiz, twenty eight fat Hogs, and m hundred Hens, of which discharging her, the Capu finding the Vessel new, strong, and of a good Mon fitted herup with great Guns and Provisions for a Me of War, having notice by the Spaniards laft taken, the there were two little Gallies built at Nombre de Di to convoy the Chagto Fleet to and fro, but were yet lanched, which Fleet he resolved now to attemp and to encourage his Men, feafted them nobly Eafter-day, March 20 upon that account.

Next day the new Frigor and the Bear failed n ward the Cativaas, and landed about noon, when it ferving a Sail making toward the Island they play them, and percolving by their Confidence they we no Spaniards but English, of whom they heard to before; being in much diffres they made up to the and declared, 'Their Captain was named Tett, French man of New-Haven, and a Man of War, firous of relief, humbly befeeching Drake to them some Water, having nothing aboard but W and Sider which made his Men fick, and that hel been feeking the English five Weeks since he he they were on the Coast. The Captain sent one about with present relief, promising them Water and W tuals at the next Port. Coming to Anchor, Tetus Captain Drake a Case of Pistols, and a fine gilt Scin ter, formerly belonging to the King of France, who Montgomery hurt in the Eye, and given him by M fieur Scroff: Drake requited him with a Chain Gold and a Tablet which he wore. This Capt. brow the News of the great Disturbances at Paris, and Marriage of the King of Navarr last St. Bartholon day, with the death of the Admiral of Frances many others; fo that they thought those French-men most habby that were farthest from France, which was now in a very deplorable condition. He told them what Reports there were of Drake's great Riches, and defired to know how he might likewise make a good Voyage.

四分形面 三国 五 4 8 5

m

y a

dn

n ol plye

Wd

la

the

ctu,

17,

O g

hel

he

abox

dV

tuk

Scim

who

V MO

hain

More

Though the English had some jealousie of him, yet upon Consultation, they resolved to take him, and twenty of his Men, to serve with their Captain half thares, being thereby secured against their numbers, and not damaged by that part of the Gain. Tetu had feventy Men, and they had but one and thirty; his Ship was eight y, and theirs but twenty Tun, and the Pinnace ten. And therefore they hoped for Assistance. from him, in profecuting their Voyage; And having agreed with him to meet at Rio Francisco, they sent for two Symerons aboard, to affure the French of this Agreement. Having in five or fix days refresh themfelves, and the French, who were very thankful for this seasonable Relies, leaving their two Ships in safe Harbour, they manned their Frigot and two Pinnaces, having funk the Lion after their Return from Panama. for want of Men) with twenty French, and fifteen English and Symerons, wherewith they sailed toward Rio Francisco, where the water being shallow, they left their Frigor at Cabezas in charge with Robert Dable. charging him to attempt nothing till their return with their Pinnaces, wherewith they now entred Rio Francisco, and landed with the Strength aforementioned, ordering the Pinnaces to be there again four days after. And being inform'd, that the Carriages went daily from Panama to Nombre de Dioi, through the Woods towards the High-way, they marched as in their former Journey to Panama, it being reckoned ive Leagues by Sea, between Rio Francisco and Nombre de Dios, but by Land they found it above fever 800 proceeding on with much Silence, and Order, to the clon Frest wonder of the French Caprain, who doubted of ever recovering their Pinnaces, if the Symerons Mondo leave.

leave them, which Drake never inspected, as knowing his Will was a Law to them, though they neither re-

f

1

1

H

h

tt

C

C

u

t

0

r

t

t

p

W

fi

garded nor frusted the French.

Coming within a Mile of the High-way, they refresh themselves all night, hearing many Carpenters work. ing on the Ships (because of the great heat of the day) Next morning April 1. 1573. at Nombre de Dios. they extreamly rejoyced to hear the Mules coming with a great noise of Bells, hoping, though they were formerly disappointed, they should now have more Gold and Silver than they could carry away, as account cordingly happened; for foon after there came three Recoes, one of fifty Mules, and two more of seventy in each Company, every one carrying three hundred pound weight of Silver, amounting in all to about thirty Tun; they foon prepared to go into the Highway hearing the Bells, and leized upon the first and dall Mules, to fee what Metal they carryed. three Recoes had a Guard of about five and forty Souldien, fifteen to each, which caused the Exchange of Tome Shot and Arrows at first, wherein the French Captain was fore wounded with Hail-faot in the belly, and one Symeron flain; but the Souldiers foon retiring for more help, left their Mules, and the English took his to ease some of them of their Burdens, and being weary, contented themselves with as many Barr and Wedges of Gold, as they could well carry away, burying above fifteen Tun of Silver in the Sand, and under old Trees. Having in two hours ended their bufinels, they prepared to return the same way, when they heard both Horse and Foot coming, who yet never followed them into the Woods, where the French Caprain, not able to travel farther for his wound, repoled himself sometime in hope to recover his through, and one of the French Souldiers being mil sing upon fearch it was found, that being over-loaden with Wine & Gold, he had loft himself in the Woods and was taken by the Spaniards that Evening, who upon Tormre discovered where they had hid there Tres-Tucy ture.

They continued their March all that day and the next to Rio Francisco, in hope to meet their Pinnaces, whither being come, April 3d. looking out to Sea. they faw seven Spanish Pinnaces that had been searching all the Coasts the reabouts; upon which they much doubted their own Pinnaces were burnt or taken, fince Brake had so strictly charged them to repair hither this Afternoon, from the Cabezas where they lay, and from whence these Spanish Vessels seem'd now to come. But much Rain falling the night before, with a ftrong. West-wind, enforc'd the Spaniards to return home, and the wind being contrary, the English Pinnaces though with help of Oars, could not get above half. way that day: Drake much fearing left having taken his Planaces, they had by Torrure compell'd his Men. to confess where his Erigor and Ships were, and his Company doubting of ever returning to their own. Countrey, and that their Treasure would be of little we to them, the Captain encouraged them laying, That they should venture no farther than himself, and that it was not now a time to fear, but to endeavour to prevent their danger, fince if the Enemy had feized their Pinnaces, (which God forbid) yet they must rake time to search and examine the Mariners. and time to execute their Refolutions thereupon, du. ring which time, they might, if they pleased, get to their Ships, though not possibly by Land, because of the Hills, Woods and Rivers, yer by Water it is very probable they might: Let us therefore make a Raft with the Trees the River brings down as if on purpole, fince this last florm, and put our selves to Sea, I my felf will be one, who will be the reft? John Smith and two French men, who could fwim very well, deted to accompany him, and a Symerop, who was mell with Drake to have marched fixteen days by and, and if their Ships had been loft, that he and Company would always have liv'd among them, CT bien the Captain refused. Pedro was left behind, bete he could not Row: The Raft was fined and faft

1

d

14

D C-

h

C-

100

CB i4,

2

bound and a Sail made of a Bilker Sack, with an Oar shaped out of a young Tree for a Rudder to direct their course before the Wind.

At his going away he affured his Company, 'That if by God's help he once more fafely put aboard his foot in his Frigot, he would certainly get them all into her, in fpight of all the Spaniards in the Indies. In this manner they pur off to Sea, fitting always up to the waste in Water, and at every wave up to the arm pits : Having failed upon this Raft about fix hours their Ikins being much fretted with the heat of the Sun and the falt-water, they had fight of two Pinnaces coming toward them, whom Drake confidently affirmed to his three Companions were their own, & they were now out of all danger; but the Pinnaces not perceiving the Raft nor suspecting any such thing, were forced by the Wind and night, to run into thelter belind the Point, which the Captain seeing, & judging they would Anchor there, put his Raft ashoar, and ran by Land about the Point, where he found them, who joyfully took them all aboard: For Drake, to try their hafte, ran with all speed, as if pursued by the Enemy, which they rather believed, by seeing for few with him: Coming aboard, and they asking how his Company did, he coldly answered, Well, which, made them fear the worst, to remove which, and, free them from doubts, he took out of his bosom, a Quoit or wedge of Gold, & thank'd God his Voyage, was now made; telling the French their Captain was, lest behind much wounded with two of his Company, which yet should be no dammage to them. That night with much pains, they got to Rio Francisco, where they took the rest in with their Treasure, and made such Expedition, that by break of day they failed back to their Frigor, and from thence direally to their Ships, where the Captain divided the Gold and Silver by weight into two equal parts between the French and English. Fourteen days after, all things being fer in order and having taken out of the Ship all Necessaries for their Frigor, they reffored her to the Spaniards, whom they had kept aboard all this time, and then failed with the French Ship to the Cabezas, where Drake agreed with the Symerons, that twelve Englift, and fixteen of theirs should make another Adventure to discover the Country, and if possible to recover Teru the French Capiain, or at least to, bring away the Treasure they had hid in the Sands; John Oxnam, and Thomas Sherwel, were the Principal Leaders of the English, who were all fet ashoar at Rio Francisco, and no sooner landed, when a French man, who freely remained behind with his wounded Captain, having escaped the Spaniards Rage, came toward the Pinnace, and upon his Knees gave God Thanks that ever Drake was born, who no v beyond hope was his Deliverer; He declared, 'That within · half an hour after their Departure, the Spaniards overtook them, leizing on the Captain and his other Fellow, he only escaping by flight, by casting away 'all his Booty, with a Box of Jewels, rofly the faller from his Pursuers, but his Companion taking it up, was so overloaded therewith, that be could not efcape is he might otherwise have done; That he thought 'all the Silver they had hid was gone, near two thon-' fand Negroes and Spaniards having been there fince to dig and fearch for it. Notwithstanding this Report, the Men were sent thither, and found the Earth turned up for a Mile round about that place, yet for all this narrow fearch, their Labour was not quite loft, returning fafe with thirteen Bars of Silver and some Wedges of Gold, which they imbarqued without hindrance, and speedily return'd to their Frigot with much Joy:

2

y

0

N

h,

d,

1,

c.

25,

y he ch to ١,

by

It was now high time to think of returning home laving had their defired marks, was report Drawluded again to visit Rio Grand, in home of meeting the Vellal loaden with Victoria, was evich they transfer fufficient Provision to force them in the

VOYAGE

1

1

.

t

E

2

Ì

b

Voyage to England. The French who having their Shares, were formerly dismiss, being desirous to re turn to their own Gountry, and Drake as willing to discharge them, foreseeing their Ship could not escape the Spanlards if they lay lingring on the Coast, now meeting the English again were loath to leave them accompanying them as far as St. Bernards, and would have gone farther, but that they had notice the Fleet was ready to fet fail for Carthagena to Spain. At parting the English passed hard by Carthagena in fight of all the Fleet, with Sr. George's Flag in the main Top of their Frigot, and filk Streamers, and Am tients down to the Water, failing forward large Wind, within two Leagues of the River, being all low Land and dark Nigh; and a Frigot from Rio Grand passing by about two in the Morning they faluted them with their Shot and Arrows, and were anfwered in the same manner, but soon boarding them, they fet the Men ashoar, and took the Frigot, which was of twenty five Tun, loaden with Maiz, Heas, Hogs, and some Honey, which was very useful for their fick People: Next Morning, having put the Spaniards aland, in five days they arrived at Cabezas, where putting their Maiz ashoar, they stayed seven days, fitting and providing their two Prigots, plucking their Pinnaces to pieces, that the Symerons might have the Iron work, which they much value: Two days before their departure, Drake defired Pedro, and three of the Chief Symerons to go aboard his two Frigots, and take what they liked, to is were not abfolutely necessary for their Voyage to England, and the Captain presented them with several Silks and Line nen for their Wives. Whilst they were looking in the Trunks, the Cymeter Captain Tetu had given Drake, was raken out, which Pedro feeing, he valued it above all things in the World, yet doubting to alk it, lest the Captain should likewise prize it, he promised Francis Tucker a Wedge of Gold to move him about it, and offered the Captain four Wedges more, which he had hidden till another Voyage; Drake though onwilling to make such an Exchange, yet defirous to content him who had deserved so well, gave it him with many kind Expressions, who received it with fuch low that he affirmed, ' If he should give his Wi Children whom he loved dearly, in Lieu of could not sufficiently Recompense him, would present his KING therewith, whom he knew would make him a Great Man for the lake of this very Gift; Yet instead of this unvaluable Jewel, he obliged the Captain to accept the four pieces of Gold, as a pledge of his thanks and faithfulness to himduring Life: The Captain received it courteoully, but threw it into the common Stock, saying, 'That if they had not come to this place, they should never have attained such a valuable Commodity, and it was just, that those who bore part of the Charge in fetting him to Sea, should likewise enjoy their full Proportion of the Advantage at his Return.

1

2

0

L

0

),

0

1-

d

Je.

IÈ.

G K

, J

Thus with all manner of Kindness they took leave of the Symerons, and failing by Cape Anthony, came to the Havana, where they met with a small Bark, with two or three hundred Hides, which was of very much use to them in mending their Pumps and otherwise, which having lightned, they gave the Bark, as uscless, to the Owners, to carry them home; and returning to Cape Anthony, they landed, refreshing themselves with store of Turtles Eggs by day, and taking two hundred and fifty Turtles by Night, which being powdered and dried did them much fervice. There were at this time belonging to Carrhagena, Nombre de Dios, Rio Grand, Sancta Martha, Rio de Hacha, Venta Cruz, Veragua, Nicaragua, the Hondans and Jamaica, above two hundred Frigott, ione of an hundred and twenty, others of ten or twelve, but the Generality of Thirty or Forty Tun, ho all traded between Carthagena and Nombre de ios, most of which, during their about on those the the English rook, and some twice or thrice over, yet never burnt or funk any, unless they were fitted for Men of War against them; or lay to enfhare them. And of all the Spaniards taken in those Vesfels, they never hurt any when in their Power, but either presently dismiss them, or if retained some time too much care of them, both for Victuals and fecuring them, from the fury of the Symerons, as of and the danger of their discovering being over them at Liberty. They faw many firange Birds, Beafts, Fishes, Fruits, Trees and Plants, too long to infift on. Being now willing to end their Voyage, they finished it by failing from Cape St. Anthony directly home, even beyond their own expectation, the Captain defigning to touch at Newfound land for Water that they much wanted, which the Almighry provided for them, by sending great store of Rain water; So that in twenty three days they palsed from Cape Florida to the Isles of Scilley, and arrived at Plymouth on Sunday at Sermon time, Aug. 9. 1573. The News of Drake's return being speedily care ried into the Church, fo much surprized the People with defire and Joy to fee him, that few or none remained with the Preacher, all running out to observe the Bleffing of God, upon the dangerous Labours and

CHAP

Endeavours of Captain Francis Drake.

of they gave the

CREE

CHAP. IV.

Captain Drake with five Ships undertakes a Voyage round about the World, in 1577.

and sn prosecution thereof, arrives at Port St. Julian where he discovers a Conspiracy, for which a Gentleman of his Company was beheaded.

Aprain Drake having in his former Voyage had a View, and only a View of the South Atlannet Ocean, from the high Tree aforementioned, and from that very Time being very ambitious of failing con in an English ship; he retained this noble refolition within himself for some years, being partly presented by secret envy at home, and partly by aping himself to the publick Service of his Prince and norry in Ireland under the Earl of Effex, & otherwhere But in 1577 having a gracious Commission from his Soveraign, and Assisted with divers of his Ariends who were Adventurers with him, he fitted up five thips. I. The Pelican Admiral of a hundred Tuns, Francis Drake Captain General. 2. The Elizabeth Vice Admiral eighty Tuns, John Winter Captain. 3. The Marygold a Bark of eighty Tun, John Thomas Captain; 4. The Swan & Fly boat of Tuns, John Chefter Captain. 5. The Christopher a Pinnacciof fifteen Tuns, Thomas Moon Capand differing mann'd this little Fleet with a hundred and fischiffer able Men, and furnishe them with all necessary Provisions for so long and dangerous a Voyage, and stowing certain Pinnaces aboard in pieces the fee up on occasion, as in his former Voyage; carrying with him feveral Musicians for delight

The Pouger 401 Adjustitures

and sich Paratore of Silver for his Table; and Cook toom, with all force of Gurious Workmanship for Ornament, and to raise Admiration of the Cavility and Magnificence of his Native Country in other Nation where he came.

as appointed they failed out of Plymouth Sound Novemb. 15, 1577, about five in the afternoon, and next morning came to the Lizzard, where meeting contact Winds, they were all compell'd to put in Falmouth. Next day a great Storm arole, to that though they were in a good Harbour, yet the Admiral. wherein Drake was, and the Marigold were forc'd to cut their Main Mass by the Board, and oblig'd to return to Plymouth to repair, thirteen days after the Departure thences where having quickly supplied defects, they Decemb. 13. once more put to Sea wil better hopes. Being out of fight of Land, Drake gen fome intimation of his Defign, (which he had hither to concealed) both by the Course he failed and pointing their Rendezvouz, if separated by any Ac dent, to be the Isle of Mogadore; Sailing then with favourable Wind, Decemb. 25. being Christman Day, they had fight of Cape Cantin in Barbary, and of the high In-land Country, in Thirty Two Degr and Thirteen' Minures North Latitude, and coaff thence Southward about eighteen Leagues, they arrive that day at the Isle of Magadore, which is under the King of Fesse, and a good Harbour, being about a Mile from the main Land, uninhabited, and a League in Circuit, overgrown with thrubs, and full of Pidgeon and therefore much frequented by Gofhawks, an other Birds of Prey, with plenty of feveral form Sez-Fowl. Arthe South-fide are three hollow Rock under which are great flore of very ngly, yet wholesome Fish; sending a Boat to found the Harb all their Fleet came in Decemb. 27. and fraid all four days, ferting up one of their four Pinnace brought from home in pieces. The Inhabitants of Country foon perceived them, and made figus on a wherein two chief Moonwere received, and of their left in Exchange all their return; Drake at ed them very awilly about dhis Ship, presenting m with what they seem'd most to value, to then yearne in Peace and Friendship, to trade for the ick as their Country afforded according to a content, wherewith they feem'd much ple miling to return again the next day to exchange eir Goods for others: By their Law they ought to frink no Wine, being Turks in Religion, yet they will drink it very plentifully by stealth, as it now apared. Being carried alboar, they freely reflored Person left as a Pledge, returning with Camels it day at the hour appointed, as if loaden with for Exchange, and calling haftily for a Boat one fent by the General's order, before he went the Island; the Boat coming to a place of Land-mong the Rocks, one John Fry, suspecting no hery, readily Repr out of the Boat, to be a e at the day before, when those on the shoar inof serzing him, and others in ambush coming to Assistance, they speedily carried him away, the being plad to fair for themselves: The Cause of Violence, was to inform the Bing of Felle, whithis Ficer was bound, or fent from the King of mugal, or what Intelligence they could give him being brought into the King's Prefence and dering they were Englishmen bound for the Streights der General Drake, he was sent back with a Preto his Captain, and Offers of all Rindness and thip in that Country. Drake much diffurbed at binry, Landed his Men in his Pinnace, and and pre ty far up into the Country without relift. the Moors declining any Ingagement with hims making Provision of Wood, and visiting an old tormerly built by the Portugals but ruined by the Feffe, he departed Decemb. 31 . toward Cape to that when Fry came back, he to his me grice found the Fleet gone, wer by the Kings favour he was after fent home in an English Merchant Ship Meering with foul Weather they were detained fome. time, and the third day after fell with Cape de Guerre in thirty degrees, where they took three Span nith Fisher boats called Caunters, whom they carried to Rio del Oro, under the Teopiek of Cancer, and there took a Carvel. From hence, Jap. 15. they fail ed to Cape Barbas, where the Marigold took another Carvel; it lies in 20 degrees 30 minutes, low and landy, where they first observed the South Stars, cal. led the Crofiers, 19 degrees 30 minutes above the Horizon: In the Cape they took another Spanish Ship riding at Anchor, ( all her men but two being flee affrore in the Boat) whom with all the reft formerly taken they carried into the Harbour three League within the Cape. Here General Drake resolved to stay some time to refresh his Men with the plenty of fresh Victuals in this place, and to supply them at Sea, there being great flore of Fish easily taken, even within the Harbour and as good as any in the World : During their about here, the General being ashour, was visited by the Peop'e of the Country, who brought down a Moorile Woman, with her little Babe hanging at her dry Breaft, being scarce alive her felf, and therefore unlike to nourish that, whom they would have fold as a Horse or Cow, which Merchandize Drake not dealing in, they produced Amber Greife, and some curious Guess to exchange with the English for fresh Water, of which they have great want, and were willing to quench their Third at any price wharever, and to care Thethe, rest in their Leathern Bags for thir purpole Drake companionating their Uniappines, gave them feely what water they defired, and fed them with Their Ships being wash'd and trimm'd, and all their Specific Prizes Discharged, except the Causer, for loughfortie manney.

. Hina

Victuals, which they devoured in an inhumane and whi

of t

beio

he.

bli

INC hes

報道では

exp

er,

ELE

00

Le

600

n.

Vi

Tre

os

8 10

h

ful

0

To 10

h

which they gave the Fisherman the Christopher, one of their own Ships; And a Carvel bound for St. Tago seing here freed also: After fix days they failed for he Islands of Cape Verde, Jan. 22. where they were bliged to Furnish themselves plentifully with Water. face the General intended to run a long Course from hence, even to the Coast of Brazil, without touching and; and having the Wind generally North-Kaff, and 27. they coafted Bonavista, and next Day anchored at the Isle of May, in fifteen degrees, high Land, and inhabited by the Portugals, where Landing, and expeding to Traffick with the Inhabitants for fresh waer, they found in the Town near the Shoar only a reat many ruinous Houses, and a poor Chapel, but m People, nor Water, though within the Land there recough: The Springs and Wells here being floot mand no quantity of Water to be found, they marchd forward to feek for a Supply, finding the Soil fruitpland plenty of Fig-Trees with fruit thereon, and n the Valleys were little low Cottages, with pleasant Vineyards, yielding excellent Grapes; also Coco frees, Plantains, and other Fruits, some ripe, some osten, and others bloffoming, and this in January, ceause the Sun never with-draws its heat from them. nor have they ever any great Cold or Frost. They found good Water in divers places, but fo far from the shoar, hey could not convey it to their Ships, the People refuling any Conference with them, securing themselves the sweet Vallyes among the Hills where their Towns were, and fuffering them freely to furvey the fland, fince they were like to receive more Damage han Profit to offer Violence to those who came peacebly among them. This Island yields vast numbers of Gord, and wild Hens, and Sait made without Labour, which naturally produceth a great quantity thereof, openly upon the Sands for all that come, and berewith the People drive a great Trade with the Procto Iflands.

Sailing hence, Jan. 30. they paffed next day. the Ifle of St. Jago, ten Leagues West of May in fame Latitude, inhabited both by Moors and Por ruefs, occasioned by the cruelty of the Porsugals to wards their Slaves, which was so intollerable that n fled from their Mafters to the Hilly Parts of the Ha and their number encreasing by the Escapes they da made, grew at length to formidable, that they are no a terror to their Oppressors, from whom they receive daily Injuries either in their Goods or Cattel, and has loft a great part of that large and fruitful Ifle, which a Relief to all Ships bound for Brafil, Guinea or the Raft-Indies, being also of great Strength, were it in for the cause aforesaid, which hath much abated Pride of the Portugals, who under pretence of Tra and Friendship, excluded the first Planters thereof both from Government, Liberty and almost Life South Well of this Isle they took a Portugal Ship Is den with Wine, flore of Linnen and Woollen Clon and other Goods bound for Brafil, with many GEN TLEMEN aboard: As they went hence, three Towns in fight of them fhot off two great Guns into the Sta, either for Joy of their departure, or to the they were provided to entertain them, and were at fivered with one from the Fleet. South-West about twelve Leagues hence, yet for its height not feemin above three, lies Fogo, a burning Island, or fiery Ful nace, wherein rifes a fleep Hill, thought at least eigh teen English Miles high, belching out great and dis mal flames of fire from the top, almost every quart of an hour, that in the Night it gives light like the and feems to reach the very Heavens; It thros great Stones, which falling into the Sea are Pumice flones; The reft of the Island is peopled Portugals, who live happily therein.

Two Leagues hence, lies another (west and pleasant Island, alled Brava, the Trees always green, and is almost planted all over with Trees and Fruits, Figs, Coco's, Plantains, Oranges, Lemmons, Cotto and the like with fireams of fresh water running into the Sea, and easily taken up by Boats and Pinnaces; but there is no Road nor Anchoring for Ships, no ground being to be found by the longest Line, so that the Sea it thought to be as deep as Fogo is high. They found only one Hermit inhabiting this Island, nor saw my House but his, who delighted so much in solitariates that he fied from them, leaving behind the Releast of his Worship, that is, a Cross, a Erucius, an Altar, with another above it, and certain Images of Wood, of rude Workmanship. They here discharged the Portugals taken near St. Jago, giving them a new Pinnacce built at Mogadore, initiate of their old Ship oth Victuals and Provisions.

Furnisht with fresh water at Cape Verde, Feb. 2. they directed their course towards the Streights of Maellane, to go through into the South Sea, failing fixty three days without fight of Land, passing the Equiiodial Line, Feb. 17. and fell with the Coaft of Bra-April 5. during which long passage on the vast Ocean; having nothing but Sea below, and Heaven. bave, they saw and experienced the goodness of Dine Providence, in making ample Provision for them their wants; and though they oft met with contrary Winds, and Storms, unwelcome Calms, and burning eats in this Torrid Zone, with the terrours of dread-Il Thunder and Lightning, yet they could not but the notice, that not having been thoroughly furnished th water fince they came from England, till they fived at the River of Plate long after, yet for fevendays together their necessities were conflantly by Rain water; neither was their Fleet (now umber) ever disperst, nor lost Company, exe Portugal Prize for one day only, which yet. discouraged them, having the greatest part of Drink aboard her, & was therefore found again much foy, fince her miscarriage might ha the whole Voyage. Among many it they particularly observed the Fl

as a Pilchard, whose Fins are as long as his Body an ferve for Wings, when he is chased by the Bonero great Mackrel (whom the Dolphin likewise pursues) for when weary of swimming, he lifts up himself abou water, and flies pretty high, falling fomerimes in Vessels that fail by. The Fins are so curiously placed as might serve for a longer and higher flight, did no their drypeis after ten or twelve ftrokes hinder the motion, and force them into the water to moife them: Their increase is wonderful, their young One lying upon the water in the Sun as dust on the Earth. where, when no bigger than a Wheat ftraw they im ploy themselves both to fly and swim, and were they not so numerous would foon be destroyed bo ther many Enemies; for by flying into the Air to cleape one, they oft meet death from another Adversary the Spurkite, a ravenous Fowl, who feeding on Fish, leizen on them in their flight, and makes great deffruction among them. There is another fort called the Cuttle fish, whose bones are used by Gold-smiths, a multitude falling oft at once into their Ships amongst their Men Sailing thus, with as much pleasure as if in a Garden, in beholding the excellent works of the Eternal God in the Seas, April 5, they fell on the Coast of Brasil in a I degrees of South Latitude, and being descrived by the Inhabitants, they faw great Fires in divers places which they understood were made for Sacrifices to the Devil, wherein they use many Ceremonies and Conjurations, by casting up great heaps of Sand, that if any Ships stay on their Coasts, their Evil Spirits may defiroy them, whereof the Portugals had experience, by lofing several Ships. Magellatte in his Voyage, report they pray to nothing, but are absolutely barbard but, it feems they are much altered fince his Ti falling from natural Creatures to make Gods of Devil yet it may be, they being then a free people, had occasion to practile this wickedness; but being now i milerable flavery to the Portugals, as to Body, Goods, Wives and Children, and forc'd by their Cruelties into future,

the barren parts of their Countrey, chusing rather to harve and linger out a wretched Life there, than endure such intolerable Bondage; they may now use these Practices with the Devil, to be reveng'd of their oppressors, and to prevent their surther entrance into their Countrey, and judging the English to be some of their Enemies, they used the same Inchantments painst them, yet without effect; for though they had breat storms on these Coasts, they received to damage, only April 7. a Violent Tempest and South Wand directly against them, separated one of their Ships for a while, from the rest of the Fleet.

Reeping on their Course South, April 14th. they passed by Cape St. Mary, in thirty five degrees near he River of Place, and came to an Anchor in a place which their. General named Cape Joy, because here the Christopher, that was seperated, came to them again. Healways took special care to keep his Fleet as much peffible together, to be well furnishe with fresh Water, and to refresh his Men as oft as he could; and therefore at Cape Verde he gave publick notice, that that the next Rendezvonz (if dispersed) & place of waering should be the River of Plate; and accordingly here joyned, and were supplied with all convemencies, the Air of this Countrey being pleasant and temperate, and the Soil fruitful, flored with plenty of arge and mighty Deer. April 16. They failed twelve leigues farther to a more commodious Harbour, elpecally against the South-winds, where they killed divers Seals or Sea wolves ( so called by the Spaniards ) which came to the Rocks in great numbers, they were d Meat and a seasonable supply for the suture. al 20, they failed farther up the River, and rode tresh water, but stayed not because of the danger he Winds and Rocks, and having spent a fortnight te to their great resteshment, April 27, they went Sea again, and that very night the Swan their Flyt, loft Company, and foon after by another florm-Caunter was missing; to prevent which for the future, the General resolved to diminish the num of his Ships, that they might the better keep compa and have more supplies of Provision and Men, el cially fince it was now Winter in these parts, and the Seas subject to terrible Tempests, and therefore sou our a convenient Harbour for this purpole. May they anchored in a place not very commodious, who yet he called Cape-Hope; but seeming to promise go Harbourage, Drake, who never trufted any but h own Eyes in dangers, went next day in a Boat into Bay, and being near the Shoar, one of the Inhabitan appeared feeming to fing and dance very pleafantly the poise of a Rattle he had in his hand, earnestly of peding their Landing; upon which there inftant role fo thick a Mift and Fog, with fuch an extraord nary Storm, that Drake being three Leagues from h Ship, thought best to return, and not venture i Land; but the Fog much increasing, he could not le where his Ship lay, and was hereby in much dange when Capiain Thomas gallantly adventured into the Bay, and finding him out, joyfully received him into the Ship, where they rid fafely; but those that lar without, were so furiously affaulted by the Temper that to fecure themselves, they were forced to go to Sea, the Caunter formerly loft, now coming in them. Next day, May 14. 1578. the Weather being calm, and the Fleet out of fight, General Drake now in the Marigold went alhoar, and made fires to direct them to come together again into the Road, whereby at last they all returned, except the Swan, lost long before, and the Portugal Prize the Mary, who was not found a great while after.

0.

4

L Y

In this place the People flying into the Country for fear of them, they found in Houses built near the Rocks, to that purpose, at least fifty dried Offriches and much other Fowl drying, which they dry here and after carry to their dwellings: The Offriches Thighs were as big as a common Leg of Mutton; they cannot flie, but run so swift, that they can neither be graken, nor flot at. They found the Tools whereth the Natives take them, and among others a large me of Feathers at the end of a flat, the fore part the Head Neck and Body of an Offrich, spreadvery broad, behind which they go stalking, and ve them into some Neck of Land near the Sea. ere spreading long and strong News, they have Dogs feize on them. This Conntry feems very pleaand fruitful, and at their return that way, the lish became familiarly acquainted with the People much rejoyced at their Friendship, and that they not harmed them. But the place not being conment for providing Wood, Water, and the like, they parted thence May 15. and failing South-West, fell a very uleful Bay, where they staid fifteen days. hence the General fent Captain Winter in the aboth Southward, to feek for two Ships that were ming, himself going North upon the same account, happyly met with the Swan the same day, and nging her into Harbour, being unloaden, the was en up, and made fire-wood, the Iron work and necessaries being saved, but could hear no News he other. fier some stay here, being ashoar in an Island nigh

lay et a o

ing

OW

eby

ong vot

19

hes hey be Main Land, and from whence at Low-Water they it go over afoot; the Inhabitants appeared leaping, ling, holding up their hands, and making Outles after their manner; but it being then higher, the General sent them by a Boat some Knives, ils, Bugles, and other things he thought would ask them; upon which getting together on a Hill if a Mile from the shoar, two of their Company came wn swittly though with a great grace, such as they in times of War; but drawing nigh, they made a dispon which the English, tying the things to the street a reasonable distance; being departed, came and took the things, leaving instead there such Feathers as they wore on their Heads, a bone carved like a Toom pick, fix Inches long, and near burnished; whereupon the General, with dive Gentlemen, went over to them, they ftill remain on the Hill placed in a rank, one of them running fro one end to the other, East and West, with his han over his head, and his body inclining towards the fing and ferting Sun, and ar every third turn he ered himself, vailting in the Air against the middle of rank toward the Moon, fignifying (as they though That they called the Sun and Moon (whom they we hipped as Gods) to witness they meant nothing in wards them but Peace; but perceiving the Engli came apace forward, they feemed fearful; to preve which, the General and his Company retired, wh fo confirmed them they were no Enemics, that div came down after them without fear, and traded w them, but would receive nothing from them till its first cast on the ground: The word them used for I change was Zustus, and Toyt, to throw it on t ground: If they difliked any thing, they cryed, Com Coroh, with rathing in their Throat: Their Go were Arrows made of Reeds, Feathers and the Bot aforementioned. They go naked, except only a about their shoulders, when they fit or lye in Cold, but at other times it is as a Girdle about the Loins: Their Hair is very long, which to prev trouble, they knit up with a Roll of Offrich Feather and serves them for a Quiver for their Arrows, and Store-house for what they carry about them: The of Quality, - wear a large plain Feather on each fi their heads; feeming afar off like Horns; fo that Head thus trim'd upon a naked Body, resemble Devil with Horns.

Their chief Bravery confiss in Painting their Bod with divers Colours, with such Works as they fant some wash their Faces with Sulphur, or the like on paint their whole bodies black, leaving only the Necks round about white, and shew like Lance we black Gowns and naked Necks; some paint one she er black, and another white, and likewise their Legs ring white Moons on the black part, and black on he white, being the Marks of the Gods they adore: by this continual painting, the Pores of their Bodies re fo closed, that they never feel any cold; they are kong, comely, swift and active, and are much to be mented, that being of tractable natures, and in an reellent Soil, they are ignorant of the Worship of e True Cod; for though they never knew in Chrisans before, yet they foon became so familiat, that hey seem'd rather willing to serve, and do them all ood Offices, than offer any Injury: The General belowing a Cap off his head on one of their Chiefs, he oing at a small distance, suddenly pierced his Leg ceply with an Arrow, fo that the blood fireaming it he thereby fignified his unfeigned Love to him, nd was a Covenant of Peace between them; they kie about fifty Persons, who thus frequented their ompany. In the South part of this Bay, is a River fresh water, and several Islands full of Seals, Birds fowls, sufficient to maintain a multitude of Peoof which they killed some with Shot and Staves, d took many Birds with their Hands, they lighting on their heads and shoulders. They saw no Boar Canon used by the Natives, to come to these isles, owo Provision seemed to be raw Flesh & Fish, fy finding pieces of Seals all bloody, which they gnawn with their Teeth like Dogs. They are all med with a Bow an Ell long, and Arrows of Reeds aded with Flints very exactly. This Bay they naed Seal Bay for the plenty of them found here, kills ne two hundred in an hours time. Sufficiently provided with all necessaries, they spited nce June 12. Southward, and Anchored two days alittle Bay, where they discharged and laid up the notes of Christopher, and June 14. arrived at anor et Bay; inififry Degrees twenty Minutes South latit e, and within one Degree of the Mouth of the oghis, through which lay their defired passage to the South-Sea. Here the General rurued his Com Northerly, in hope of finding his Ship and Frien loft in the great Storm, fince if they should pass the Streights without them, both might be much discon forted: So that, June 18. putting again to Sea, will hearty prayers to 3od for success, they ran back to ward the Line, and the next night, near Port St. Ja lian, had fight of their Ship, and the day after, the whole Fleet entred joyfully into that Port, to refirm refresh the Ship and the wearled Men. St. Julian in forry nine degrees thirty Minutes, being a very con venient Harbour, having many Islands within it. Com ing now to an Anchor, and all things made fafe, the General, with his Brother and five others, (according to his usual care and diligence on such occasions) row ed further into the Bay in a Boat, to find out for convenient place for fresh Water and Provisions, durin their flay; and were no fooner landed, when two of the Natives vifited them, called by Magellane Pentacoun for their huge stature and strength, who seemed much to rejoyce at their Arrival, familiarly receiving whe ever the General gave them, and much pleased to it Oliver the Mafter Gunner shoot an English Arrow trying to out floot him, but came nothing near him Soon after, another arrived, who seemed angry at the Civility of his Fellows, and strove earnestly to make them become Enemies, which General Drake of furpedting, used them as before; when Mr. Winn thinking also to shoot an Arrow, that he who can last might see it, the string of his Bow broke, which being before their Terrour, did now encourage the to contrive Treachery against them, not imaginal their Guns and Swords were Weapons of War, therefore as they were quietly returning to the Boat, these Villains suddenly discharged their Arro at their backs, aiming chiefly at him who had Bow, and not suffering him to string it again, wounding him in the thoulder, who turning about, Gor with an Arrow through the Lungs, yet fell of

h

ha

ne

ec

Ner

he)

igh

Sta

he ies

M en

Oic

Epo

the Gunner being ready to shoot off his Musker, hich took not fire, was flain out-right. In this exemity, their expert General gave Order, that no an should keep any certain Ground, but shifting laces, and defending themselves with their Targets, fould approach these Monsters, and break all the Arows shot at them, knowing when they were spent, bey should subdue them at pleasure; with this wise surfe, and by shooting off the Piece the Gunner could othire, the General killed the Author of the Quarrel, tho flew the Gunner; for the Mulket being charged with a Bullet and Hail-shot, tore out his belly and his with much torment, as it seemed by his roaring, thich was so horrid and hideous, as if ten Bulls had ellowed at once. This fo discouraged his Companions, hat though divers others appeared out of the Woods affift them, yet they were glad to fly, and suffer the lighth quietly to depart; which they the rather did, ecause of Mr. Oliver, who was wounded, and whomde General dearly loved, and would rather have faed, than flain an hundred Enemies; but being paft ecovery, he died two days after he was brought award. Next day the General in his Boat, well armed, tentagain ashore to bring off the Gunners Body, which hey found lying where it was left, only stript off its pper Garment, with an English Arrow stuck in his ight Eye. Both the dead Bodies were laid in one five, with such decency and reverence, as becomes he Tabernacles of Immorral Souls, and such Ceremoies as Souldiers in time of War deserve.

Magellane was not altogether deceived in calling tem Gyants, fince they differ so much from other len in stature, strength, and the hideousness of their loice; yet are they not so monstrous as the Spaniards sported, some English Men being sull as tall as any try saw; but not imagining any English would ever there, it encouraged them boluly to write such that their name Pentagones, or sive Cubits, that even foot and an half, giving their true height, for many not so large; but certainly the Cruelties a against them, have made them more Monstrous their Manners than Bodies, which being told from their to Son, has created such an inveterate hatred them against Strangers, that upon all occasions the seek revenge upon them; yet they seemed to repethe wrong offered to the English, suffering them continue there peaceably two Months after, and meanife them to be kinder to others that happen in their Country.

To this Mischief from Infidels, another greaters of far worfe Consequence, was like to have fallen among themselves, had not Divine Providence um discovered and prevented it, whereby the innoc Blood of their General, and his most faithful Frie might have been treacherously shed, and the wh Action thereby overthrown. This defign was laid fore their coming from England, and of which G neral Drake had a full Account in his Garden at mouth, but he could never believe that a Person wh he so dearly affected, and had so extreamly obli world contrive any Evil against him, and there continued his Favours to this suspected Person, increased them so, as to make him his most intin and bosom Friend, giving him the second plan his Company in his presence, and leaving him the duct of his whole Affairs in his absence, imparting him all his Secrets, and allowing him free Libert all reasonable things; yea, bearing with his m Weaknesses and Infirmities, scorning that any pri Injuries should break that firm Friendship he Contracted with him, and was therefore offended those, who from Duty discovred his daily Contri ces to destroy the whole Enterprize; But the ral being at length convinc't of his Falfhood, and Lenity would do no good, fince the hear of his a tion could not be allayed, but by the Murde Blood of his Captain and Companions, his Pra growing daily more dangerous, he resolved to que him before it was too late; Therefore fielt feening him he called all the Commanders and Gentlemen of his Company together, to whom he gave an account of the good parts in this Gentleman, and of the Brotherly tonderness he had always shewed towards him ever fince his first Acquaintances and then delivered them the Letters he had received from feveral Persons who much doubted his Fidelity, and that not only at Sea but at Plymouth, not only by bare words, but Writings under the Gentleman's own hand; yea, feveral unworthy Actions committed by him, tending to the overthrow of the Voyage in hand, and the Murdering the General's Person. For all which so many full and evident Proofs were produced, that the Gendeman himself firuck with Remorfe for his inconfiderate and unkind dealings, freely acknowledged himself worthy of Death; yea, of many Deaths, fince he not only defigned the ruin of the Action, but of the principal Actor likewife, not of a ftranger or Enemy to him, but of a true and Real Friend; and therefore openly befought the whole Affembly, who had power to administer Justice, to prevent him from being his own Executioner, by condemning him to a deserved death.

This discourse rais'd Admiration & Astonishment in all present; especially, in his nearest Friends and dearest Acquaintance; but none was so much assected as the General himself, who unable to conceal his Affection, withdrew, requiring them when they had throughly heard and considered the whole Matter, to give such Judgement as they would be answerable for to their Prince, but especially to Almighty God, the Righteous Judge of all the Earth; whereupon all of them, being forty of the Principal Persons in the whole sleet, after they had maturely discuss the business, and freely heard what any of his Friends could alledge on his behalf, gave this Sentence under their flands and Seals, 'That this Gentleman had deserved beast and that it did by no means consist with their filety and that it did by no means consist with their filety.

D a

to let him live, remitting the Manner and Circum-

flances thereof to the General himself.

This Tribunal was held in one of those Islands in the Port of St. Julian, which was after, in Memory hereof, called the Island of True Juffice and Judgemear. After this Verdict was given to the General, to whom the Queen had committed the Sword of Justice, for the fafety of himfelf and Company, with this Expresfion, 'We do account that he which strikes at thee Drake, ffrikes at us: He called the Guilty Person, to whom was read the sforefaid Verdict, which he acknowledged most just, none giving a more severe Sentence against him than himself; the General then propoled to him this threefold Choice, 'Whether he would be executed in this Island; Or be set ashoar on the Main Land; Or else return into England. and Answer his Crimes before the Queen and her Council: He gave humble Thanks to the General for this undeserved Clemency, and defired time till near day to confider what to chase; which granted, on the Morrow he gave this Refult, 'That though in his Heart he had conceived fo great a Sin, and for which he was justly condemned, yet his chiefest Care and concern was to dye a Christian, that what ever became of his Morral Body, he might remain · affured of an evernal inheritance in a far better Life; That if he were fer a Land among Infidels, he much doubted whether he should be able to continue stedfaft in the Faith, confidering his own Frailty, and the great contagion of leud Custom; And therefore he earnestly intreated the General, 'That he would have a special regard to his Soul, and not indanger it samong Heathenish and Savage Infidels, That if he hould return to England, he must have a Ship with Men and Victuals to conduct it; and if he had thele e yet he thought none would willingly Accompany him with fo fad and bafe a Message, and leave such be nourable Service as they were now in; but if h could find such who would be persuaded to go back with him, yet the very fname of his return would be grievous, yea, worse than Death to him, fince he should dye so often, and be so long a dying: He therefore protested, 'That freely and with all his heart, he embraced the Generals sirst Proposal of being executed there, desiring only the savour, that they might receive the Holy Communion together; once before his death, and that he might dye the death of a Gentleman.

Though divers persuaded him to chuse any of the other ways, yet he was resolute in his determination; and his two last Requests being granted, he received the Communion from Mr. Francis Fletcher, Preacher to the Fleet, the General himself communicating with this Condemned penitent Gentleman, who gave great assurance of a contrite and repenting heart, feeming more angry with his own Act, than any elfes After this, the General and he Dined together as cheese fully and soberly as ever in their Lives, Comforting one another, and drinking each to other, as if going some Journey; Dinner ended, and all being prepared by him who acted as Provoft Marshal, he appeared very seriously, and kneeling down, at once prepared his Neck for the Axe, and his Spirit for Heaven without diffurbance, as having already digeffed the whole Tragedy in his own Mind, defiring the Spectators to pray for him, and bidding him do his Office without fear or favour : Having thus by his worthy Demeanor at his Death, fully obliterated all the faults of his Life, he left to the rest a lamentable Example of a worthy Gentleman, who in striving to rife before his Time, lost himself, and is a Monument to Posserity, of the Common Fate of such ambitious minds. And one thing very remarkable may be adod. That fifty eight years before, another Gentlean imployed in the like Service, and entertained ingreat truft, was executed in the very same place; the English found a Gibbet on the Main Land, lade of a Spruce Mast fallen down, with Mens Bones

Magellane in 1520. for executing John Carthagena, Cozen to the Bishop of Burgos, who by the King of Spain's Order, was joined in Commission with Magellane, and made his Vice-Admiral: As they digged a Grave in the Island, to bury this Gentleman, they sound a great Grind-stone broken in the middle, which they set in the Ground, one part at the head, and the other at the seer, whereon they graved the Name of the Person their buried, the Time of their Departure, and their General's Name in Latin, for a Memorial to those that should come hither afterward.

CHAP. III.

Captain Drake in pursuance of his Voyage round the World, passeth through the Streights of Magellane into the South Sea, where he meets with a terrible Tempest for sifty two days together, and loses Company of two of his Ships. Being left alone, he proceeds towards the Coast of Peru, and gets a prodigious quantity of Gold, Silver and Jewels.

THIS Tragedy thus ended, the General broke up the Mary, the Portugal Prize being leaky and troublesome, leaving her Ribs and Keel on the Island, where for two Months they pitched their Tents, and having wooded, watred, and trimm'd their Ships which were now reduced to three, (besides the Pinnages) to keep the easier together, and to be beste provided and mann'd upon all occasions. Aug. 17 the ailed out of this Poet, and with much hope directors.

he

0

t

k

to

th

fu

fo

I

ra

their Course for the Streights, South-West. Aug. 20. They fell with a Cape nigh the Entrance, called by the Spaniards CapeVirginia Maria, appearing like Cape Vincent in Portugal, with steep Cliffs and black Stars; against which the Sea beating seems like the Spouring of Whales: Here the General caused his Fleet to firike their Top fails in honour of the Queen, and to acknowledge her absolute Right in this New-Discovery; Changing also the Name of his Ship from the Pellican to the Golden Hind, in remembrance of his honourable Friend Sir Charles Hatton, when after a Sermon and Prayers for the QUEEN, and the whole Realm of England, they entred the Streights, having fight of the Land on both fides, which at length grew very sarrow, with many Windings; after which they feemed to come out of a River, two Leagues broad, into a large and open Sea, and the Night following faw a Burning Island, much like Fogo in height, and flaming without intermission. It was formerly thought, that the Corrent in this Streight ran always one way, but they found the Ebb and Floud, and the Water rifing fire Fathoms upright, as on other Coasts,

Aug. 24. being Bartholomew Day, they fell with three Islands lying triangular, one very large and truitful, where the Weather being calm, the General and fome of his Company went ashoar and took possession thereof in the Queens Name, calling it Elizabeth Island; And though the other two were not so large. yet they were very useful to them for the great store of strange Birds found there, they could not fly, but can fo fast as some times to escape; they are somewhat than a Goose, short and thick, without Feathers, only had marted Down, with Bills like Crows; W lay their Eggs, and breed their Young in the d like Rabbits, and live on what they catch in being very swift swimmers both to get their and fecure themselves from others: They came in such vast numbers, that they killed three din one day, and are wholelome Bood. They

CI

fo

T

m

H

W

20 th

20

DC

fe

af

出出 ki

te

G

n

(1

D

to 9

b

tl

6

to

b

named one of these Islands Bartholomew, according to the day, and the other Sr. George, in Honour England, wherein they found the Body of a Man a most rotten. From hence to the entrance of the South Sea, the Passage is very crooked, so that the oft met with contrary Wieds, being many-time forc'd to alter their Course; and though (as Magel lane faith) there be many good Harbours, and flore of fresh Water, yet they had need be well furnish? with Cables and Anchors to find Ground in them The Land on both fides is very high and Mountainous having on the North and West the Continent of Ame rica, and on the South and East, nothing but Island, among which lye innumerable passages into the South. The Mountains rise into the Air with val lofty Spires, inviron'd with Clouds and Snow, which fill increaseth their heighth, the Sun having little power to diminish them, so that they may be reckon'd among the Wonders of the World; yet there are many low fruitful Valleys full of Grass and Herds of very strange Creatures feeding therein. The Tree are almost always Green, the Air Temperate, the Water pleasant, and the Soil agreeable to any Grainof our Country, and indeed wanting nothing to make an happy Region, but the Peoples Knowing and Worshipping the True God: They made Fires as they pas'd in divers places.

Drawing nigh the Entrance of the South Sea, they had such shuttings up Northward, and such open passages to the South, that lying at an Anchor under an Island, the General went in a Boat to make surther discovery, and having sound a convenient way toward the North, in their return they met a Canoo with divers Persons in her; she was made of the Barks of Trees, with a Prow and a Stern standing up, and bending inward like an Half Moon, of excellent shape and Workmanship, and Built with so much Judgment and Art, that she seemed fit for the pleasure of a Prince, rather than the use of such a rude and barbaron barbarous People; the seams were not closed nor caulked, but only flitch'd with Thongs of Seal-skin fo very close, that they received little or no water. The People are of a well fet mean flature, delighting much in painting their Faces like the other, and had a House within the Island, built with Poles, and covered with skins of Beasts, wherein there was fire, water, and fuch Victuals as they can get, as Seals Mulfels and the like: The Vessels wherein they keep their Water and Drink are of Wood like their Canoos, and very neat, which they cut with Knives made of huge Muffel-shells, ( the Fish being good savoury meat ) which after they have broken off the thin Edge, they grind and temper so hard upon stones, that it will easily cut the hardest wood, and whereof they make Fisgiggs to kill Fish with admirable dexterity.

Sept. 6. They left these troublesome Islands, and entred the South Sea, or Mare del Zur, the General defigning to have gone ashoar at the Cape, and afterSermon to have left a perpetual Monument of the Queen (which he had prepared) thereon; but they could find no Anchoring, neither would the Wind permit them toftay. They found the Streight was in about fifty degrees, a hundred and fifty Leagues long, and ten broad at the entrance; after not above a League, and then larger again, and at the end no Streight at all, but only Islands. The General perceiving that the Cold Winter had impaired some of his Men, resolved to have haftened toward the Line, and the warm Sun, but it pleased God to disappoint him: For Sept. 7. the second day after their entrance into this Peaceable but to them now Furious Sea, a terrible Tempett arose with such Violence, that they had little hope of ccaping: And though Sept. 15. the Moon was Eupled in Aries, and three parts darkned, which ight feem to promise some change of Weather, yet brought them no Relief; but they continued in a ferable condition full fifty two days together, and fe furious and extraordinary flaws continuing, or rather increasing, caused the forrowful seperation of Captain John Thomas in the Marygold, from the Flee Sept. 30. at night, whom they never met again, though they still hoped to have found them on the Coasis of Peru, toward the Equinocial, the Randezvouz ap. pointed by the General, the being well provided with necessaries, and an able Captain with skilfuland sufficient Mariners, From Sept. 7. when the flow began, to Octob. 7. they could not possibly recover Land, being driven to thirty seven degrees of South Latitude, when entring with a forry Sail into a Hanbour, fomewhat Northward of that Cape of America aforenamed, in hope to enjoy some quiet till the form was ended, they were again affaulted with h cruel a flaw, that the Admiral with the fury thereof left her Anchor behind, and in departing, lost fighted the Elizabeth their Vice Admiral, either through nesligence, or the earnestness of some within her, to be cased of these Troubles, and at home again, as they as ter understood. For the very next day, Octob, 8. recovering the Mouth of the Streights again, they returned the same way, and Coasting Brasil, arrived in England, June 2. the year following: So that now the Admiral's Ship might well have retained her former name, being like a Pellican alone in this Wildernes of Waters; and though the General diligently fought the rest of his Fleet, yet he could not gain the least Intelligence of them.

d

y

0

1

1

Cloud

From this Bay of parting Friends, they were for cibly driven back to fifty five degrees, & ran in among the Islands aforementioned on the South of America where the passage was very large, and continued here quietly two days, finding divers wholesom Herks, and fresh Water, whereby the Men, weak and impaired, began to recover, especially by drinking of an Here like Penny-Leaf, which gently purging, much refresh their wearied fickly Rodies. But the Winds then again return d to their former Fury, it seeming as if the Bowels, of the Earth had been fet at liberty, and all the

0

1

it

ft

4,

I¢

d

Clouds under Heaven furnmoned together into one place, the Seas by nature heavy, being now rould up from the depths of the Rocks like a Parchment, and carried aloft into the Air, like Snow by the violence of the Winds, to the tops of those lofty Mountains; their Anchors (like false Friends) for faking their hold-fast, and seeming to hide themselves, and shrink to the bottom, to avoid the horrour of this woful Tempeft, leaving the diffressed Ship and Men to the uncertain fouling Seas, which toffed them even like a Tennis-Ball. In this extremity it fignified nothing to let fall more Anchors, fince the Depth was fo immensurable, that five hundred Fathom would reach no Ground, so that the inveterate and continual Rage of the Sea, the impossibility of Anchoring, or of spreading a Sail, the dingerous Rocks and Shelves, the difficulty of coninuing there, the inevitable Peril of getting out; in. fort, the woful Calamities wherewith they were encompassed on every side, afforded them very little hope of escaping utter destruction, had not Divine Providence supported their finking Spirts, it seeming as tikely that the Mountains should have been rent in funder, from the Top to the Bottom, and thrown head-long into the Sea by these prodigious Winds, as that the help of all the Men in the World could have fived any of their Lives: Yet that God of Mercy, who delivered Ionah out of the Whales Belly, whom not only Winds and Seas, but even Devils themselves, and the Powers of Hell obey, who hearkens to the Prayers and Tears of all that fincerely call upon him in diffres, even he look'd down and delivered them, so that, extept the fear and aftonishment at their danger, they received no damage in any thing that belonged to them much a dreadful Tempest, as the like is not recorded in any History finice Noah's Flood.

The florm being somewhat allayed, they run in gain among those Islands, from whence they were tely driven, not far from their former Anchoring, oping now at length for some Peace and Security

there

there, especially fince they saw the Natives going from one Island to another in their Canoos, both Men, Wo men, and young Infants hanging at their Mothers backs, to get a Livelihood by Trading with Chainsof certain shells and other trifles. Having had a breath. ing time here for three days only, which they imployed in providing what they wanted, though with much trouble and danger from the Tempest not quite stilled, when behold, it again recovered its former Rage with much more violence, driving them from their Anchors, and affaulting them in all Quarters a once, and at length chafing them to the utmost Land toward the South Pole, even to fifty fix degree. beyond which no Continent nor Island is to be seen but the Atlantick Ocean and South Sea met freely and openly. Some have Imagined these Islands were Main Land, and called them Terra Incognita, or, the Unknown World, wherein were very firange Monfters; which they faw to be altogether falle, as likewife the common Opinion of the Imposibility of returning our of the South into the West Ocean, because of the strong Currents and Winds, since the met with neither, but were oft in danget of being driven back, as well as in going forward, & many times were forced to alter their Course, losing more sometimes in one afternoon, than they could recover again in a whole day with a Reasonable Gale; and since the Narrowness of the Passage is reckoned the Cause of this Swift Current, they now observed that the Passages thorow were innumerable, and Southward of thek Mands there is a large and Main Sea.

Coming to the utmost part of these Islands, Oct. 28, the storm ceased, and all their Calamities, except the absence of their Priends, were forgotten; as if God had secretly intended they should make this discovery and did then stay his hand, and refresh his Servants In these Somherly parts, the Night, in the latter end of October was but two hours long. There are sew of these Islands but are inhabited, and live after the same

th

te

et

M

at

of

eı,

es. cly

CIE CIE

ke-

re-

be-her

dri.

vere es in n a

the se of

ager hefe

.28.

t the God

very ants

end

WO

amo

manner as those afore-named. The General gave one Name to them all, calling them Elizabethides. After two days, Octob. 30. they failed North-west along the Coasts of Peru, hastening to the heighth of thirty degrees, being the place appointed for the Fleet to reaffemble, and to feek for them in the mean time. In this Course they next day met with two Islands stored with Birds, of which they made plentiful provision, from whence, Novemb. 1. they steered North-west as formerly, but foon found the mistake of the Maps, in describing the Latitude of those Coasts. This part of Peru to Lima, twelve degrees South, is Mountainous and Barren, without either Water or Wood, exept in some few places inhabited by the Spaniards; and not hearing of their ships, they Anchored Novemb. 15. at a great Island called Mucho by the Spamards for its largeness, very fruitful of Sheep and other Cattle, stored with Maiz, Potatoes, and other Roots, and thought to be wonderful rich in Gold. wanting nothing fit for theuse of Man. The Inhabitants are those Indians, who by the horrid severities of the Spaniards have been driven from the Continent to secure and fortifie themselves there. With this People General Drake thought fit to Traffick for fresh Victual and Water, and therefore that very night fome of the Company going ashore, they very courteoully came, and brought the best Victuals and Provisions they had, presenting the General with two very fat Sheep, who returned them many necessary things, affuring them that he came only to exchange fach Goods with them as he wanted, and they could well spare, and chiefly such as they had already brought them, except fresh Water, which they defired them to bring, whereat they scemed very well pleased, and extream joyful at their coming, promining to direct them where to have fresh Water ext Morning, and that they would bring any thing elfe they wanted.

Next Morning early, the General having prepared

all things ready for Traffick, and Vessels to bring the Water, fet two of his Men alhoar, to go to the Water. ing place assigned the Night before, who passed quiet In half the way, but were then violently affinited and flain by these Treacherous People, and in hope to fur. prize the General with the reft, about five hundred of them prepared for Mischief, lay in Ambush behind the Rocks, who fuddenly falling on them, the Rocks being very dangerous for Boats, and the Pasiage very open to the Sea, they wounded every Man of the Company with their Arrows, Drake himself being that in the Face under his right Eye very deep, and in his Head, to the great endangering his Life; the reft, there being nine Persons in the Boat, were very grievously wounded, and the Chief Surgeon being dead, and his Mare absent in the Vice-Admiral, none bet a Boy being left, their Case was very desperate, yet by the help of God, and the Affistance of the refl they all escaped. The Cause of this Injury from these Islanders proceeded from their Hatred to the Spamards, for their Cruelties toward them, and fome of the English using the Spanish word Aqua, in requiring Water, they supposed them of that Nation, and there fore used this Outrage toward them: The General left the revenge of this wrong to Heaven, wifking only they might be sensible whom they abus'd, not an Enemy, but even those who would rather have defended them from the Injuries of the Spaniards, and Sailed thence that Afternoon, approaching now the Place appointed for meeting the rest of their Ships, and to find a Conveniency for repofing their wounded Men, and supplying them with Necessaries, and at length Nov. 30. they fell in with a Place called Philips Bay, in about 32 degrees, and inflantly fent out a Boat for Discovery, who after diligent Serrch could find the Appearance of Reflef, discovering only the Head of wild Beafts, but no fign of any Inhabitant there about.

Yet in their Return, they perceived an Indian Fish

d

(

e

8

Ť

ie-

A

fe

3.

of

E C

ft

ly

1C-

ed

cd

CE

10

D.

th

ıy,

ict tra

ıds

ein a Canoo within the Bay, whom they brought aboard the General; he was a proper comely Person, Cloathed in a white Garment reaching almost to his Enecs, his Arms and Head were bare, his Hair very long, but without a Beard, as most Indians are, seeming to be of a Mild Temper, apprehensive to learn every thing, and very thankful for what the General bestowed on him, and discovering in his Carriage the hermless disposition of the Natives, and how unjustly they have been abus'd by the Spaniards. After he had been kindly treated, and turnished with what they had, giving what he thought convenient in Exchange, he was freely dismist in their Boar, with his own Canon made of Reeds, and when landed, defired the Engin to flay till his Return, who being met by two or bree of his Friends, shewed them the Gifts he had received, wherewith they were so pleased, that in a few hours he with several others, whereof one seemed of Quality, came and brought them Hens, Eggs, and a fat Hog, all which they fent in a Caroo to their Boat then at some distance from shoar, and to affure them of their faithful Meaning, the Captain having feat back his Horse, resolv'd to commit himself to the Fidelity of these Strangers, and to go with them alone to their General. By him they understood that there was no Relief to be had there, but he offered to be their Pilot to a good Har bour Southward, where by way of Traffick they might have Fresh Water, and all other Conveniences: This Offer was readily accepted by the General, the Place described, being near that there he had appointed his Fleet to Rendezvouz; mitting therefore their defign of Hunting, and Kilig some of the Bustalos, they by the Conduct of this ew Indian Pilot came December 5. into the defired

This Harbour is called by the Spaniards, Valpevizo, at the Town adjoyning is St. James of Chinly, in deg. 40 minuites, S. where the they heard nothing their Ships, yet were fully supplied with all Neces-

farie

faries in abundance, and amongst others they found in the Town divers Store-houses of Chily Wines, and a Ship in the Harbour called, The Grand Captain of the South, and Admiral to the Islands of Solomon, Loaden with the lame Liquors, together with a Quantiry of fine Gold of Baldivia, and a great Crucifix of Gold befet with Emeraulds. They spent some Time in resreshing themselves, and the this Ship of so heavy a burthen, and being sufficiently stored with Wine, Bread, Bacon, and the like, for a long feafon, Decem. 8. they failed back again toward the Equinoctial Line, with their Indian Pilot, whom the General bountifully rewarded, and landed at the place he defired. Having thus supplied their Wants, their next Care was to regain, if possible, the Company of their Ship, so long separated from them, to which the General applied his utmost endeavour, and since it was inconvenient to search every Creek and Harbour with their little Boat, which might happen to fall into the Spa-Diards hands, who would shew them no Mercy; he therefore sought out some safe Harbour to erect a Pinnace, wherein without endangering their Ship, they might leave no place unfought, to find our their Countrymen again.

Herenpon Decemb. 19. they entred a Bay South of the Town of Cyppo, inhabited by the Spaniards in 29 Degrees; where having landed fourteen Men to search for a Conveniency, they were discovered by the Town, who instantly sent out three hundred Spaniards on Horse Back against them, and about 200 Indians running all naked, and in miserable Slavery, like Dogs at their heels, but the English perceiving their Danger, escaped first to a Rock in the Sea, and from thence to their Boat, where they were received and conveyed out of the reach of the Spaniards Fury, without hurs to any, but only one John Minevey, who careless of his safety, would not be persuaded to save himself, but tesoived singly to desie and terrisie three hundred men, or else dye on the place, which accordingly

K

EC

10

W

happened, for being quickly flain, his dead Body wi drawn by the Indians from the Rock to the Shoar, a there valiantly beheaded by the Spaniards, his I Hand cut cff, and his Heart pluck'd out, which they carried away in their Sight, causing the Indians to shoot his Body full of Arrows made the same day of the green Wood; and so left it to be devoured of Beafis had not the English again gone ashoar and buried it; This sufficiently discovers the Barbarity of the Spaniards, and their continual dread of a Foreign Invalion or to have their Throats cut by the wretched unfortumate Natives, whom they never suffer to keep any Arms, but just for present Service, as appears by their Arrows made that very day, and the Report of others who knew it to be true: Yea, they think themselves very kind, if they do not daily whip these Wretches with Cords only for pleasure, or drop scalding Bacon on their naked Bodies, which is the least Torture they ulually inflict upon these most unhappy Indians.

This not being the place they looked for, nor the Entertainment they defired, Decemb, 20. they fell into a more convenient Harbour North of Cyppo, in 27 degrees 55 minutes South Latitude, where they flaid fome time to trim their Ship, and build their Pinnace, yet fill refleding on the Absence of their Friends, General Drake having fitted all to his Mind, and leaving his Ship at Anchor in the Bay, resolved to go in the Pinnace himself with some Choice Men, toward the South if possible to find them cut; but affer one days Sail the Wind forced him back again : Within this Bay they had store of Fish like a Gurnet and never met with the like except at Cape Blank, on the Coast of Barbary; the Gentlemen with four or we Hooks and Lines, taking in two or three hours, ir hundred of them. Having dispatched their Buthere. Inn. 22, they came to an illume in the canoos who undertook to bring them to a watering gupon which the General, according to his life to Strangers, treated them nobly, and came where they directed, and having travelled a long way on the Land, they indeed found fresh Water, but hardly so much as they had drunk Wine in their Passage this ther.

10

of

H

SP

go be

W

CV

yi

an

th

th

fr

Sailing along continually in fearch of fresh Water, they came to a Place called Tarapaca, and Landing lighted on a Souldier afleep, who had lying by him thirteen Bars of Silver, weighing about four thouland Spanish Duccats; they would not willingly have difturb'd him, but fince they did him that Injury, they freed him of this Charge which might otherwise have kept him Waking, leaving him if he pleased, to take another Nap more securely; Continuing still their Search for fresh Water, they again Landed not far thence, and met with a Spaniard and an Indian Boy driving eight Lambs or Peruvian Sheep, each carrying two Leather Bags, with fifty pound weight of refined Silver, and not enduring to see a Spanish Gentleman turn Carrier, they, without asking, offered him their Service, and became his Drovers, only they mist his way, for almost as soon as he parted from them, they came into their Boats. Beyond this lye certain Indian Towns, from whence many People came in Boats made of Seal Ikins, and blown full of Wind, which rows swiftly, and carries a great Butthen; These seeing their ship, brought store of diver forts of Fish to traffick with them for Knives, Stones, Glasses, and the like, Men of fixty or seventy years old being as fond of them, as if they had purchased lewels of great Value. They appeared a plain innocent People, and reforted to them in great Number in that fhort time.

Near this, in 22 degrees 30 minutes, lay Marmorell and another great Indian Town, Governed by two Spaniards, whom defiring to deal with, Jan. 22 the Anchored there, and found them inclined to exchange Goods they wanted, more out of fear than by and among others. Come such Sheep as carried no of Silver aforementioned; they are as large as an ordinary Cow, and three Men and a Boy fat on of their Backs at once, their Feet not touching the ground by a foot, nor the Beaft complaining of irs Burthen; their Necks are like Camels, but their Heads as other Sheep, and are of great nie to the Spaniards; their Wool is very fine, and their Flesh good Meat; they supply the want of Horses, and carry heavy Burdens over the Mountains, three hundred Leagues at once, where no other Beaft can travel fo well: In this place, and so up through the Province of Cusco, the common Earth being any where taken up, every hundred pound weight thereof, when refined, yields twenty five shillings of pure Silver at a Crown an Ounce, The next place likely to hear News of their Ships, was the Port of Arica in 20 degrees, there being no Harbour in a long way before, where they arrived Feb. 7. The Town stands in the most fuitful Soil on those Coasts, in the Mouth of a pleafar Valley, abounding with all things, having a confant trade for shipping, both from Lima, and other places in Peru, and inhabited by the Spaniards: In two Barks here, they found above forty Bars of Silver a large as a Brickbat, each weighing twenty pound, which burden having taken upon themselves, they filed to Cowley, Feb. 9. And in their way to Lima, met with another Bark of Ariquipa, who had begun to load some Gold and Silver, but upon notice of their maing sent from Arica by Land, it was again unladen; But they took a Bark full of Linnen, which they judg'd Meful for them,

d

Y

B

C

e

of f.

r

1,

PS:

d

0-

75

Feb. 15. They came ro Lima, and found thirty in the Harbour, seventeen of them being the best the South Sea, all ready provided, yet they had Courage to fall into the midst of them; where they dored all Night, and had they been revengeful, all have done the Spaniards more mischief in a hours, than they could have again recovered in the sease. But their chief Care was to find our their

Contany

Company rather than to recompense their Cruely and though they had no News of them here, yet the mad notice of what much elevated them, and seem to recompense all their Labour, namely, that here was a Ship of one Michael Angelo's, wherein were fifteen hundred Bars of Silver, with Silks and Linner, and a Chest full of Royals of Plate, which they quickly took Possession of.

Mere they had Intelligence of a rich ship gone out of the Haven, Feb. 2. loaden with Gold and Silver for Panama. Therefore next Morning Feb. 16, they sailed when the Wind served, & then rowed their ship toward Panama, hastoing, if possible to get sight of this gallant Ship the Cacasogo, the Glory of the South Sea, gone from Lima tourteen days before;

They fell with Cape Francisco, March 1. passing the Line the day before, and about Noon discovered Sail ahead of them, and having once spoke with he they lay still in the same place fix days to recover Breath, being almost spent with their hasty pursuit, and to recal what advantage they had made fince their coming from Lima. They had notice of this great Prize several times, once by a ship taken between Lima and Paira; again by another ship laden with Wines, taken in the Port of Paita; by a third laden with Tackle, and Impliments for ships, with eight pound weight in Gold from Guiaquil; and laftly, by Gabriel Alvarez, whom they met with near the Line by all whose Relations they found this Ship to really the rich Cacafogo, though before they left he Boy of their own named her the Cacaplata: The found in her some Fruit, Sugar, Meal and other Profi fions; but especially that whichwas the Cause of he flow failing, namely, a certain quantity of Jewels and Precious Stones thirteen Cheffs of Royals of Plan fourleere Pound Weight of Gold, twenty fix To fined Silver, two very large Silver gilt drinking is, and other like Trifles, valued at about three dred and fixty thousand Pezoes: They gave the lafter a little Linnen, and some other things in Exange for these Goods, and after fix days bid him rewel; He haftning fomewhat lighter to Panama. nd they going off to Sea, to confider whither to fleer ext.

Here they received News of some things that had tely happened in or near Europe fince their depare thence. In particular of the Death of some great erfonages, as the King of Portugal, and both the nes of Morocco and Fesse, all three slain in one day one Battle in Africa. Also the death of Hen . III. King France, who was murdered by one Jaques Clement Monk, by the contrivance of the Papifts, because he emed to incline to the Protestants to secure himself om the Ambition of the House of Guise, and others the Holy League (as they call it) whereby they bliged themselves never to suffer any to Rule in nice, who either had or was likely to profess any her but the Catholick Religion. They had likewife account of the Death of the Pope, whose Usurped athority being leffened in Europe, he hath endeavou-JIE. ed to advance it in America, so that in all places icir here the Spaniards have power, the infection of Pocat my hath spread it self, which hath produced the eco me accurfed fruits as in Christendom; and in the vith ties of Lima, Panama, Mexico, and the Countries den diacent, no place is free from those Vices which that by ine, digion too much indulges, as Whoredom, Sodomy, fuch other Bestialities as are not fit to be named ong Christians, of which the Actors feem not at all med, fince the Popes Pardons are so common and heap in these Countries, from which by the mulde of Offenders, the Monks and Friers reap no Hadvantage.

.

he

16

ver

that though, fince their forced conversion, the no better Christians, nor know no more of the Dodri of the Gospel than before, yet they seem by the in of nature to abhor and detest the filthy and about nable Lives of most of the Spanish Priests and Peop Herein seeming to parallel the Scythians in respect the Grecians, who though barbarously rude and ignitive the Grecians, who though barbarously rude and ignitive in learning, yet in modesty, temperance and other Moral Virtues, sar excelled the Wise and Learn Greeks, who presumptuously gloried to be the modesty, and envisited People in the World.

dricandal to the poor ignorant in

But though the Antichristian Clergy industrical endeavour to keep them in more than Heathenish durings, yet even among these illiterate People God do not leave himself without witness; for several of the boldly reproved the abominable licentionsness of the pretended Spanish Christians both in their Doctrie and Practices, which so alarm'd the Priests, that about wo months before Gen Drakes arrival, twelve he sons were apprehended at Lima for the professions the true Religion, and being brought before the bloody Spiritual Tribunal, were condemued to burnt to death, six of whom suffered that cruel known to death, six of whom suffered that cruel known being all bound to one Stake, and the rest mained in Prison expecting daily to Drink of the same bitter Cup.

General Drake now considering that they were come one degree North of the Equinoctial Line to the entrance of the Bay of Panama, and that there we little hope their lost Ships should be before them, sine they could get no notice of them in so long a Course and with the strictest Search and Inquiry, and the the Time of the Year drew on, wherein their General, if ever, must prosecure, his Design of discovers a Passage about the North parts of America, from a South-Sea into our own Ocean, which would be wiceable to his Country for the suture, and themselve might have a much nearer Passage home. They the scluded to find out a convenient place for riming their Ship and getting Wood, Water, and ther Provisions aboard, and then to hasten for difovering this Paffage, through which they might reum with Joy to their much defired Homes : Sailing herefore March 7. toward the Isle of Cainos, they rived there the 16th, fettling themselves in a fresh tiver, between that and the Continent, for finishing heir Affairs, where there happened a terrible Earthmake, which was so violent, that the Ship and Pinsice, though near an English Mile from the shoar rembled and shook, as if on dry Land. They found here Fish, Wood, and fresh Water, (besides Allegafors and Monkyes) with many other necessaries that they wanted. In their Passage hither, they took one nore which was the last they met with on all le Coasts, laden with Linnen, China Silk, and lina Diffies, and a Faulcon curiously wrought in fold, with a great Emerauld in the breast thereof. From hence, March 25. 1579. they resolved to fail

e pearest Course the Wind would permit, without niching any where in a long way, passing by Porc apagaia, the Port of the Vale of the most rich and cellent Balms, Jericho, Quantapico, and divers hers; as also certain Gulphshereabout, which conheally fend forth such violent Winds, as much endanger the Spanish Ships, if they go too near. But laving notice that they should oft have Calms and contrary Winds near the Coast, and that if they run to Sea to avoid them, they could not then meet with Land again when they would: The General bought fit to encrease their Provisions, and therefore the next Harbour, called Guatulco, inhabited by aniards, they by Trading, supplied themselves with Coast of America; but yet not forgetting to take h them a Pot of about a Bushel full of Ryals of e that they found in the Town, with a Chain of and other Jewels, which they entreated a 22 Luc Loyales and Andendares

SPANIARD who was flying away with them, to leave behind. Next day, April 16. they went directly to Sea, failing five hundred Leagues in Longitude to get a Wind, & by June 3. got one thousand four hundred Leagues, coming into forty two degrees North Latitude, where they felt an extream alteration from Heat to Cold, which much impaired their Healths. made the Ropes of their Ships stiff, and the Rain was turned into Hail, to that they feemed rather in the Frozen Zone than so near the Sun, and sailing two degrees further, the Cold increased so severly, that their hands were benumm'd, and they durft hardly bring them from under their Garments to feed them selves. Neither could they impute this to the Tender ness of their Bodies, coming out of those very Ho Countries, since their Meat, almost as soon as from the fire, was frozen, and their Tackle so stiff, that fi Men were hardly able to perform what was usually done by three, which very much discouraged them but General Drake comforting and persuading the to trust in God's Providence, who never fails hi Children, and that they should now quit themselve like Men, and endure this short trouble and extre mity with Patience, fince they were fure there to obtain speedy Comfort and Glory. By such Mo tives as these he put new Life into them, so that ever Man was armed with a Resolution to see the utmol discovery that could be made that way.

The Land in that part of America bearing furthe West than they imagined, they were nearer to it that they were aware, and yet the Cold still increased June 3. They were driven by the Winds toward the shore, which they then first descryed, and Anchore in a Bay much exposed to the Winds and Flaws; an when they ceased, there instantly sollowed thick sting Fogs, which nothing but the Wind could remove that was always violent. So that not able to shore, nor go surther Northward for the Cold a Wind, which was full against them, getting to Se

TOTAL CHAPTER TO

torcibly carried southward from republicly eight degrees, where they found and low and plain, with fome lew Hills covered ith Show. June 17. They came to a convenient Arbour, and continued there till July 23. during thich, though in the height of Summer, yet they had onstant nippingCold (neither for sourceen days could they see the Sun for the fogginess of the Air) which ad such influence not only upon their Bodies, who ame out of the Heat, but on the Inhabitants themeves, though accustomed thereto, who yet came hivering to them in their warm Futrs, crowding close gether, to receive Heat of each other, the Trees ang without Leaves, and the ground without Grass, en in June and July; the poor Birds and Fowls not ning to rife from their Nefts (as they oft found) er they had laid their fir! Egg, till they were sich'd and had got some strength, but had this vantage, that their Bodies being exceeding hor erfect their Young sooner than in other places: Tho' real Cause of this Extremity is uncertain, yet it is aged to proceed from the large Continent of Amehand Asia, near together, Northward of this place om whose high Mountains always covered with Snow, the North-west Winds, which usually blow on hese Coasts, bring this almost insufferable sharpness, thich the Sun in his greatest Heat is not able to disolve, from whence the Earth is so berren, and the now lies at their Doors almost in the midst of Sumr, but is never off their Hills, from whence prod those slinking Fogs through which the Sun not pierce, nor draw the Vapours higher into the except the fierce Winds do sometimes scatter n, and when gone, the Fogs return as before. Sea-men aboard, who had been in Greenland, med they never felt such Cold in the end of suma now in these two hot Months, from whence it be improfed, there is no Passage through these Seas; or if there be, it is Limitigable, for the Ice and Cold met with therein. Neither their failing on these Coasts to forty eight degree could they find the Land bend in the least toward the East, but running always North-west, as if it directly met with Asia; and even then, when they had a Wind to carry them through, if any such Passage had been, yet they had a smooth Sea, and ordinary Tides, which could not have happened, had there been Streight, as they concluded there was none.

CHAP: VI.

General Drake having gain'd immense Treasures in Gold, Silver and Jewels, Lands at a place named by him Nova Albion, where the Indians Crown him King of their Countrey, From bence he sails homeward by the Molucco Islands, and the Cape of Good Hope; and having thus surrounded the World, returns joyfully to England, about two Years and ten Months from their first setting forth: Queen Elizabeth comes abourd his Ship at Deptsord, & Knights him.

Harbour afore-mentioned, the Natives of the Country discovering them, sent a Man to them in a Canoo with all Expedition, who began to speak in them at a great distance, but approaching nearer, made a long solemn Oration, with many Signs and Gesturn after their manner, moving his hands, and turns his head; and after he had ended, with great shew a Respect and Submission, return'd again to shoat.

inging with him a bunch of Feathers, like those of the Crow, nearly placed on a firing, and gathered into a round Bundle, exactly cut, and equal in length, which (as they understood afterward) was a special Badge worn upon the head of the Guard of the King's Person: He brought also a little Basket made of Rushes, full of an Herb called Tabah, which tyed to a short Rod, he cast into their Boat. The General intended instantly to have recompensed him, but could not persuade him to receive any thing, except a Hat thrown out of the Ship into the Water, refusing any thing else, though it were upon a Board thrust of to him, and so presently return d. After this their Boats could Row no way, but they would follow it, seeming to adore them as Gods.

June 21. Their Ship being leaky, came nearer the hoar to Land their Goods; but to prevent any fur-prize, the General sent his Men ashoar fiest, with all necellaries for making Tents, and a Fort for lecuring their Purchase; which the Natives observing, came down haftily in great numbers, with fuch Weapons, is they had, as if angry, but without the least thought of Hostility; for approaching them, they stood as Men Ravished with Admiration at the fight of such things as they had never before heard nor feen, feeming rather to Reverence them as Deities, than to defign War against them as Mortal Men, which they discovered every day more clearly, during the whole Time of flaying among them. Being directed by Signs. blay down their Bows and Arrows, they immediately beyed, as well as all the rest who came continually to nem; so that in a little while, there were a great ompany of Men and Women. To confirm this Peace, high they seemed so willing to agree to, the General d his Men treated them very courteoully, bestowing them freely, what might cover their Nakeduch, making them (enfible they were not Gods but and had themselves need of Garmens to cover their shame, and persuaded them to put on Cloaths, taking and drinking in their presence, to satisfie them, that being Men, they could not live without it; yet all would not prevail to persuade them that they were not Gods: In recompence of Shirts, Linnen-Cloth, and the like bestowed on them, they gave the General and his Company Feathers, Cawls of Network, Quivers for Arrows made of Fawn Ikins, and the Ikins of those Beasts their Women wore on their Bodies.

Being at length fully contented with viewing them, they returned with Joy to their Houses, which are dug round within the Earth, and have from the surface of the Ground, Poles of Wood fer up and joyned together at the Top like a Spired Steeple, which being covered with Earth, no Water can enter, and are very warm, the Door being also the Chimney to let out the Smoak, which are made flopous, like the Scuttle of a Ship: Their Beds are on the hard Ground, strowed with Rushes, with a Fire in the midft, round which they lie, and the Root being low, round and close, gives a very great Reflection of Heat to their Bodies: The Men generally go naked, but the Women combing out Bulrushes, make therewith a loofe Garment, which tyed round their middie, hangs down about their Hipps, and hides what Nature would have concealed: They wear likewife bout their shoulders a Deers skin with the Hair thereon: They are very obedient and serviceable to their Hufbands, doing nothing without their command or conlent: Returning to their Houses, they made Ismentable Howling and Crying, which the English though three quarters of a Mile distant, heard with wonder, the Women especially extending their Voice with doleful fhricks.

1

D

2

1

fi

t

ti

fe

Norwithstanding this seeming Submission and Respect, the General having experienced the Treather of other Intidels, provided against any Alteration of their mind, setting up Tents, and intreuching them.

lve with Stone walls, which done they grew more courc. Two days after this first Company were gone, a great Multitude of others, invited by their Report, came to vifit them, who at the other, brought Feathers, and Bags of Tabah for Presents, or rather or Sacrifices, believing they were Gods; Coming to he Top of the Hill, at the Bottom whereof they had built their Fort, they made a stand, where their Chief Speaker wearied himself, and them with a long Orarion, using such Violent Gestures, and so strong a Voice, and speaking so fast that he was quite out of Breath; Having done, all the rest bowed their Bodies very flowly and reverently to the Ground, crying Oh. as confenting to all had been faid; then leaving their Bows with their Women and Children behind, they came down with their Presents in such an Awful Posture, as if they had indeed appeared before a Deicy thinking themselves happy to be near General Drake, and especially when he accepted what they so will ly offered, getting as nigh him as possible, imagining they approached a God.

Mean time the Women, as if Frantick, used unnatural Violence to themselves, shreiking dreadfully and tearing their Cheeks with their Nails till the Blood freamed down their Breafts, rending their Garments from the upper Parts of their Bodies, and holding their Hands above their Heads, thereby to expose their Breafts to Danger; they furiously threw themselves on the Ground, not regarding whether is were wet or dry, but dashed their naked Bodies, against nes, hills, woods, bushes, briars, or whatever lay in cir way, which cruelty they repeated (yea some omen with Child) fifteen or fixteen times together. their firength failed them thereby, which was more levous to the English to see, than to themselves to fler. This Bloody Sacrifice ended, the General and Company fell to Prayers, and by lifting up their s and Eyes to Heaven, fignified that their God,

ney ought to Worthip, was above in the Hea

Pleasure, to open their Blind Eyes, that they might come to the Knowledge of JESUS CHRIST: While the English were at Prayers, singing of Psalms, and reading some Chapters in the Bible, they sattern attentive, and at the end of every pause, cried on with one Voice, Oh! seeming to rejoice therein, yes delighted so much in their singing Psalms, that after when they resorted to them, they ardenly defined that they should Sing. At their departure they returned all that the General had given them, thinking themselves sufficiently happy in having free Access to them.

Three days after June 26. the News having spread it self farther into the Country, another great number of People were affembled, and among them their KING himself, a Man of a comely Presence and Stasure attended with a Guard of an hundred Tall Stout Men, having sent two Ambastadors before, to tell the General, their High or King was coming; one of them in delivering his Message spake low, which the other repeated Verbatim with a loud Voice, wherein they continued about half an hour; which ended, they by their figns defired some Present to their King, to affore him of coming in Peace, which the General willingly granted, and they joyfully went back to their High: A while after their King with all his Train, appeared in as much Pomp as he could, fome loudly crying and finging before him; as they came nearer, they feemed graver in their Actions: In the Front before him, masch'd a Tall Man of a good Countenance, carrying the Scepter or Mace Royal, of black Wood about a Yard and half long, upon which hung two Crowns, one less than the other, with three very long Chains oft doubled, and a Bag of the Herb Tabah; the Crowns were of Knir-Work wronght curioufly with Feathers of divers Colours, and of a good Fashion, the Chains seemed of Bone, the Links being small thin, and finely burnish'd; the number of Links

Chain was almost innumerable, and worn by very few, who are stinted to the number, some of ten, twelve, or twenty, and as they exceed in Chains, are thereby accounted more Honourable. Next the Scepter-Bearer, came the King himself with his Guard about him, having on his Head a Knit-work Cawl wrought somewhat like a Crown, and on his Shoulders a Coat of Rabbit skins reaching to his Wast; The Coats of his Guard were of the same shape, but other skins, having Cawls with Feathers, cover'd with a Down growing on an Herb, exceeding any other Down for fineness, and not to be used by any but those about the King's Person, who are also permitted to wear a Plume of Feathers on their Heads in fign of Honour, and the Seeds of this Herb are used only in Sacrifice to their Gods. After them followed the Common People almost Naked, whose long Hair ried up in a Bunch behind, was stuck with Plumes of Feathers, but in the forepart only one Feather like an Horn, according to their own Fancy, their Faces were all painted, fone White, others Black, or other Colours, every Man bringing something in his Hand for a Present: The Reer of their Company confisted in Women and Children, each Woman carrying aBasket or two with bags of Tabah, a Root called Petah, (whereof they make Bread, and eat it either Raw or Baked,) broyled Fishes like Pilchards, the Seeds and Down aforementioned, and such other things: Their Baskets are made of Rufhes like a deep Boar, and so well wrought as to hold Water. They hang pieces of Pearl shells, &c fometimes Links of these Chains on the brims, to figwife they were only used in the Worship of their Gods, they are wrought with matted down of red Feathers into various Forms...

General Drake caused his Men to be on their Guard whatever might happen, and going into his Fort, made the greatest shew possible of Warlike Preparations, (as he usually did) so that had they been real Ene-

this ambit he therebydileguraged from attempt ing any thing ar a off them. Approaching nearer an joining ctoler together, they gave them a general & lutation, and after Silence, he who carried the Scepte prompted by another assign'd by the King, repeated lowdly what the other spake low, their Oration lasting half an hour, at the close whereof they uttered a common Amen, in Approbation thereof: Then the King with the whole number of Men and Women (the little Children remaining only behind) came farther in the same Order down to the Foot of the Hill near the Fort: When the SCEPTER-BEARER with a composed Countenance began a Song, and as it were a Dance, and was followed by the King and all the rest, but the Women, who were filent: They came near in their Dance, and the General perceiving their honest simplicity, let them enter freely within their Bulwark, where continuing a while finging and dancing, the Women following with their Bowls in their Hands, their Bodies bruised, and their Faces, Breasts, and other parts torn and spotted with Blood being tired with this Exercise, they by signs defired the General to fit down, to whom their King and others feemed to make Supplications, that he would be the King and Governour of their Country, to whom they were most willing to refign the Government of themselves &their Posterity; and more fully to declare their Meaning, the King with all the rest Usanimously finging a Song joy fully fet the Crown on his Head, inriching his Neck with Chains, offering him many other things, and Honouring him with the Title of Hioh, concluding with a Song and Dance of Triumph that they were not only visited by Gods, (which they fill judged them) but that the greatGod was become their King and Patron, and they now the happiest People in the whole World.

The General observing them so freely to offer all this to him, was unwilling to disobline them, fince he was necessitated to continue there some time, and to require relief in many things from them, not knowing ef

W

d

li

G

1

dvantage it might in time bring to his own Coun-Therefore in the Name and for the Use of Queen Zabeth he took the Scepter Crown and Dignity of her Land upon him, withing that the Riches and freafures thereof, wherein the upper parts abound, ht be as as easily transposted thither, as he had obmed the Soveraignry thereof, from a People who lave Plenty, and are of a very loving and tractable Nature, feeming ready to embrace Christianity, if it could be Preached and made known to them: These Ceremonies over, the Common People leaving the King and his Guard, mingled themselves among them, firially furveying every man, and enclosing the youngeff, offered Sacrifices to them with Lamentable Shreiks and Weepings, tearing the Flesh from off their Faces with their Nails, and this not the Women only, but old Men likewise were even as violent in roaring and Crying as they. The English much grieved at the Power of Satan over them, shewed all kind of dislike hereto, by lifting there Hands and Eyes toward Heaven, but they were so mad on their Idolatry, that though held from rending themselves, yet when at Liberty, were as violent as before, till those they adored were conveyed into their Tents, whom yet as Men distracted they raged for agan: Their Madaels a little qualified, they complained to them of their Griefs and Diseases, as old Aches, shrunk Sinews, cankered Sores, Ulcers, and Wounds lately received, wherewith divers were afflicted, and mournfully defired Cure for them, making figns, that if they did but blow upon them or touch their Maladies, they should be healed. In pity to them, and to shew they were but Men, they used common Ointment and Platless for their Relief, befeeshing God to enlighten their Minds.

During their stay here, they usually brought Sacrifices every third day till they clearly understood the toglish were displeased, whereupon their Znal and the vet they continually reforced to them with such areroe s

E

cagernels, that they oft forgot to provide Suffician for themselves, so that the General, whom they counted their Father, was forc'd to give them Victual. as Mulcles. Seals and the like, wherewith they were extreamly pleafed, and fince they would not accept of Sacrifices, they having lograntude, forced who they had upon them in Recompence, though never useful to themselves: They are very ingenious, and free from Guile or Treachery; their Bows and As. rows (which are their only Weapons, and almost all their Wealth) they use very skilfully, yet without much Execution, they being fitter for Children than Men, though they are usually so strong, that one of them could eafily carry that a Mile together without Pain, which two or three Englishmen there could hardly bear: They run very swift and long, and selde go any other Pace; if they faw a Fish so near the Shoar as to reach the place without swimming, the seldom mift it.

Having finished their Affairs, the General and some of his Company made a Journey up into the Country, to observe their manner of Living, with the Nature and Commodities of the Country: They found their Houses such as you have heard, and many being fixt in one place, made divers Villages: The Inland was fir different from the Sea- thoar, it being a very fruitful Soil, furnished with all Necessaries, and stored with large far Deer, whereof they saw Thousands in an Herd, with Rabbits of a strange kind, having Tails like Rats, and Feet like a Mole, with a Natural Bag under their Chin, wherein, after they have filled their Belly abroad, they put the rest for relieving their Young or themselves, when they are willing to flay at home: They eat their Bodies, but preserve their skins, of which the Royal Garments of their King are made, This Country General Drake called Nova Albion, both because it had white Cliffs toward the Sea, and that id Name might have some Likeness to England, which was formerly to called, Before they went hence, the General caused a Monument to be creeked, signifying that the English had been there, and afferting the Right of Queen Elizabeth, and her Successors to that Kingdom, all engraven in a Plate of Brais, and nailed to a great firm Post, with the Time of their articles and Queens Name, and the free Resignation of the Country by the King and People into her hands; likewise her Picture and Arms, and underneath the Generals Arms.

The Spaniards had never any Commerce, nor ever let Foot in this Countrey, their utmost Acquisitions bemany degrees Southward thereof; and now the ne of their departure being at hand, the Joy of Natives was drowned in extream Sorrow, pouring woful Complaints, and grievous Sighs and Tears their leaving them; yet fince they could not have ir presence, (they supposing them indeed to be ods ) thought it their duty to intreat them to be mindof them in their absence, declaring by figus, that bey hoped hereafter to fee them again, and before the helish were awake, set fire to a Sacrifice, which they fered to them, butning therein a Chain of a Bunch Feathers. The General endeavoured by all means to hinder their Proceedings, but could not prevail, till they fell to Prayers and Singing of Plalms, when allur'd meteby, forgetting their Folly, and leaving their Sacifice unconfumed, and the Fire to go out, imitating the English in all their Actions, they life up their Heads and Eyes to Heaven as they did. July 23. they nok a forrowful Leave of them, but loth to part with mem, they went to the tops of the Hills to keep fight of them as long as possible, making Fires before, behind, and on each fide of them, wherein they supofed Sacrifices were offered to their happy Voyage. little without their Harbour lye certain Illes, called them the Islands of St. James, wherein were plenof Scals and Fowls, and Landing in one of them extday, they supplied the nicives with competent ovition for fomerime.

I

It.

1

ul

h

0

6 12

10

of c,

The General now linding the Extremity of the Cold increase, the Sun being gone further, and the Winds constantly blowing Northerly, giving no hope of finding Passage thro' those Northern Seas, he resolved with the general approbation of all, to lose no more time, but fail directly to the Molucco Island and having a light of nothing but Sea and Sky for fixe eight days together, they continued their course thre the Main Ocean till Sept. 30. when they espyed cer. tain Islands about eight degrees North of the LINE from whence there came infrantly a great number of Canoos having in some four, in others fix, fourteen or fifteen Men, bringing Cocoes, Potatoes, Fish, and several truits to sell: Their Canoos are made of one Tree, hollowed within very artificially, and as Imon as Glass all over, with a very curious Prow and Sten hung full of white glittering Shells; On each fide were two pieces of Timber, about a yard and half long, a the ends whereof a great Cane was fastned to preven them from over-turning. The People had the lower parts of their Ears cut round, and hanging very low on their Cheeks, wherein they put things of a realonable weight: The Nails of some of their Fingen were at least an inch long, and their Teeth as black as Ink, occasioned by eating an Herb, with a Powder they always carry with them to that purpole. The first Company of Canoos coming up to their Ship, which failed flow for want of Wind, feemed very fair dealers, and exchang'd some Goods with them very orderly, making figns for them to come nearer the shoar, but defigning treacherously to seize both Met and Ship. These gone, others presently came, who if they got any thing into their hands, would peither return it, nor give any thing for it, counting all their own which they once handled, impudently expecting more, but would give back nothing; upon which the English retufing to Trade with them as Chears, they were to inraged, that having Stones in their Canon, they let fly a great many at them. The General form ing to Revenge this Injury, yet to shew them he was able, cansed a great Gun to be discharged, which had the defired effect, for they instantly leapt out of their Canoos into the Water, and diving under the Keel of their Boats, staid there till the Ship was gone a good distance from them, and then nimbly recovering their Canoos, hafted to the fboar.

n

er

16

U

ry

he

ch

10, ier

eic

IN A

However new Companies of them still reforted to the Ship, and fince Violence would not prevail, ples tended now to Traffick honeftly, yet ftole whatever they could meet with; one pluck'd a Dagger and Knives from their Mens Girdle, which being again demanded he endeavoured to catch at more; neither could they be rid of this ungracious Company till they made some feel the smart of it, and so they lest this place which they then named, The Island of Thieves. Octob. 2. They got clear of these Rocks and failed without fight of Land till the seventeenth, falling then with four Islands in seven degrees five Minutes North Latitude. Octob. 22. they Anchored and Watered on the biggest called Mindanao, where they met with two Canoos, who would have talked with them but the Wind prevented it. Octob. 25. They passed by the Isles of Telao, Teda, Ceylon, Salan, and Suaro. fo named to them by an Indian, and Novemb. 3. arrived at the Molucco's, as they defired: They are 4 high spired Islands, called Terenate, Tydore, Matchan and Batchan, all very fruitful, especially of Cloves, wherewith they were cheaply turnished. Easterly lies a very great Island called Gillola. They designed for Tydore, but coming Nevemb. 4. near an Island belonging to the King of Terenate, his Vice-Roy came off to their Ship in a Canoo, and without fear went boldly aboard, who faluring their General, carnefily defired him to go to Terenate, affuring him hisk, would be very joyful to fee and accomodate him, to whom hat very Night he would give notice of them, with thom if he once dealt, he should find him a King of it word, whereas the Portuguls of Tydore were also-gether falle and treacherous, whom if they first vife ted, their King would not treat with them, accounting

the Portugals their mortal Enemies.

With these Perswasions the General was induced to go to Terenate, and Anchored there very early next Morning, and prefently fent a Messenger to the King. with a Velvet Cloak for a Present, to affure him they came in Peace, defiring nothing but Victuals, which he was destirute of by his long Voyage, and to exchange some Merchandizes with him, which he did require with the more affurance, being invited to come hither by the Vice-Roy of Mutier, who promised 'em all necessary Provisions: They found the Vice-Roy had been with the King, and represented to him to what a great Prince they belonged, from whom by way of Traffick, they might for the future obtain great advantages, and whereby the Portugals their Enemies, would be much discouraged; whereat the King was fo much moved that before the Meffenger got half way, he had sent the Vice-Roy, with divers of his Nohility and Counsellors to the General, offering them supply of all they wanted, and declaring the willing. ness of their King to enter into Friendship and Amity with so Renowned a Prince as theirs was, and if she pleased to accept of it, he would prohibit all other Nations from Trading on his Island, (especially the Portugals, from whom he got nothing but by the Sword) and referve it wholly for Traffick with the English; in Token whereof, he had now fent his Signet to the General; and would very suddenly come himself with his Brethren, in his Boars and Canoos to make him a Vife, and to bring his ship into fafe Harbour.

While they were delivering this Message to them, their own Messenger arrived at Court, who being met by divers Noble Persons, was with much folemnity brought into the King's presence, by whom he was very graciously received, and having delivered his Errand and Present to him, he seemed to blame himself. than he had not already arrended their Gen who came

of Sir Francis Drake.

far, and from so mighty a Monarch, and therefore antly made ready to come with his Counfellors: is Appearance was very great and strange, as if he figued to give extraordinary flonour to their Princes fore him went three large Canoos filled with his Noall in white Lawn, or Cloth of Calecut, with a mopy over their Heads of fine thin Matts, suppord with a frame of Reed; Every one fat according to is Dignity, and the Grey Heads of many discovered that the Kingused the Advice of Grave Counsellors in managing his Affairs: There were also divers comely young Men under the same Canopy, but of an infemour Rank, the rest were Soldiers standing in exact Order round about, on the outlide of whom far three Rowers in Galleries, on each fide all along the Canoo, heee or four Yards from it, one being orderly built lower than the other; In every of which Galleries was an equal number of Banks, wheron fat Rowers, there being about Eighty in one Canoo: In the forepart of each Canoo were two Men, one holding a Tanet, and the other a Piece of Brass, whereon they both struck at once with due distance between each froke, by the found whereof they directed the Rowers tokeep Time with their Oars, and the Rowersending their stroak with a Song, warned the others an firike again, and so went very swiftly: Every Canon had a small Gun about a Yard long, mounted on a Stock fee upright, and every Man, except the Rowers, was furnifit with Sword, Dagger and Targer, and some bad Lances, Mulkets, Bows, Arrows, and many Darts.

These Canoos coming orderly near the Ship, Roweldround about them, one after another, bowing their Bodies with much Reverence, as they passed by, even to the very ground, and putting their own Messenger gain abroad, signified that their King was at hand, laving sent them before to conduct their Ship into a petter Road, desiring them to throw out a Cable where by they might row the Thip to the place affigued by the King; who foon approached with fix Grave Antica Men in his Canoo, who together with the King, d all at once render them such respect as was unexpected from them: He was Tall, very Corpulent, and of a Princely Presence, and so highly honoured by his Subjeds, that neither the Vice-Roy of Mutir, nor any of his Nobility durst speak to him but on their Kneer nor rife again till he commanded. The General extreamly pleafed with this Royal Visit, received them in the best manner he could, expressing his Joy by the Thundering of his great Guns, mixt with store of small, Shor, founding of Trumpers and other Musick, both finall and loud, wherewith the King was fo delighted, that requesting their Musick to come into the Boat, he joyned his Canoo thereto, and was towed an hour together, with a Boat at the Stern of the Ship, the General likewise sending him such further Presents as might requite what Favours he had already received. and confirm that Friendship begun between them.

The King seeming even ravished in this Musical Paradife, his Brother named Moro, accompanied with many gallant Followers, gave the same Respect to them as before, and then fell a ftern till they came to an the General prefenting him also with what exceedingly pleased him: Being at Anchor, the King askt Pardon that he must be gone, and taking his Leave, promised to come aboard them the next Day, and mean time would fend them what Provision they wanted; and accordingly that Night and next Morning, they purchased what was to be had by way of Traffick, namely, A quantity of Rice, Hens, Sugar-Canes, Liquid Sugar, and a Fruit named Figo, (the same the Spamards call Plantains) Cocoes, and a fort of Meal, called Sago, made of the Tops of certain Trees, and tafts like fowr Curds, but melts away like Sugar, whereof they make a kind of Cake, which will hold good ten years, of which they make good Provi-

であるというとは、これには、

fien.

fio

ECC bot

cul

off

Th

W

cip

the

his

foed

Cal

Kit

con

The

the flay

Rec

beit

Was

OPE

abor

ccd

胎

DET Y

out

com

Tur

tan

ion, and of some sew Cloves, lest their Ship should be too much annoyed therewith.

At the time sppointed, the General having prepared all things ready, expected the King, but he failed both in Time and Promise, sending his Brother to exwie him, and to defire him to come ashoar himself, offering to stay there for securing his safe Return : The General upon Confideration of his breaking his word, would by no means trust himself in his Power, especially hearing some suspicious words from his Brother, but keeping the Vice-Roy aboard, fent some of his Gentlemen to Court with the Kings Brother, and a special Message to the King himself; coming near the Cafile, they were received by another Brother of the Kings, and other Great Persons, by whom they were conducted to a large fair House, wherein were above a Thousand People, the Chief being placed round about the Room according to their Quality, and the reft flaying without: The House was four square, covered ver with Cloath of divers Colours; upon Frames of Reeds, open at the fides, with Seats round about it, being the Council Room; At the fide next the Caffle was a Chair of State, with a very long rich Canopy over it, the Floor being covered ten or twelve Paces about with Cloath of Arras; There were already placed fixty Antient sober Personages, all said to be of m Privy Council, and at the further end a great Compuny of handsom young Men well cloathed; without on the right hand, stood four Old Grey-headed comely Men, Cloathed in Red to the Ground like Turks, called Romans and Strangers, who were conandy resident there, to continue Commerce with this cople; there were also two Turkish, and one Iralian elident, and likewise one Spaniard, who having afed the King in recovering the Hand from the Poris, served him now as a Souldier:

After half an hours waiting, the King came from Cafile, attended with eight or ten grave Senators, ich Canopy (Adorn'd in the midft with Emborfings of Gold) being held over him, and Guarded with twelve Lances, the Points turned downward their Men (accompanied with Moro the Kings Bro ther) Arose to meet him, who welcomed and entertained them very graciously: His Voice was low, and his Speech sober, of a Princely deportment, and a Moor by Nation; his Atrice was after the Fashion the Country, but much costlier, from the Wast to the Ground he had a Garment all of rich Cloth of Gold, his Legs were bare, and his Shoes of red Cordivant; his Head had a Wreath about an Inch & mil broad of Plated Gold, somewhat like a Crown, and very sumptuous: He had about his Neck, a Chain of pure Gold double, and wore on his Left Hand, Diamond, a Ruby, an Emerauld, and a Turkon, Stone, being four fair and perfect Jewels; on his RightHand he had one Ring with a large Turkois Stone and another with feveral Diamonds of smaller fixe, we ry artificially composed. Sitting thus in his Chaire State, with a Page on his right hand, refreshing his with a Fan richly embroidered and beset with Saphin the Place being very hor both with the Sun, and the Mulitude there prefent : After a while, the Englift. men having delivered their Message, and received Answer, they were by the King's special Comman conducted fafe back again, by one of his chief Counfellors. The Castle did not appear very strong, there being only two great Guns to defend it, and those a present very unserviceable; having got these and other Furniture of War from the Portugals, who for merly inhabited the Island, and built this Castle, b Tyrannizing over the People, and not content wi what they enjoyed, except they could have fecus themselves by destroying all the Blood Royal, the cruelly murthered the Father of this Present King tending to do the like by all his Sons; which to en ged the People, that they were forc't to escape their Lives, leaving their Goods, and all their Am nition behind them, and absolutely to forsake the li the present King with his Brethren, pursued the gals fo close, that being quite driven thence, they glad to keep footing in Tydore, and for four last past, he had been so successful in his Military that he was Lord of an hundred Islands thereand resolved now to attempt the recovery of ore it felf from the Portugals: The People are ers, whose Religion chiefly confists in certain Superyous Observations of the New Moons, and Fasting ally at some Seasons of which they had experience the Vice-Roy and his Attendants, who lay aboard nost all the time they were there, and would neleat nor drink so much as a little Water, while Fasting Day lasted, but would eat three times very ely in the Night. The Isle of Terenate is in 27 Des s North Latitude : While they flaid in the Harir here, (besides the Natives) there came aboard Ship a very Compleat Gentleman well carrenwith an interpreter to view their Ship, and diffe with their General, cloathed much after the lish Eashion, and in his Carriage very well accomled: He rold them that himself was but a Stranger these Islands, being born in the Province of Pagis china, that his Name was Paulace, of the Ramily of mber, out of which there had eleven Emp fors igued successively for two hundred Years past: that King Boxog; who by the Death of his Elder ther with a fall from a Horse, was right Heir to China, is the twelveth of this Race, being 24 Years age, and his Mother living, having a Wile and one by her, beloved and highly honoured of all his icds, Reigning in great Peace, and without apprefion of Invasion from his Neighbours. But it was this Gentleman's Fortune to partake of the Hapis of his King and Country as he defired; For he told them) being accused of a Capital Calme, cof though free, yet not able to make his tanoevidently appear, and knowing the fevere Jusof China, if he should be tound guilty

Judges, he humbly defired the King would please remit his Tryal to the Judgement and Providence God, by permitting him to Travel, on Condit that if he did not return with fuch remarkable In gence as his Majesty had never heard, and was w Observation, and for the advantage of China, he we for everlive in Banishment, or else suffer Death prefuming to come into his own Country, being red that the God of Heaven would clear his innocent The King granted his Suit, and he had been now three years abroad, and came then from Tydore (wherehe had refided two Months) to fee the English General of whom he had heard very strange things, and from whom he hoped for fuch Intelligence, as might further his return into his own Country, befeeching him relate the occasion and manner of his comsng to the as England thicker, and what Accidents happened to him by the Way. The General fully farisfied his Ro queft, and this Stranger heard his Discourse with must Attention and delight, and having a retentive Memo ry, he so firmly imprinted these Relations in Mind, that with great Reverence he gave God thank who had brought him to the notice of such admirable Occurrences: and then earnestly entreated the Gene rate visit his Country before he went farther Well fince it would be the most Pleasant, Honourable, an Profitable Voyage he could make, whereby he fhould cerry home an Account of one of the Antientest and Richest Kingdoms in the World; and hereupon he magnified the Greatness and Number of their Provide ces, the Stateliness and Riches of their Cities. with the Multirude of Men, and abundance of all manner of Provisions, and Ammunition of War, especially de Number of great Guns in Quinzii their chief Cit much easier managed than ours, and so exact as hit a Shilling, which he faid they invented about Two Thousand Years ago; with many other thin which the General might better observe with hist than he could relate, and that the Wind would fe would much advance his honour with the King, and finch a Stranger along with him; But all his ments having no prevalence on the General, he Grief departed, tho' very glad of the Intelligence learned.

Carlo velicità de (CA)

wided with all Necessaries the place afforded. Sailed thence, Novemb. 9. in fearch of a conve-Harbour to trim and repair their Ship, especially the Calms continued; in pursuance whereof. emb. 14. they arrived at a small Island in 1 Deo Minutes South of the Celebes, which they he fafest because uninhabited, and Anchoring, all necessaries but Fresh Water, which they d from another Island farther South: Here they d twenty fix days, pitching their Tents, and Enhing themselves the best they could, to prevent Diffurbance from the Natives of a great Island. of this; having secured themselves and Goods. fet up their Forge to make Iron work, and their fole being spent, were forced to use Char Cole: whole Isle is over-grown with very high Trees and ds, the Leaves like Broom in England, among appeared in the Night a vaft swarm of Flice Glow-worms, which seemed as if a Candle had lighted on every twig, and the whole had been Starry Heavens: There was also an innumerable pany of Bats or Rere-Mice as big as a Hen, who very swift but short, and hang on the Trees with heads downwards; likewife they met with at quantity of Cray fift, fo large that one would four hungry Men, being very healthful and reftoe, and a reasonable relief to them : They feem to always on Land, breeding in the Earth like Raband under the Roots of huge Trees in great Coms together, and upon pursuit, climb up the to secure themselves, whither those that would them must climb after. They call this Grab-

Having

Having trimmed their Ship, and recovered their Health and Scrength, by the excellent plenty of kind of Refreshments in this place, they only expedi the Breize or Trade wind, which blows only one w for some Months together, and getting in fresh ware and Wood the day before, Decemb. 12. they fet fai Weffward, and in two days had fight of the Islands n Celebes, but were in fo much danger from the Short and Sands, that they beat about till Tan oth, whe supposing they had attained a free passage, the Land turning visibly Westward, and the Wind reasonable fair. Sailing with a full gale without suspicion, in the first Watch of the Night, their Ship suddenly fel upon a desperate sheat, and was in all probability of the point of perishing in a moment, without saving the Lives of any, or the goods they had ventured fuch Perils to attain: All judging it more necessary to prepare for another World, than imploy their though about any thing in this; yet after hearty Prayers in God for Deliverance, the General earnestly Exhort ing them to take serious Care of their Souls, and to contemplate on the joys of another Life; and not be wanting to themselves, he encouraged them by own Example to ply the Pump, and free the Shi from Water; and finding their Leaks did not encrease it gave them some hope that the Bulk was sound which they attributed alone to the Mercy of God, fine no strength of of Iron or wood could possibly have en dured fuch a violent shock, as their Ship suffered, if the extraordinary Providence of Heaven had not interve ned: Their Hope was next to get good Ground, a Anchor hold, and the General himself underrook found, but could find no bottom a Boars length fro the Ship; so that their growing hopes were there quite dash'd again, though this Disappointment concealed from the generality of the Men in the 30 the General still cheering them up with the best in couragements he could think of.

The Ship being to fastened that she could not the

of Stratification and an artist of the strategy

med very probable, that they must either re-on the place with her, or elfe commit themselves me milerable place of Refuge, which was a very choice, and threatned them with a Lingring h: The Ship feemed to declare to them, that the Acd every minute to be destroyed by the Winds Seas, fo that if they should escape out of her, they like to lead a miserable Life among WildBeasts cople it may be more Barbarous than they, in intable Bondage, both of Body and Mind; and if Ship should still continue undestroyed, yet her wifions could not last many days, and there was no bility of recruiting, fo that Famine might cause nto eat the very Fielh from their own Arms. ich was terrible to confider : The hope of escaping leaving her seemed yet more improbable, the Boat being capable of carrying above twenty Persons at and they were in all fifty eight: The nearest was fix Leagues thence and the Wind directly off them, and the first who had Landed, (while were ferching the reft) would certainly have falinto the hand of the Enemy, and gradually all the But if they should escape Death yet the woful tivity into which they must fall, and be thereby rived of the true Worlhip of God, and continually ved with the horrible Impieties and Devilish Idoies of the Natives, would make Death more elee than Life.

The Night being spent in these melancholy thoughts y rejoyced to see the Morning, and it being there of sull Sea, after humble Thanks to the Almighty preserving them thus long, and hearty Prayers and are for a Blossing upon their Endeavours, they again ed to find Auchor hold, but found this second Attent as struitless as the former, so that it seemed officie their Ship should be ever delivered by any lever Power of Man, unless God himself should minusorly appear for their safety, to whose Omnipopower and All-sufficiency they all concluded to refer themselves, having a Sermon preacht to them and receiving the Holy Communion together: After this Bleffed Repaft, not to be wanting in any lawful Means for preferring themselves, they concluded to unload the Ship, which they had hitherto forborn, wherein they were so willingly engaged, that they seemed to dispise what was necessary for their Defence, yea for fuftaining their Lives, throwing not only their Ammunition, but their Meal for Bread into the Sea, being affured that if it pleased the Lord of Hea. ven to fave them, he would fight for them against their Enemies, and not suffer them to perish for want of Bread: and arlength it was God alone that delivered them; for having continued in this milerable condirion, firmly fixt in the Cleft of a Rock, they found that at low Water it was not above fix foot deep on the star-board fide, though at a little Distance there was no bottom to be found; the Wind during the whole rime, blew somewhat stiff directly against their Broad-fide, and thereby forcibly kept their Ship upright. In the beginning of the Tide, while the Water was lowest, it pleased God to calm rhe Wind, whereby their Vessel which required 13 footWater to make her fwim, and had not then above feven on one fide. and wanting the Wind, which had been her prop hitherto on the other, the fell-a reeling toward the deep Water, and thereby freed her Keel, and filled their hearts with Joy.

This Shoal is three or four Leagues in length, in two Degrees South Latitude, the Day of their Deliverance was Jan. 10, and was the greatest danger they met with in their whole Voyage, tho' not the last, as by the sequel appears; For a Monthaster they were in continual sear of these Shoals and Islands, among which they were tost, and which lye in vast number round the South of the Celebes. Jan. 12, nor being able to bear their Sails for fear of Tempests and Sandt they Anchored upon a Shoal, and two days after on a Island, where they stay'd a day Wooding and Wastington.

ing; after which they met with foul Weather, efferly Winds and dangerous Shoals for many days, that being weary of this Coast, they failed for Ti-; but could not fo eafily clear themselves of the lebes, (which lye in five Degrees South Latitude,) Jan. 20, being forced toward a small Island not far in thence, and sending their Boat a good distance fore to fearth ont a place where to Anchor, there denly role a most violent storm out of the Southeff, driving them among the Perilous and hidden pals, fo that they again counted themselves lost, or t they must spend their days among Infidels, if by should escape with their Lives; but that God who hitherto preferved them, was pleased once again deliver them, by unexpectedly filling the Temth, whereby both their Men and Boat were likewife flored to them. Getting off hence as well as they ld, they continued their Course till January 26th, hen they were again assaulted with a very fitting left Wind, so that they could use no sail till the end that Month.

eb. 1. They saw very high Land which seemed Il Inhabited, and would fain have got to it to proare some relief, but the weather being so bad that by could discover no Harbour, they were fearful of enturing too near the Shoar. Two days after they w another little Island, but could not reach in Feb. 6. hey had fight of fix Islands, one East, and the other e Westward of them, at the largest of which they schored, Watered and Wooded next day; Going ince Feb. 8. two Canon came up and talked with m, alluring and conducting them to rheir Town far off, named, Barariva, in 7 degrees 12 Minutes of Laurinde. The People are Geneiles of Heais, very comely of Body, and civil, just, and courreadily relieving their wants with whatever this mery afforded: The Menigo partie except their is and Secrets, every one having home-

ing at their Lars; The Women are cloathed from the Waste to the Feet, wearing abundance of Bracele (some nine or more) upon their naked Arms made of Horn or Brass, the lightest weighing near two Ounce They much value Linnen Cloth, to make Rolls for the Heads, and Girdles about their Middles, and deligh in Stones, and the like Trifles: Their Island is rich Gold, Silver, Copper, Tin and Sulphur, which the work very Artificially into divers Forms and Shaper They have plenty of Nutmegs, Ginger, long Peppe Lemmons, Cucumbers, Coco's, Figo's, Sagu, and C veral other Fruits; whereof they provided themselve of one like a Bay berry, but pleasant in Tast, and bein boiled, is very foft and nourishing Meat: They co cinued here two days, not having found more Con foreand Refreshment in all their Voyage (except Terenate) than in this place.

Feb. 12. Coming to the height of eight Degree four Minutes, they spied a green Island to the South and foon after, two more that way, with a large of toward the North, appearing well inhabited, but the had no occasion to visit them, and therefore past the by together with several others. Feb. 18, they Al chored under a little Island, but found nothing b Wood and two Turdes, after which they failed Westward, without stay or any thing observable, March o when they spiedLand, & Anchored there the Night: Next Morning they bore farther North, a came to an Anchor the second time near the Shor March 11. they took in Water, and fending the Bout again afhore, they Traded with the People, a coming nearer to the Town, the General fent his M afhoar next day to present the King with some Si and Cloth, both Woollen and Linnen, which he that fully received, returning Rice, Cocoes, Hens, and of Provisions in Recompence: They found it to be Mand, in 7 Degrees, 30 Minutes South Laurud March 13 the General with many of his Gentle went alhoar, and presented the King with their

Jacobs Committee of the Committee of the

They shewed him the English Ministery Discipline, Training their Pikes and Muskers before him. They were treated according to their Defire, and at left difficult with a Promise to have more Victuals sent them in this Island there is one Principal, but many betty kings, whom they call Raja's, that five in much Friendship one with another; March 14, they did receive Victuals from two of them, and next day three of these kings came aboard in Person, to visit the dependent, and to view their Ship and Ammunitation, being much pleased with their Entertainment, and what they faw.

01

bd

10

A

b

d

302

the

· 图 · 图 · 图 · 图

After, they had been with them, and related what they found, Raja Donan, the Chief Monarch of t whole Ific came aboard them next day, bringing Victuals for their Relief; and few days paft, but or or other of them came, whom the General Treated with the best Cheer he could make, and sh all the Rarities of their Ship, with their Great Gun Arms, and all the Furniture thereto belonging, and how they were used; never failing to give them Mufick, wherewith they were equally filled with Delight and Admiration: March 18. Raja Donan coming again aboard, in requital of theirs, presented the General with his Country Musick, which the ftrange, yet feemed very pleasant : The same day he fent an Ox to the Water-fide, which he was willing to Exchange for divers forts of coffly Silks, which he much elle ed; their King as well as the People are kind, true, and exact in their Dealings; they traffick'd with 'em for Hens, Goats, Cocoes, Plantains, and other Provihons, whereof they offered them fuch Plenty, that if there had been occasion, they might have laden their Ship with them.

Though these Visits and Entertainments were some bindrance to them, yet having at length walled and trim'd their Ship, and need her from a kind of Shell-Fish sticking fast, wherewish she was overgrown in this large Voyage and much his true her Sailing, they took their Leaves, and departed from Java, March 26. Sailing Well South Well, directly for the Cape of er Sailing, they Good Hope, or Bon Esperance, and continued without being any thing but Air and Water till May 21, when they had light of the Main Land of Africa, very high in some blaces, in 31 Degrees and an half Latitude. They Coasted along till June 15, when having very fair Weather, and the Wind at South-Raft, they palled the faid Cape so near that they could easily have the to Land : July 15. they faw Rio de Cefto, and many Negroes fishing in their Boars, two of which very near them, but would neither talk nordeal with them: July 22. they came to Sierra Leona, on the Coasts of Guinea, and spent two days in Watering et the Month of the River Tagoine, finding plenty of Oysters and Lemmons, which much refreshed them; Aug. 15. they found themselves under the Tropick of Cancer, having the Wind North-East, and being fifty Leagues off the nearest Land; Aug. 22. they were in the Height of the Canaries, and upon Monday, Sept. 16. 1480, saccording to the Computation of those in England, though by passing so many different Climates. they counted it to be Sunday, having loft one day) they with joyful Minds, and thankful Hearts to the Almighty, arrived fafely at Plymouth, from whence they had fet forth two years, ten Months, and a few days before, which they spent in seeing the wonders of the Lord in the Deep; in discovering many admirable Things, in performing several strange Adventures, in elcaping many Dangers, and overcoming many Difficulties in their incompassing this Earthly Globe, and Sailing round the World, as hath been now related.

H 2

> Soli rerum Maximarum Essectori, Soli totius Mundi Gubernatori, Soli suorum Conservatori Soli Deo sit semper Goria.

To him who greatest things doth bring to pals, To him who Ruler of the World still was, To him alone who still preserves his own, To this great God be glory given alone.

A while after he brought up his Ship to Deptford here he Feafted Q. Eliz. Aboard, who Knighted nd much Honoured him for this Service, he be he first who had accomplish d to vast a De ho' Ferdinando Magellane had already direct hose Streights, which still bear his Name, yet he ived not to come home, being flain at the Molacco flands, in endeavouring to reduce the Natives to the Obedience of their New Master the King of Spain. rake is faid, after this Voyage, to have given for is Device, the Globe of the World with this Motto to primus circumdedistime; Thou hast first als me round. His Ship wherein he performed this amous Action, was laid up at Deptford, where it ontinued several Years, and was held in great Adiration by many who came to fee it, but being fterward decayed by Time, and at length broken. ip, a Chair was made of the Planks thereof, and resented to the University Library of Oxford, by ohn Davies of Deptford, Eig upon which Chair Renowned Poet of this Kingdom thus descants.

1

•

Æ

7

n

in

"

he

CE

eri nieu-

Dg

hly

cen

to this great Ship which round the World has run, and matcht in Race the Chariot of the Sun, his Pythagorean Ship (for it may claim without prefumption, to deferved the Name, by Knowledge once, and Transformation now) In her new Shape this facred Port allow; brake and his Ship could not have witht from Fate more bleft Station, or more bleft estate: or (Lo!) a Seat of endless Rest is given to her in Oxford, and to him in Heaven.

Open the Poets fitting and drinking in the Chair made of the Relicks of Sir Francis Drake's Ship.

(1.)

our up my Mares the Wind does fairly blow, Parewel all Lands, for now we are the wide Sea of Drink, and merrily we go: s me, 'tis hot! another Bowl of Wine, And we shall cut the burning Line. Hey Beys! She fouds away, and by my Head I know We round the World are Sailing now; Men ere those that tarry at home, When abroad they might wantonly roam, d gain such Experience, and spy too Such Countries and Wonders as I do? But prithee good Pilot take head what you do, And fail not to touch at Peru; With Gold there your Veffel we will store, And never, and never be poor No never be poor any more.

( 2. )

What do I mean, what Thoughts do me misguide, As well upon a staff may Witches ride
Their fancyed Journey in the Air,
As Isail round the Ocean in this Chair.
Tis true, but yet this Chair, which now you see,
For all its Quiet now and Gravity,
Has wandred and has travell'd more Than ever Beast, or Fish, or Bird, or ever Tree before.

thes compais'd all the earth, and all the heavens has a the proper it left with this compare,

This is the only Universal Chair;

Drake's Vessel now for all her Labour past, Is made the Seat of Rest at last.

Let the case now quite alter'd be, and as thou went'st abroad the World to see,

Let the World now come to see thee.

(3.)

The World will do't; for Curiofity Does no less than Devotion Pilgrims make,
and I my self, who now love Quiet too,
as much almost as any Chair can do,

Mould yet a Journey take, an old Wheel of that Chariot to fee,

Which Phaeton to railly brake. (Drake Yet what could that tay more than these remains of Great Relick! Thou too in this Port of eate, that fill one way of making Voyages;

The great Trade Wind which ne're does fail.
Shall drive thee round the World, & thou finalt run

Along, around it as the Sun.
The Streights of Time too narrow are for thee,
Launch forth into an undiscovered Sea.

And steer the endless Course of all Eternity.

Take for thy Sail this Verse, and for thy Pilot, Me.

CHAP. VII.

The Voyage of Sir Francis Drake into the West Indies in 1585. accompanied with Captain Christopher Carliel, Captain Martin Frobisher, Captain Francis Knollis, and many other Captains and Gentlemen: With their taking the Towns of St. Jago, St. Domingo, Carthagena, and St. Augustine.

H I S worthy Knight having performed that unparallel'd Exploit of incompassing the World, gained so much Reputation thereby, that every Man thought htmfelf happy who was engag'd with this Fortunate Commander: Having therefore only enjoyed some short Breathing since his last great Adventure. he for the Service of his Prince and Country, provided a Navy of twenty five Ships and Pinnaces, aboard which were two thousand three hundred Mariners & Souldiers with their respective Caprains and other Officers, both for Land and Sea Service: He Imbarqued at Plymouth, Sept. 12. 1585. himself being Geperal, Captain Martin Frobisher Vice Admiral, and Caprain Francis Knollis Rear-Admiral: Having thus disparched all necessary Affairs, they sailed thence, direding there Course for Spain, and spied Sails near the moar, the Weather being calm : The Vice-Admiral was fent with the Pinnaces to discover who they were, upon whose approach, mest of them less their ships, being Frenchmen laden with Salt, and homeward bound; amongst these small Ships, the General took one, which had no Man in her, and detained her for his Service, refolving to satisfie the Owner, as accordingly he did at his return; He called this Bark the Drake, and dismiss the rest, being eight or nine in number; soon after they met with another French ship aden with Fish from Newsoundland, whom the General would not suffer to be medled with; next day they described another rall Ship of twelve hundred ton, whom they chased and took, finding her to be of St. Sebastian and Spain, Loaden with poor Jack, which being lawful Prize, they distributed the Fish into the other Ships, & she was very serviceable during their whole Voyage.

n'

8

.

1

1-

d

1

-

e.

d

15

1-10

al

5,

Two days, after, they put in within the Isles of Bayon in Spain, where part of the Fleet had no fooner Anchored, but the General Commanded all the Pinfaces and Ship boars to be well manned, and provided with Arms for prefent, Service, and putting himself to his Galley well furnished stricy rowed toward the City of Bayon, with defign to furprize it; when advancing half way, an English Merchant was sent from Governor to know what firange Fleet they were, tho coming to the General, after some brief Difwhirle, he ordered Captain Samson to go along with the Merchant to the Governour, and defire him to reloive two Points. 1. Whether there were any Wars between Spain and England, and if not, then 2. For what reason the English Merchants Goods were feized and Arrefled. The General in the mean time thought fit not to flay for an Answer, but to il up within that of the City, to be ready for any odden Asiault upon occasion, before it was dark; Captain Sampson returned from after with this Reply, That the Governous laid he knew of no Wars, and has the Power of Peace and War did not lie in for near a Subject as himself, and as for detaining the erchants Goods, it was done by the King's Comnd, without the least delign of indamaging any, d that seven days fince he had sent a Countermand, whereby they were now discharged. To verifie which, he fent all these English Merchans in Town aboard, who affirmed the Truth of it; upon which, after Contultation, it was refolved, that fince it was late, they would Land their Men, and quarter ashoar that night, taking all necessary Care to secure themselves; which done, the Governour lent them Bread, Wine, Oyl, Apples, Grapes, Marmalade, & other Refreshments: About Midnight the weather being overcast, they thought it fafest to repair aboard. but before they could recover the Fleet, a great Tempest arose, driving divers Ships from their Anchor and particularly the Speedwell, which was carried into England, the rest being again recovered: This Storm continued three days, after which Mr. Carliel was fent with his own Ship, three others, the Galley and divers Pinnaers to Vigo, where they took many Boats & Carvels laden with very inconfiderable things especially Houshold fruit going into the High-Country. and one with Church Ornaments, for the Cathedral of Vigo, wherein they found a great Cross of Silver, imboiled, and double guilt over, of a confiderable value and the Owners complained they loft here above thirty thousand Duckets.

Next day General Drake and the whole Pieet failed from the Isles of Bayon, to a very good Harbour above Vigo, where L. General Carliel attended his coming, for the conveniency of fresh Water: Mean time the Governour of Galicia having mustered up two Thousand Foot, and three hundred Horse, marched with them from Bayon to this place, and lay in sight of the Fleet, from whence he sent to the Goneral to defire a Parly, which he agreed to, so it were by Boats in the Water, and Piedges being given on each side for security of their Persons, the Governour and two more came into the Vice-Admiral's Skiff, which was sent a shoar to them, and the General met them in his own where it was concluded, That the English should have been Liberry to come a Land, and turnish them

lves with fresh Water, and all other Necessaries, aying the usual value for the same. Having disched all business here, they proceeded towards the pary Islands, about three hundred Leagues from is part of Spain, defigning for the Island of Palma, furnish themselves with store of Provisions which place abundantly affords, and to have refresh'd mielves with the pleasures thereof, but were prented by the bad entrance into it, which was secured ich very many great Guns, forme of which faor into eir ships, and likewise by the dangerous Seas and laves toward the shoar, which threatned the Defiru-

m of many Boats and Pinnaces.

C

Frustrated of their Defign here, they fell with the e of Ferro, in hope of better Success, and landed a houland Men in a Valley under an high Moun ain, ere they flay'd above three hours, when the Inhaments accompanied by a young fellow born in Engd, came to them and complained they were or, and ready to starve, which they believed true, annd therefore without getting any thing, ere all again commanded to embark, and that Night bey put offrowards the Coast of Barbary. Saturday lov. 12. They fell with Cape Blank, a low Land, and fallow Water, where they catch'd great store of Fish, &c. doubling the Cape fell into the Bay, where they found divers French thips of War, whom they treated kindly and left there, failing thence to the Isles of Cape Verde, and Nov: 16. Anchored their whole Fleet beween a Town called Plaie, and St. Jago, both on that land, putting above a Thousand Men ashoar, under General Carliel: The place where they landed was ony and troublesome, and therefore with much inthry they marched farther up, till they came to a catant plain, two Miles from the Town of St. Jago, here the L. General having pur his Men in Order rered to attempt nothing till the next morning, fince had no Guide to the place : In the Morning ball hour before Sun-rifing, he divided his Arm three parts and by day-light advanced in good Order toward the Wall of the Town, but found no Enemy to refift; whereupon Captain Sampson and Captain Barron, each with thirty Mulketeers, were commanded to go down into the Town, which was in a Valley under them, and from whence they might plainly view it all over, after whom was fent the great Enfign having nothing in it but the plain English Cross, which was ordered to be placed in the Fort to ward the Sea. that the Fleet might fee St. George's Cross Triumphant in the Enemie's Fortres: Being arrived there, all the Inhabitants were fled, whereupon all the Cannon about the Town, being above fifty ready Charged, were made ready and shot off in honour of Queen Elizabeth's coming to the Crown that day, being Nov. 17. according to the Custom in England, which were answered by the greater Guas from the Fleet, who now approached so near, that this thundering noise continued a great while together. Mean while, the L. General continued with the greatest part of his Porces on the top of the Hill, till the Town was quartered out for Lodging his whole Army: which being done, and every Captain fettled in him own Quarters, in the Evening they placed fuch fufficient Guards about the Town, as they had no cause to fear an Enemy: Here they staid 14 days, taking such Spoils as the place yielded, as Wine, Oyl, Meal, Vinegar, Olives, and the like; but no treasure, nor any thing elfe of value: The City of St. Jago is of a Triangular form, having two Rocky Mountains on the East and West side, which seem to hang overit, on the Top whereof were built certain Fortifications to secure it; From thence to the South fide of the Town is the Main Sea, and on the North the Valley lying between those Mountains wherein the City flands, the diffance being very parrow between them: Through the midft of the Valley runs a small Rivolet of Fresh Water, which makes a Pond or Pool near the Scafide, where their Ships took in water with much conT

•

3

5

t

C

31

•

0

h

.

2

e

0

01

0.

C.

eniency: At the Towns end the Valley growing later, is converted into Gardens and Orchards, repleaffect with Lemmons, Oranges, Sugar Canes, Cocoits, Plantains, Potaroes, Cucumbers, Onyons, Gar-

ck, and divers other Fruits, Herbs and Trees. During their stay here, a Portugal came to the lest-Fore with a Flag of Truce, to whom were sent Captains Sampson and Goring, who first afted hat Nation they were? They faid English men: He en inquired whether there were Wars between Engnd and Spain? Who answered, 'They knew not, out if he would go to their General, he would resolve im of all doubts, offering him late conduct, who efused, as not being sent by their Governour: They en told him, 'That if the Governous defired the Benefit of his People and Countrey, he would do bell ocome and present himself to their Noble and Mereiful General Sir Francis Drake, from whom he might be affured of favour both for himself and the Inhahi. tants, otherwise within three days they should march in order to destroy all places and People with Fire and Sword: With this answer he departed profing to return next day, but they never beard of in more. Nov. 24. The General, L. General, and oo Men marched toward a Village 12 mile within he Land, called Sancto Domingo, inhabited by the Governour, the Bishop, and other Persons of Quality; they arrived there about Eight in the Morning, but all the People were fled to the Mountains, where they faid some time to see, if any would appear : Being efresht, the General ordered them to march back ain; in their retreat the knemy appeared both Horse nd Foot, but not so strong as to engage them, but let hem pass by with only gazing at them, so that toward light they arrived safe back to St. Jago.

Nov. 26. They again prepared to Imbark their Ary, some being sent in the interim to the Town of ty, or Praie, to search for Ammunition, which a lioner taken the day before, promised to discover;

but

but when they came there, either he could or would not do it; but fearthing all likely Places, they found one Brais, and another Iron great Gun: In the Afternoon, the General and his whole Fleet Anchored at Plaie, and coming ashoar, commanded the Town to be burnt, and themselves to repair instantly aboard. which being quickly dispatch'd, they all imbarqued that Night, and put off to Sea-South Weft. time they were at Sr. Jago, neither the Governous, who was a Portugal, nor the Bifhop, whose Authority is great there, nor any of the People ever came (tho' they expected they would) to defire them to spare their Provisions, or forbear Ruining their Town, which they judged proceeded from the Guilt of the Treachery and Cruelry used toward Mr. Will. Hawkings of Plymouth, with whom about five Years before they broke their Faith, and murthered many of his Men; but fince they came not at them, the Englift left written in several places, especially at the Spittle-House, (which was ordered to be spared from the Fire) the Indignation they had against them, not only for not appearing, but for their barbarous Ulage of the Body of one of their Boys, whom they had taken stragling, and having beheaded him and taken out his heart, had in a brutish manner scattered the rest of his Limbs about the place. In revenge of which Savage and Inhumane Villany, they burnt all the Houses they found in the Country, as well as the Town of Sr. Tago.

From hence they sailed directly toward the West-Indies, but had not been many days at Sea, when above three hundred of their Men died, though till seven or eight days after their coming from St. Jago, they had not lost one Man in the whole Fleet: They were seized with an extream burning continual Ague, and some spots like those of the Plague appeared upon some of the dead; those sew, who escaped with Life, were much decayed in their Understanding a long time after. In eighteen days they reached from Se.

to Dominica, being the first Island they fell with. bired by barbarous People going all naked, and ming themselves red; the Men are personable and ing, but hold little Correspondence with the Spaplards, having then two of that Nation Prifeners, and em a very treacherous People, though they were very riceable rothem, during their thort flay, helpin heir Men to bring fresh Water on their bare shoul-lers, from the River to their Boats, and setching tem great from of Tobacco and Caslavy Bread from their Houses; and in requiral, received liberal reards of Glass, coloured Beads, and other things meh the English found at St. Jago, wherewith they semed much pleased, and appeared for rowful at their departure.

of

}-

16

n ot

ge

en

he

eh

he

UN

ft-

en

ill

go,

ey

ue,

on

From hence they went Weffward to the Ifle of St. Christophers, where they speat some days of Christmais, to refresh their Sick, and cleanle their Ships, but found no people there: It was concluded to procred next to the great Island of Hilpaniola, incited illereto with the fame of the rich City of St. Domingo. being the most considerable place on those Coasts, and turther their purpole, they by the way took a small frigot bound thither, and having examined the Men, band the Haven was barred, and the Caftle on the Moar well fortified with Artillery, so that there was to convenient Landing Place within ten English Miles of the City, to which the Pilot ingaged to bring 'em; this being resolved on, next Morning early at the said place, about ten Miles West of that famous City, the forces who were imbarqued into Pinnaces, Boats, and other small Barks appointed for this Service. landed under Lieutenant General Carliel, and about eight a Clock began to march, approaching the Town ward Noon, where they were met about an hunled Gentlemen of Quality on Horse-back, but the all fhot played so smarrly upon them, that they were red to retire, and to feffer them to proceed to the Gares of the Town next the Sea, which were companies of small shot planted in Ambuicade on the High way: The English divided their Atmy, consisting in about twelve. Hundred Men into two parts, to assault both the Gates at once, the Lieutenant General publickly declaring to Captain Powel, that with God's help he would go on till both Parties met in the Mata ker place of St. Domingo.

Upon their approach, the Cannon were fired up. on them, which killed one Man near the Lieutenant General, who not in the least dismayed, incouraged his Men to march on briskly, and prevent them from Charging again; which they profesured with fo much Vigor, that notwithstanding the Ambuscades, they vahantly entred the City Gates putting all the Spaniards to flight, and forthwith repaired to the Market place. which was a very fair square before the great Church. whither Captain Powel according to Agreement, foon after came; there they secured themselves that night and about Midnight those in the Castle finding the English busie at the Gates, abandoned it, some being taken Prisoners, and others escaping by Boats to the other fide of the Haven. At this time Gen. Drake fent a Negro Boy with a White Flag, and a Message to the Spaniards according to their own Ulage, who unhappily meeting with some of the Officers belonging to the Spanish Gally then in possession of the English, one of them was so inraged, that he thrust the poor Boy through the Body with an Horleman's staff, who had yet strength enough to return and give the General an Account of this Barbarous Act; ifter which he fell down dead in his Presence, whereat the General was so in. raged that he Ordered three Spanish Prisoners to be carried to the same place and hanged. Sending them Word, That till the Person who had Murdered their Mestenger, was delivered up to Condign Punishment, he would hang two Spanish Prisoners every day will they were all dispatch'd. Upon which the next day the Captain of the King's Galley brought the Offender the Towns end, offering to deliver him into their inds, but they defired that he might be executed by he Spaniards themselves in their Presence, thinking it ore honourable Revenge, and so Execution was ac-

ordingly done upon him.

- Total - -

n.

5

,

1

0,

1 C

g.

C

ć,

0

-

01

e,

y d

n H

Ļ,

n n

In this place (as formerly at St. Jago) one of their own Company, an Irish Man, was Executed for Murering his Corporal. At this time many Propolals ere offered by the Commissioners to save their City, which not taking effect, the English for several Mornigs together endeavoured to fire the migh Stoneouses, but with little Success, though 200 Mariners sere imployed every day to perform it, so that at ength, wearied with firing, & on divers other accounts ley were content to accept of twenty five Thouland buckets, (each five shillings fix Pence in Value) as a kinfom for the rest of the Town: Among other remarkables in St. Domingo, it is observable, That in the all of the Kings House, there are the Arms of Spain' minted in a large Escurcheon, under which is placed Globe of the whole World, with a Horse, as it were caping on it, and a scrole out of his Mouth, wherein was written, Non Sufficit Orbis, the World Sufficeth not; which sufficiently discovers the unbounded Ambition of the Spanish Monarchy, and the Commisfioners being defired by the General to explain the meaning of ir, shook their Heads and smiled, seeming thamed of it, fince they were told, 'That if the Queen of England would profecute the War vigoroully against them, they would find it enough to preserve what they had got, and not think of gaining more from others, as by the loss of this famous Town did sufficiently appear: They found no great Riches it, which was occasioned by the cruelty used by the paniards to the Natives of Hispaniola, which tho nost as large as England, the People were utterly defored in a few years by their Tyranny, fo that for n of Men, the Mines of Gold and Silver in this ad are wholly given over, and they are now forced great quantity: Their chief Trade confists in Sugar and Ginger which grow there, and in Ox and Cowhides, who breed infinite numbers of Cattle in this vast. Country: They have also store of strong Wines, sweet Oyls, Viuegar, Olives, Wheat-meal, and other Provisions; with Silks, Woollen and Linnen Cloath brought from Spain, which were a great relief to them; they met with but little Plate, because they use Procellant Dishes for Meat, and Glasses to drink in.

Leaving St. Domingo, they failed along the Coaff of the Continent, and at length came in fight of Carthagena, built fo near the Sea, that they approached within Musquet shot thereof: The Mouth o the Harbour was within three Miles West of the To .... into which they entred about four in the Afternoon. out the least Resistance: In the Evening they landed toward the Harbours Mouth under their Lieutenant General Carliel, marching filently by the shoar till within two Miles of the Town, when they were met with about an hundred Horsemen, who taking the Alarm upon the first Volley of the English shor, retired back to the Town; at which instant some great Guns being discharged, they understood that accotding to Agreement the Night before, their Vice-Admira! and other Captains had in divers Pinnaces and Boars attempted the little Fort at the entrance of the Haven, but to little purpose, fince it was very firong, and the narrow entrance chain'd over, only it gave an Alarm to the other fide of the Haven, a Mile and half from the place where they were: The Englife Proops now marching within half a Mile of the Town, the Passage grew narrow, but not above fifty Paces broad, having the Main Sea on one fide, and the Haven on the other, and was fortified quite over with a stone Wall and a Ditch behind, with Flankings all along, a way only being left unwalled for a Horse of Carriages to pass through, which yet was barricado'd

io

the

for

to ot

tre

10

b

of Sin Francis Drake."

per Barrels filld with Barth all along: It had the pert Guns, which were discharged on their Front at heir Approach: There were likewise two great Galastrought near the shoar, planted with eleven pieces a Cannon, which shot cross the way, with three or far hundred small shot, and upon the Land, three hundred Musquets and Pikes more for Guarding this meight.

The English coming on, the Spaniards being in reaines, spared not for small and great shot, but the lientenant General taking the advantage of the darkis of the Morning before Sun-rife, approached by he Sea shore according to his express direction the which before, where the Water being somewhat fallen, of of their thot was in vain: The English were fore hid shooting till they came to the Wall, and coming to the Barricado of Wine Butts, they inflantly fell on; howing down the Barrels, and falling in brilkly both ith their Swords and Pikes, even at their very faces, her their Mulkers had given their first Volley, to that he Spaniards were driven from the place, and purfued no the Town, without giving them any breathing ime, till the English got to the Market-place, though they sometimes made a head to prevent it; and were: forced to leave them possession of the Town flying inthe Country to their Wives and Families, whom hey had tent away before. They had raifed handome Barricadoes of Earth at every Streets end intenched about, in entring which, some small Refistince was made, but they were all foon disperst; few ring either wounded or flain: They had planted tham Indians with Bows, in places of Advantage, their arrows being poyloned to such a height, that if they but break the Ikin, the wound was whally morthey flew some English therewith, and with spikes por and half long, fastened in the ground and far mmon way; but they planted a valt number in the pily escaped the greatest part of them: They tool

Prioner, and having utterly routed the rest, continued in the Town six Weeks, the Mortality aforement oned still continuing among them, called by the Somiards a Calenture, and imputed by them to the Airothe Twy sight; called La Serena, which they affirm mortally infects all who are then abroad, except the natural Indians of the Country, and that these winesees on the Watch, were hereby subject to this sufection.

The Inconvenience of this Sickness hindred then from profecuting their Defign of going to Nombre d Dios, and so over Land to Panama, in hopes of gain ing sufficient Treasure to recompence their redio Travels, which being found impracticable, they were relolved to return home without attempting farth that way: One day while they were there, the Cent nel placed upon the Church-Steeple, discovered to small Barks at Sea, whereupon several Captains a Sea-men got aboard two small Pinnaces in hope feize them before they got nigh the Shoar, or had n tice from Land of their being in the Town, but no withstanding their utmost dilligence, the Spaniard had given them a Sign, so that upon the approach the Pinnaces, they ran ashoar and hid themselves the Bulkes among other Spaniards, who had give them notice of their danger: The English seeing the Barks empty, rashly went aboard, and standing open on the Deck, were suddenly shot at by a Company Spaniards out of the Hedges, whereby Caprain Va ney was flain on the place, and Captain Moon died few days after, four or five more being hurr; fou not having men enough to fight alhoar, most of the being Seamen unarmed, fince they hoped to have ken the Barks with their great Guns, they were ced to return without effecting any thing, the't might eafily have taken them, had they reached the before they come to nigh the Shoar.

ing their stay here (as formerly at St. Domin-everal Kindnesses passed between them and the , as Feafting, Visiting, and the likes Among othe Governour of Carthagena, with the Bishop veral other Gentlemen came to fee the General: had burnt some part of the City, before they make the Spaniards agree, about Ranforning in last they concluded to give the English one hanand ten thousand Duckets (each five Shillings fix flerling) to spare the rest; so that, though not lo big as St. Domingo, yet they payed a far greater om as being of far more importance for its exent Harbour, and Situation for the Trade of Nom-Dios, and Inhabited with far richer Merchants. er being chiefly filled with Lawyers and Genit being the Highest Court of Law and Justice those Islands, and the Continent also: Their Notice of the coming of the English twenty efore from St. Domingo, caused them to be so ornified and prepared, and had carried away all Treasure and rich Goods: Upon paying the Sum d, they left the Town, but drew some of their diers into the Priory or Abbey a Quarter of a mile w near the Harbour, walled with Stone; relling Spaniards, 'That this was yet their own, and not h suprehended in the Composition lately made; who es i lensible of this defect, effered to contract for fe-SING a Thousand Crowns for the Abbey, but pleaded g th pen were not able to give so much for the other, ha-CY done their utmost; whereupon the English unined the Block-house, and blew it up with Gunlicut er. io t

10 10

TC

while the whole Fleet fell down to the mouth Herbour, furnishing themselves with fresh Wafom a great Well in an Island thereby, which is leafant, abounding with Orange Trees, and feother Choice Fruits, fet in fuch exact Order for that the whole Isle, being about three Miles

round

Alonzo Bravo, the chief Commander of the Barrical Priloner, and having utterly routed the rest, continued in the Town six Weeks, the Mortality aforements oned still continuing among them, called by the Spaniards a Calenture, and imputed by them to the Air of the Twy light, called La Serena, which they affirm mortally infects all who are then abroad, except the natural Indians of the Country, and that those who were on the Watch, were hereby subject to this Infection.

The Inconvenience of this Sickness hindred them from prosecuting their Design of going to Nombre de Dios, and so over Land to Panama, in hopes of gain. ing sufficient Treasure to recompence their tedious Travels, which being found impracticable, they were resolved to return home without attempting farther that way: One day while they were there, the Centipel placed upon the Church-Steeple, discovered two small Barks at Sea, whereupon several Captains and Sea-men got aboard two small Pinnaces in hope to seize them before they got nigh the Shoar, or had notice from Land of their being in the Town, but not withflanding their utmost dilligence, the Spaniards had given them a Sign, so that upon the approach of the Pinnaces, they ran ashoar and hid themselves in the Bulkes among other Spaniards, who had given them notice of their danger: The English seeing the Barks empty, rashly went aboard, and standing openly on the Deck, were suddenly shor at by a Company of Spaniards out of the Hedges, whereby Caprain Varney was flain on the place, and Captain Moon died a few days after, four or five more being hurr; so that not having men enough to fight alhoar, most of them being Seamen unarmed, fince they hoped to have take ken the Barks with their great Guns, they were for ced to return without effecting any thing, tho' they might eafily have taken them, had they reached them before they come so nigh the Shoar.

O OR ETHER DUKE

uring their flay here (as formerly at St. Do everal Kindnesses passed between them and the the Governour of Carthagena, with the Bilhop several other Gentlemen came to fee the General: whad burnt some part of the City, before they d make the Spaniards agree, about Ranforning in at last they concluded to give the English one hadand ten thousand Duckets (each five Shillings fix e flerling) to spare the rest; so that, though not to big as St. Domingo, yet they payed a far greater form, as being of far more importance for its exlent Harbour, and Situation for the Trade of Nomde Dios, and Inhabited with far richer Merchanes, other being chiefly filled with Lawyers and Gennen, it being the Highest Court of Law and Justice all those Islands, and the Continent also: Their mg Notice of the coming of the English twenty before from St. Domingo, caused them to be so foreified and prepared, and had carried away all ar Treasure and rich Goods: Upon paying the Sum sed, they left the Town, but drew some of their ouldiers into the Priory or Abbey a Quarter of a mile low near the Harbour, walled with Stone; telling e Spaniards, 'That this was yet their own, and not comprehended in the Composition lately made; who ing sensible of this defect, offered to contract for sering that and the Block-house likewise, agreeing to y a Thousand Crowns for the Abbey, but pleaded ey were not able to give so much for the other, hang done their utmost; whereupon the English unmined the Block-house, and blew it up with Gunwder.

Mean while the whole Fleet fell down to the mouth the Harbour, furnishing themselves with fresh Wafrom a great Well in an Island thereby, which is ty pleasant, abounding with Orange Trees, and setal other Choice Fruits, set in such exact Order for alks, that the whole Isle, being about three Miles round Alonzo Bravo, the chief Commander of the Barricale Priloner, and having utterly routed the rest, continued in the Town six Weeks, the Mortality aforementioned still continuing among them, called by the Spaniards a Calenture, and imputed by them to the Air of the Twy-light, called La Serena, which they affirm mortally infects all who are then abroad, except the natural Indians of the Country, and that those who were on the Watch, were hereby subject to this Infection.

The Inconvenience of this Sickness hindred them from prosecuting their Design of going to Nombre de Dios, and so over Land to Panama, in hopes of gain. ing sufficient Treasure to recompence their tedious Travels, which being found impracticable, they were resolved to return home without attempting farther that way: One day while they were there, the Centinel placed upon the Church-Steeple, discovered two small Barks at Sea, whereupon several Captains and Sea-men got aboard two small Pinnaces in hope to feize them before they got night he Shoar, or had notice from Land of their being in the Town, but not withstanding their utmost dilligence, the Spaniards had given them a Sign, so that upon the approach of the Pinnaces, they ran ashoar and hid themselves in the Bulkes among other Spaniards, who had given them notice of their danger: The English seeing the Barks empty, rashly went aboard, and standing openly on the Deck, were suddenly shor at by a Company of Spaniards out of the Hedges, whereby Caprain Varney was flain on the place, and Captain Moon died tew days after, four or five more being hurr; so that not having men enough to fight alhoar, most of them being Seamen unarmed, fince they hoped to have take ken the Barks with their great Guns, they were for ced to return without effecting any thing, tho' they might cafily have taken them, had they reached them before they come so nigh the Shoar.

ON ON FRIENDS DEACH

rine their flay here (as formerly at St. Dor several Kindnesses passed between them and the o, as Feathing, Vititing, and the likes Among othe Governour of Carthagena, with the Bilhop several other Gentlemen came to see the General: had burnt fome part of the City, before they make the Spaniards agree, about Ranforning it. t last they concluded to give the English one hanand ten thousand Duckets (each five Shillings fix e flerling) to spare the rest; so that, though not to big as St. Domingo, yet they payed a far greater fom, as being of far more importance for its exent Harbour, and Situation for the Trade of Nomde Dios, and Inhabited with far richer Merchants, other being chiefly filled with Lawyers and Genen, it being the Highest Court of Law and Justice all those Islands, and the Continent also: Their mg Notice of the coming of the English twenty before from St. Domingo, caused them to be so fortified and prepared, and had carried away all ar Treasure and rich Goods: Upon paying the Sum ted, they left the Town, but drew some of their puldiers into the Priory or Abbey a Quarter of a mile ow near the Harbour, walled with Stone; telling e Spaniards, ' That this was yet their own, and not omprehended in the Composition lately made; who ring sensible of this defect, offered to contract for seing that and the Block-house likewise, agreeing to y a Thousand Crowns for the Abbey, but pleaded y were not able to give so much for the other, hang done their utmost; whereupon the English unmined the Block-house, and blew it up with Gunwder.

n

0

of

2

8 4 6

Mean while the whole Fleet fell down to the mouth the Harbour, furnishing themselves with fresh Wafrom a great Well in an Island thereby, which is to pleasant, abounding with Orange Trees, and setal other Choice Fruits, set in such exact Order for alks, that the whole Isle, being about three Miles

round

round, is all made into Gardens and Orchards. Afte fix weeks about at Carthagens, they put to Sea Man 2 1. 1536, and two days after a great Ship taken St. Domingo, and called by them the New-years Laden with great Guns, Hides, and other, Plund forunk a great Leak, and in the Night loft Compa of the Fleet; being mis dnext morning, the Gene doubting some Missortune, fent and found her o but in great, extremity, all her Men being fired wit Pumping, and the Talbot Bark, who happily stave with her, was ready to take out her Men and lear her; whereupon they all returned to Carthagen flaying there eight or ten days longer to unload her. dispose her Men and Goods in another Ship, and the going once more to Sea, directed their course towar Cape Sr. Anthony, being the East part of Cuba, when they arrived April 27, and parting thence toward the Havana, after 14 days they were forced back again and being in much want of Water, found a sufficient Supply of Rain-Water (newly fallen as they judge in the Pits and Marthy Ground near the Sea-fide; if General being as diligent as the meanest, in making necessary Provision here as well as elsewhere, and w much affifted in his Affairs by the Prudent Counce and Performances of L. General Carliel. Three day being spent in watering the Fleet, they departed as cond time for Cape St. Anthony, May 13. and Sa ing along in fight of the Coast of Florida, May 2 they perceived a place like a Beacon on the Sho about 30 Degrees North Latitude; upon which, ma ning their Pinnaces, and coming near, they Land and Marched up along the River fide, General Dra himself commanding them, and perceived a Fo newly built by the Spaniards on the other fide the ver over against them; about a Mile above, was little Town or Village of wooden Houses, withou walls: They presently prepared their great Guns batter down the Fort, and the first that struck throu their Enfign, as they heard by a Frenchman who can be

の出る

W

CC

Di

ke

Th

Pir

out

rre

boi

Pay

Th

the

them from the Enemy; another that struck the for of the Fort, which was all of Massy Timber, to Mass of Ships: It was resolved that night to pass to River with four Companies and assault it, but the L. several going in a Skiff with six Captains more well med, to make discovery, the Spaniards thinking heir whole Fleet had been come, took the Alarm, & secondly for sook the Fort, after having discharged sew Pieces.

The L. General being remrned without knowing hey were gone; immediately a French Piper who had een their Prisoner, came Piping to them in a linke Boat, and being called by the Guard told them before ewent ashoar what he was, and that the Spaniards were gone from the Forr, offering either to put him-If into their hands, or to return back and direct those ist would go to the Fort, whereupon the General, General, and some Captains in their Skiffs, accomenied with three Pianaces furnished with Souldiers. ent over toward the Fort. At their approach, some of the Enemy bolder than the rest staying behind, thot the pieces of Ordnance at them; but they went ashoar and entred the place without finding any Man there. When Day appeared, they faw it was built all of Timbet, the Walls being only whole Bodies of Trees placed close regether like Pales, not having yet made a Dirch, nor turnished it so that they had no reason to keep it, it being fo subject both to Fire and Aslaults; The Plat-form for their Guns was the Bodies of long Pine Trees, whereof they have Plenty, laid cross each other, and filled up with Earth, they found there 14 great Brass Guns, and a Chest lock'd, wherein was abour 2000 l. sterling, thought to be the King's, for Payment of the Souldiers, who were about 150 Men; The Fort thus won, (which they called St. John's Fort) they defigned to go to the Town by Land, but were prevented by the Rivers and broken ground, therebre imbarking again, they fail'd thither upon the River fled, as well as the Town Sr. Augustine: coming roward ward Land, fome Spaniards appeared, and gave them a few thot, but presently withdrew, and in their flight the Sergeant Major finding a Horse ready sadled and bridled, mounted him, and followed the Chase before the rest; when suddenly from behind a Bush he was shot through the Head, wherewith falling, two or threeSpaniards more came in, and flabbed him with their Swords and Daggers into the Body in three or our places, before any could come near to rescue him whose Death was much lamented.

They understood that in this Town of St. Augustine. the King maintained 150 Souldiers, and at St. He. lena 12 Leagues farther North 150 more, only to fe cure those Coasts from being Inhabited by other Ne. tions: The Governour was the Marquels Pedro Me. lender, who had Command of both places, and yet ran away from them with the first: They here refolved to attempt St. Helena, and to find out the English inhabiting Virginia; and June 9. observing a very great Fire alhoar, the General sent his Skiff to the place, and found some English sent thither by Sir Water Rawleigh the year before, and one coming aboard, gave them directions where to find a good Harbour: The General fent thence a Letter to Sir R. Lane, Governour of the English in Virginia, who was then at his Port about fix Leagues from the Road, in an Island called Roanoac, from whence he fent them Supplies of all they wanted, and next day Mr. Lane and its, some of his Company came aboard, and the General with confent of his Captains, made him two Propofals, either to leave a Ship, Pinnace, or certain Boats, with sufficient Masters, Mariners, and a Months Provision, to stay and make Discovery of the Country, and the Coasts, and likewise so much Victuals as might suffice to bring them all home, being 103 Perfons, if they thought fit afterward, or elle, if they judged they had already made sufficient Discovery and defired to return into England, he would give them passage: But they being willing to stay, thank fully

ly,

110 hip

inn

N

nort

nabl

hink

firf

is Co

o giv

d, a oun Tive

this oung

re : lan,

Dey

ms, tah dinto their Charge by some of Mr. Lanes Compay, whom he then put aboard her; but before they addreceived the Provisions allotted them, a dangerous form, which lasted three days, drove many of their hips from their Anchors, and some were forced to ta, among which, the Ship appointed for Mr. Lane, as forced so far to avoid the Coast, that they never wher again till they came to England; many of their innaces and small Boats being lost in the Tempest.

Notwithstanding this the General offered Mr. Lane nother Ship, but not fit for their purpose, the being mble to be brought into the Harbour, & the General not linking fit to spare so much Provisions as he intended first: Upon Consulcation Mr. Lane and the rest of Company defired the General under their hands, give them passage for England, which being grana, and the rest of the English sent for out of the buntry and Shipt, they left that Coast, June 18. and rived at Plymouth, July 28, following; The purchase this Voyage was valued at Threescore Thousand and, whereof those who went the Voyage were to re 20000, amounting to fix pounds to the meanest in, and the other 40 was paid the Adventurers; bey lost about 750 Men, whereof eight were Capins, four Lieutenanes, and eight Gentlemen; they tahout 240 great Guns, whereof above 200 were als, and so happily ended their Voyage.

CHAP. VIII.

Qu Qu

Rel

lei

Of Re

An W

h thi

by it)

co

ne

ev of

Sir Francis Drake is made Vive-Admiral of England, in the Spanish Invasion, 1588 And performs many Worthy Actions, taking Don Pedro de Valdez, a Principal Sea-Commander, Prisoner. The pretended Invincible Armado is utterly defeated and overthrown.

Ambitious to be imployed in Glorious Action and Atchievements, as appears in the Person of our Worthy Commander, Sir Francis Drake, who having adventured so many great dangers in encompassing the World, with so great Advantages to himself, might in reason have been thought willing to spend the remainder of his days in the quiet enjoyment of his acquired Honour and Riches; but when the service of his Country call'd him forth, no Man was more ready to obe his Prince in the defence thereof, against a Foreign In vasion, as appears by his Magnanimous Exploits in 1888.

The Astronomers of that Age foretold long before that this should prove a wonderful Year, and the Climacterick of the World, which was in some measure accomplished in that great Deliverance of England from the Spanish Invasion: The design was no let than the Conquest of England, and reducing it to the Obedience of that King, for which many Pretence were used, as the Queens supporting the K. of Span Rebels in the Netherlands, surprizing and plunders several Towns both in Spain and America; of white the Spanish Ambassador complained to Q. Elizabet nd after a long Recital of his Masters demands, he um'd up the effect of them in the following Terrestick;

re veto ne pergas bello defendere Belgas, Qua Dracus eripuit, nunc reflituentur oportet, Quas Pater evertit, jubes te condere Cellas, Religio Papa fac restituatur ad unguem-Thus Englished.

These to you are our Commands, send no help to the Netherlands; Of the Treasure took by Drake Resitution you must make; And those Abbys build anew Which your Father overthrew; If for any peace you hope, in all points restore the Pope.

The Queen imiling at these demands, returned

this fudden Answer,

Ad Græcas bone Rex fient mandata Calendas.

In English thus.

Worthy King, know this your Will

At Latter Lammas we'l fullfil.

Hereupon an Invalion being fully reloived on by the Spanish Court, a great and f as they term'd it) Invincible Navy, was with vast Charge prepar'd to effect this mighty Delign, confifting of 130 ships, containing 57880 Tun, wherein were 845 Marners, 19295 Souldiers, and 2088 Gally Slaves, and well furnished with all forts of Americanion, hating 220000 great thot, 4200 Kintals of Powder, every Kintal containing 100 weight, 1000 Kintals of Lead for Bullets, and 1200 Kintals of Match, 1000 Muskets, 10000 Halberts, with Rore of murhering Pieces, double Cannon and Field pieces for the Camp, when they should have Landed. They ad also here of Furniture for Carriages, Mules Horles; to that they were fufficiencle provided or Sea and Land, together with Be ne, for 6 Monthes, and 6000 his con 3000 of Cheefe, besides Plesh, Rice, Beans, Pease, Oyl and Vinegar, with 12000 Pipes of Fresh Water, they had also store of Torches, Lamps and Lanthorns, with Canvas and Lead to stop Leaks: In short, the Army was 32000 Men, and cost the K. of Spain 32000

Duckets every Day.

The General of this Potent Army, was the Duke of Medina Sidonia; and the Prince of Parma built many Ships and flat bottom'd Boats in the Netherlands. each Boat big enough to carry 20 Horse, with Bridges to thip and unthip them: He made the Rivers deeper from Antwerp to Gaunt and Bruges, loaded 300 small Boats with Ammunition and Victuals, laid 300 flat bottom'd Boats more in Newport-Haven, besides 37 Ships of War at Dunkirk; he prepared Piles headed with Iron to stop up the Mouris of the Rivers; at Graveling he provided 20000 empty Calks, to make floating Bridges to flop up the Haven, with an infinite number of Faggors; he shipped abundance of Sadles, Bridles and other Furniture for Horie, and Hories for Carriage, with Cannon and other Provisions for War: Near Newport lay 4000 Italian and Walloon Souldiers; at Dixmude he mustered 1 2000 Netherlanders, Spaniards and High-Dutch; at Conick 4000, and at Watena 900 Horfe.

mo

tea

fho

bol

wi

Du:

GA

the

Pri

fiot

W25

ma

0

th

ri

m

M

of

The Queen of England having notice of these wonderful Preparations, after solemn Fasting and Prayers for Deliverance from her mighty Adversaries, provided with all diligence as strong a Fleet as she could, with all things necessary for defence; and having a discerning Judgment of Mens Abilities, she committed the Command of her Navy to C. Howard of Essingham
1. H. Admiral of England, and Sir Francis Drake was Vice-Admital, whom she sent to the West parts of England; and for guarding the narrow Seas, the La Seymore was to lie on the Coasts of the Low-Countries with 40 ships to watch the Prince of Parma; she then ordered the Militia of the Kingdom to be raised and mustered under the Earl of Leicester, 2000 where-were dispos'd, to Guard the Southern Coalls; she d two Armies more, one of a 1000 Horse and 20 onland Foot, incamped at Tilbury near the Thames outh, where the Enemy defigned to come; the oher of 34000 Foot and 2000 Horse under the Lord Hunsdon were a Guard to the Queen's Person; She kewise Fortified and Manned all the places which were commodious for the Enemy to Land at, as Milord Haven, Falmouth, Plymouth, Portland, the Isle of Wight, Portsmouth, the open Coast of Kent caled the Downs, the Thames Mouth, Harwich, Yarmouth, Hull, and other Places, with command, that the Trained Bands of the Coast-Shires, should be ready to prevent the Enemies landing; but if they hould Land, then to destroy all the Country thereabout, that they might not subfift by what they brought with them; That they should amuse them with contimal Alarms, but not venture a Battle till they had lufficient Force to Engage them.

Fet amidst these Provisions for War on both fides, the Spaniards pretended still to Peace, and by the Prince of Parma a Treaty was proposed and Columiflioners on each fides met in Tents near Oftend, which was then in the Hands of the English . The Queen demanded, That there might be an absolute Suspension of Arms & a present Truce, fince the much superied the Spaniards unusual Preparations; that for the security of England, that great Army of Foreign Souldier might be drawn out of the Low Countries; That the Money the had lent the States, and which the King of Spain promised to restore, might be paid; That the Netherlands might enjoy their Antient Rights & Priviledges, and not be governed by a Stranger, but Native Prince: That they might have freedom in eligion; and laftly, that the Articles of Pacification Gaunt, and the rest might be observed: Which ings being granted, the would upon teafonable trus deliver up those Towns in the Netherlands ow meher Poffession, and make it appear the had

G. 3

Lin Folloge and Adventures

the Necetary defence of those Countries. To the the Spaniards replied, 'That as to their Preparation at Sea, they assored them that it no way concerned England; That the K. would not send away his Sould diers till the Netherlands had absolutely submitted to him; That their Priviledges did no way concern the Queen, neither ought she to prescribe Law to aking That as to Religion, he would only allow the same Freedom as to the other Cities that had submitted to him; And as for the Money expended about the Towns, the King of Spain might as well demand of ther the Millions he had expended in the Low Country War, since the time she had supported and Prosteded the Revolters.

ום

in

(

Soon after Dr. Dale, one of the Commissioners, was fent to exposulate mildly with the Duke of Parma, about some Libels published against her, who denied his having any knowledge thereof, protesting, That he had so much Respect for the Queen of England, that he honoured her in the highest degree. and had persuaded the King to condescend to this Treaty of Peace, which would be more rdvantagi. ous to the English than themselves; For (said he) if the Spaniards be overcome, they will foou recover their Lois; but if you be deseated, your Kingdomis unterly undone, and all loft: To which Dale repli'd, Our Queen is sufficiently provided to desend her Kingdom, and your own Wildom will fatisfie you that a Kingdom cannot be loft with the Fortune of one Battle, fince the King of Spain after fo long a War is not able to recover his Antient Inheritance in the Netherlands: Be it to ( faid the Prince) thele shings are in the hand of God.

It is recorded that when the Commissioners first met about the Treaty, one of the Spaniards asked in what Language they should Treat, another thinking to affront the English, said, 'We were best Treat's French, since your Mistress is Queen of France.

which Dr. Dale finantly replyed. Nay, then pray it is he in the Hebrew, for your Master calls him-elf King of Jerulalem.

The Commissioners had debated Matters, without concluding any thing, till at length the Spanish Fleet came in view of England, and the thundering of the Great Guns being heard from Sea, the English Commissioners were thereby much startled, having no hostages for their safe return; but they receive the Conduct from the Prince of Parma, (who include Conduct from the Prince of Parma, (who include Coast) and were conducted to the Borders near Callice. Thus this Treaty was utterly inessectively, beginn by Q Elizabeth, as was thought, to divert the coming of the Spanish Fleet, and continued by them to furprize the English unprovided.

u

May 29. 1588. This Invincible Armado, fo nam'd by the Spaniards, (which was preparing full , Years) failed out of the River Tayo toward the Grove in Gallicia, the defigned Rendezvouz, as nearest England, but a sudden Tempest drove the Admiral the Duke of Medina back again, and eight of his Ships being dispersed on the Seas, lost their Masts, and three Portugal Gallies were driven on the Coast of Bayon in Spain, where by the Valour of David Gwyn, with the affiftance of the other French and Turkish Slaves. they were delivered into the hands of the French, by killing the Spaniards aboard, among whom Don Diego de Mondrana was one. About this time the English Admiral, and Vice-Admiral Drake, having in all about an hundred Slaips, whereof fifteen were Victuallers, and nine Gentlemen Volunteers of Devonshire, upon certain Notice that the Spanish Pleet was ready to fail, resolved to go and fight them by the way, but meeting with this Storm, they were forced back again o Recruit, only some of their Scouts discovered some diperied Spanish ships, who before they could reach dem, veered about to the Groyn to the relt of the eet.

G 4

The Voyage and Adventures

The Spanish Navy being new rigged and supplyed July 11 they with much affurance corred the British Channel, where cafting Anchor, they fent Dispatcher to the Prince of Parma of their Asrival, July 20. about Noon this dreadful Fleet was descried by the English with much furprize: They appeared like lof y Towers in form of an Half Moon, the Horns whereof firetched above seven Mile wide, (the Ocean seeming oan under them) failing flowly toward Plymouth: the Lord Admiral sending a Pinnace called the Defiance before, to denounce War, by discharg. ing her Cannon, himself tollowed in the Ark-Royal, and fell with much fury upon one of the Spanish ships; Vice Admiral Drake, Hawkins, and Frobilher coming up foon after, and playing violently upon the hindmost Squadron of the Enemy, commanded by Rechalde, who endeavoured to keep his ships from flying, but being himself made at length unserviceable, they were all forced to secure themselves in the main Fleet.

e F

10

sto

1

0

th

DC

C

D

PI

th an ra

be

W

m

th

2 1

m

V

ta

de

S

The Duke of Medina having rallied his Navy, difperft by the English, kept on his intended Course toward Callice, finding much inconvenience in his large high Ships, as not able to defend themselves against the brisk Attacks of the small English Frigors, who for two hours maintained a very hot fight with them: In this first days Encounter, two great Spanish thips were disabled; and falling into a Roundel, the strongest walling in the rest, they made a slying Retreat to Callice; yet in the hurry, a great Gallion commanded by Don Pedro de Valdez, being much battered, fell foul on another Ship, and was so disabled, that the was left by the reft, and the Lord Admiral, night coming on, supposing the had neither Souldiers nor Mariners aboard, paffed by her; July 22. Sir Francis Drake espyed her, and sent sorth a Pinnace to Command her to yield, otherwise his B-1lets would force her; Valdez to affert his Credit and pretend to Valour, answer'd, 'That they were four hundred and fifty strong, that he himself was Don Pedro.

dro, and flood much upon his Honour; and reupon propounded several Conditions upon which was willing to yield: But the Vice-Admiral Teply-That he had no leifure to Parley, but if he hought fit instantly to yield he might, if not, he hould foon find that Drake was no Coward; Pedro earing it was Drake, whose Name was terrible to the aniards, presently yielded, and with forty fix his Attendants came aboard 3ir F. Drake's Ship. here giving him the folemn Spanish Congee, he proeffed, 'That they were all resolved to have died fighting, had they not fallen into his hands, whose Felicity and Valour was fo great, that Mars the God of War, and Neptune the God of the Sea, seemed to wait upon all his Attempts, and whose Noble and Generous Carriage toward the Vanquished, had been fostexperienced by his Foes; Sir Francis to requite these Spanish Complements with real English Kindness, set him at his Table, and Lodged him in his own Cabin, fending the rest of his Company to Plymouth ; Drakes Souldiers were well recompenced with the Plunder of this Ship, wherein they found fifty five thousand Duckers of Gold, which they merrily shared amongst them. The same day the Ship of Vice-Admital De Oquendo fell on fire, and the upper part only being burnt, fell into the hands of the English, and was brought with the fcorched Spaniards into Plymouth. July 23, they came just against Portland, when the English falling on them with the utmost Violence. a very sharp Fight ensued, wherein besides other remarkable Damages sustained by the Enemy, a great Venerian Ship, with some other smaller Vessels, were taken & the Adversary was again forced into a Roundel, to fecure their weak and battered Ships; The Spanish shor generally flew over the English without burt, only Cock an Englishman died with Honour in the midft of his Exemies in a little ship of his own.

July 24. an Encounter happened between four great Galliasses with Oars, and some English who gall'd the Spaniards leverely with their Chain shoe wherewith they cut their Tackle to their great detri ment; but the English wanting Powder, which the had spent so freely the Lord Admiral sent some small thips for supply, and in the mean time, after conintration, it was refolved, that the Fleet should be di. vided into four Squadrons, and commanded by four able Captains whereof the Lord Admiral in the Ark Boyal was chief, Bir Francis Drake in the Revenge the second; Captain Hawkins the third, and Captain Probifher the fourth. July 27th, being Sr. James's Day, the Spaniards came as far as the Isle of Wight where they were again affeulted by the English, difcharging their broad fides at each other not above as hundred and twenty yards afunder, and after a long Engagement, the great Spanish Wooden Caftles were fo forely battered, that they were again forced into their former Posture for their security: July 26. the Lord Admiral, to encourage his gallant Captains, Knighted the Lords Howard and Sheffeld, Roger Townsend, John Hawkins, Martin Frobisher, and others; after which it was resolved not to assail the Enemy any more till they came into the Channel between Callice and Dover, where the Lord Seymore and Sir William Winter waited for their Approach, who in a short time failing forward, were so far from affrighting the English with the Name of Invincible, that several brave young Gentlemen at their own Charges, hired ships to defend their Country, and joyned the Fleet in great numbers.

July 27. the Spanish Navy came over against Dover, Anchoring before Callice, intending to joyn the Prince of Parma's Forces at Dunkirk: The English sollowed so near, that they were within Musket-shot, and being now all joyned, consisted of an hundred and forty sail, all able nimble ships; yet not above sisteen of them sustained the brunt of the day. From hence the Duke of Medina sent to the Prince of Parma to hasten his succours, who did his utmost to perform rearing the English Crown, as some salse Prophet had bretold him; but his stat bottom'd Boats for the Chaules were leaky, his Provisions were unready, and his sariners deserted him: There were likewise several solland and Zealand Men of War watching before the lavens of Dunkirk and Newport, so well provided hat though he was a very experienced Commandes a durst not put to Sea unless he should willingly de

roy himself and his Men.

But the Felicity of Queen Elizabeth's Fortune presented his Diligence, and the credulous hope of the spaniards; For by herCommand next day after they ad cast Anchor, the Lord Admiral filled eight of his worst ships with wild Fire, Pitch, Rosin, Brimstone, & other combustible Matter, & charged their great Guns with Bullets, Scones, Chains, and the like Inftruments of Death, and all the Men being taken out. Sunday July 28th, at two in the Morning they were let drive with the Wind and Tide, (under the Guidance of C. Young and Prowse) amongst the Spanish Fleet when the Pilot's returning, and the Trains taking fire, they received such a dreadful Thunder Clap in that dead time of the Fight by these Fire ships, that they were extreamly affrighted & amazed, doubring their whole Fleet would have been fired; and to avoid the Danger cut their Cables alunder, and hoising fail, drove at Random into the Sea; in which hopeible confusion, one great Galliass fell upon anorth and running aground, was fer upon by the English an taken, being Manned with four hundred Souldiers, three hundred Slaves, and having in her so thousand Duckets of the Spauish Kings Treasure, which all fell into the hands of the English; as a Reward for their Valour.

July 29, After this miscrable Disaster, whereinmany of their Ships were driven into the Northern Ocean, and others on the Coast of Flanders, the Spaniateds ranging themselves in the best manner they

the

pafi

rett

folu

tow

the

dan

me

wil

the

fec

ed

WC

th

Ire

W

CO

TC

of

Ot

of

SI

ſŧι

ta

F

fo

of

G

P

d

I

0

a

V

could, approached over against Graveling, but were again prevented by the English from getting any supply from Dunkirk; and in the mean time Sir Francis Drake and several other Captains played continually upon them, and tore many of their Ships fo dread. fully, that the Water entred on all fides; and some flying for relief toward Oftend, were again fhor shrough and through by the Zealanders. In this Battle he Spaniards loft one great Gallion, and four other reat Ships, two whereof were taken by the Hollan. ders: The Spaniards finding worse welcome to Eng. land than they expected, were now willing to get close rogether, not seeking to effend their Enemies, out defend themselves; And to prevent the Prince of Parma's affiftance, the Holland Fleet confifting of a fhips furnished with able Mariners, and twelve hundred old Souldiers, was ordered to lye upon the Flemish Havens, and hinder his coming forth. July 31, betimes in the Morning the Northwest wind blew hard, and the Spanish Fleet endeavoured thereby to recover the Channel again, but were driven toward Zealand; whereupon the English who had hitherto followed them very close, gave over the Chase, because they judged them near their utter ruine, fince they muft needs run a ground upon those Sands and Shallows; but the Wind sudderly turning West, they got clear off them, and that Evening calling a Council, they refolved to return into Spain by the Northern Ocean, fince they wanted many necessaries, especially great thor, and their Ships were milerably torn, and there was no hope of the Prince of Parma's coming out with his Fleet.

In pursuance whereof, having now Sea Room for their huge bodied Bulks, they spread their Sails, and made away as fast as wind & water would carry them, more fearing the small Fleer and Forces of the English, than valuing the Honour of their Commanders, or their invincible Armado: They directed their Course Northward, and the English Admiral followed them them, least they should put into Scotland; but they passed by, & tho' it was generally thought they would return, yet they at length betook themselves to an absolute Flight, and leaving Scotland on the West, sailed toward the Coast of Norway, unadvisedly venturing their shaken and battered bottoms in those black and dangerous Seas. The Prince of Parma was much blamed, as if out of savour to Queen Elizabeth he had willfully neglected this opportunity, who (to satisfied the Spaniards) punish'd some of the Purveyors, secretly scotsing at the Spaniards Insolency, who boasted that they carried assured Victory wheresoever they went, and that the English never durst look them in the face.

153

The Duke of Medina failing round Scotland and Iteland, at last arrived safely in Spain, where for his welcome he was depoted from all Authority, forbid to come to Court, and commauded to live private; the rest of the ships being abour 40 fell nearer the Coast of Ireland, where many of them perished, and among others, a great Galliass and two other Venerian Ships of great Burthen, befides 38 more, with most of the Spaniards in them; such as got off were driven by strong West wind into the English Channel, and were taken by the English, others by the Rochellers in France, and some arrived at Newhaven in Normandy; fo that of one hundred thirty four thips that failed out of Lisbon, onely 52 returned into Spain; of the four Galliasses of Naples but one; of the four Gallions of Portugal but one; of the ninety one great Hulks from divers Provinces, only thirty three returned, 58 bes ing loft. In short, they lost in this Voyage eighty one Ships, thirteen thousand five hundred Souldiers, and above two thousand taken Prisoners in England, Ireland, and the Low Countries: To conclude, there was no Noble or Honourable Family in all Spain which in this Expedition loft not a Son a Brother, or Kiniman. And thus this Armado, which had been fo many years in preparing with yast expences, was in

Bo

In

A

A

C

T

St

W

T

Fu

Λ

Fe

RA

T

M

T

T

A

BIT

T

HD

T

one Month many times affaulted, and at length wholly defeated with the flaughter of fo many of their Men. not one hundred of the English being wanting, por one small Ship taken or lost, but only that of Cock's; and having traversed round all Brittain by Scotland, the Orcades and Ireland, most greviously toffed, and vemuch diffrested and wasted by storms, wrecks, and all kind of miseries, at length the remainder came mely home with perpetual Shame and dishonour, and to the Everlasting Honour of the English Name. who by the Bleffing of Heaven upon the Courage and Conduct of the Queen and her Valiant Commanders (among whom our Renowned Sir Francis Drake deferves a principal place of Honour) obtained to glorious and remarkable a Deliverance. Some Poems were writin thote times on this notable Occasion, of which I shall only give a Tast.

Straverat innumeris Hispanus Classibus aquor. Regnis juncturus Sceptra Britanua suis.

Thus in English.

Spain's King with Navys great the Seas bestrew'd, To join the English with the Spanish sway,

Ask you what caus'd this proud Attempt'twas leud Ambition drove, and Avarice led the way.

'Tis well, Ambirious Windy Pufflies drown'd By Winds; and swelling hearts by swelling Waves. 'Tis well, those Spaniards who the world's vast round

Devour'd, devouring Sea most juxly craves.

Another.

In Eighty Eight Spain arm'd with Potent might,
Against our Peaceful Land came out to Fight.
The Winds and Waves, and Fire in one conspire
To help the English, frustrate Spaics desire.

Another

Another.

Poor Englands Ruine is defigned, The Pope and Spain have both combined. Both have Infallibly Decree'd, In Eighty Eight England must bleed: A vast Armada Spain prepares, The Cost and Toil of many Years; An Hundred Fifty Sail, and more, Come thundring from the Spanish shoar; The POPE, to make up the Bravado. Stiles it, Th' INVINCIBLE ARMADO. Whose vast and numerous Hulls contain The Treasure and the Strength of Spain: Fully twenty Thousand Soldiers, And to increase our Woes, and Fears : Fetters and Chains they now prepare. The Marks of Slavery we must wear: Religion, Laws and Liberties. Are all defign'd a Sacrifice To Remish Cruilty, and we Most Wretched Slaves Condemn'd to be Our Queen with watchful Eyes furveys Th'approaching from, and foon doth raife Two Royal Armies, to withstand The Bold Invaders of our Land: A.gallant Fleet too, the provides, But God himself the Case decides: The Lord of Hofts foon made them fee There's none Invincible but he. He with a breath of Wind doth blaft Defigns so mighty and so vaft, That all might know that none but he, an Universal King can be-

CHAP.

CHAP. XI.

Sir Francis Drakes Voyage to Portugal, in 1589. for Restoring Don Antonio their banished King; with the taking the Town & Castle of Cascais and the Groyn, the Deseating the Spanish Army, Burning the Town of Vigo, and gaining much Booty.

Frer the Danger of the Spanish Armado was palt, and the Invincible Navy vanquished, Q. Elizabeth and the Lords and Commons confulted how to require the proud Spaniards by attempting something upon their own Coasts, to prevent them from making any new Expedition, which they seemed to defign (for repairing their dishonour) by their earneftness in putting their Fleet and Army into the former Condition. And first the Queen determined to affift Don Antonio the expulled King of Portugal. This Don Antonio among other Competitors, claimed the Crown of Portugal after the Decease of K.Hen. asidefeended from K. Emapuel, by his Son Don Lewis the Infant, whom Philip King of Spain alledged to be only his Baftard; against which Accusation Don An tonio had sentence for his Legitimacy by the Bishop of Angra; and being cleared hereby from that scandalous imputation, he was by the Estates of Portugal first made Protector of the Realm; and afterward, for his Wildom, Courage, Humility, Religion, and all other Princely Qualities, was by the People accepted for their King, whereto he was in a manner inforced, feeing himself encompassed with many drawn Swords in the midfl of a furious multitude.

to

le

P hi

K

10

fu

lo

But King Phillip being very Potent iu Men and Mo ey, fent the Duke of Alva with a great Army into Portugal; and Don Antonio not able to refift such frong Forces, was compelled to betake himself to flight; after which K Phillip marched into Portugal, and by Proclamation offered eight hundred thousand Growns to any that could bring in Don Antonio alive or dead; yet fo great was the love of the Portugues to this unfortunate Prince, that he lay eight Months concealed in that Kingdom; and though he had daily Conference and Conversation with many, yet he was never betrayed by them. But at length finding little hope of his Re-establishment, he withdrew into France. leaving his Crown and Kingdom to be possessed by K. Phillip, who had long ambitiously gaped after it. And the other Competitors being unable to refift, yielded him up their Rights, and the Pope confirmed the Kingdom to him. Don Antonio received some aid from France, and had some Ships lent him to attempt the Mands of Terceras, but his designy was as unhappy at Sea as at Land, for the Spaniards mer with, and funk eight of the greatest French Ships, and killed 100 of their Men, and thereby utterly defeated that Expedition.

The poor Prince thus disappointed in France, repairs for aid to Queen Elizabeth, who was Famous or affishing Distressed Princes and States, and who was now at War against Spain, and having cleared himself from all the Objections of his bastardy, he only desired the Queen to Land him sale in his own Country, and among his own People, of whose readiness or receive him, and love and Loyalty to desend him and his just Title to the Crown, he nothing doubted, his seeming to the Queen to be very just and reasonable, she ordered 26 Men of War, with several ransport Ships to conduct him thither under the common of the Renowned Sir Francis Drake, and Sir ohn Nortis was made General for the Land Service, ith eleven Thousand Souldiers, and two thousand five from Plymouth in April 1589, and Landed in the Ba of Gallicia, within half a Mile of the Town called the Groyn.

Without opposition from hence, marching toward the Bass, or lower Town, a great Galleon, and two smaller Ships that rid in the Bay, fired furiously upon them, whereby several straglers were killed; but the English raising a Battery of Cannon on the shoar, obliged them haffily to retire farther of, and foon after the Galleon taking fire, all the Men left her, and got alhoar, and the continued burning two days before the was confirmed. The next day the Lower Town was affaulted in three places at once; the Colonel Bret and Union, with 300 Men made their Atrack on the Land side, and Col. Wingfield and Samson, with 500 more on the other part, who attempted to scale the Walls, but were vigoroufly repulfed; but General Norris defeating some few Spaniards that opposed him, and driving them to the Gates, he instantly plant ted some Batteries against the Walls, which soon making a Breach, the English broke into the Town without any great loss, being much incouraged by some Deserters, who coming out affared them that there was within it 300 thousand Duckets of Silver, 2000 Piper of Wine, 1000 Jars of Oyl, 3000 Kintals of Beef, great quantity of Beans, Peafe, Wheat and Fish, and that three Barks ladea with Arms and Ammunition arrived there not long before: The hopes of this great Prize to heightned their Valour, that they food made themselves Masters both of the Place and Booty. the Spanish Inhabitants with all speed abandoning the Lower Town, and their Arms, retired through feveral difficult and narrow passages to the Upper Town, leaving this vast quantity of Ammunition and Provifions, which they contessed was designed for a second Invasion of England, to be convey'd aboard the Engliff Ships which was foon performed

er Systemas Diek

The Generals marched from bence up to the wn, which General Norris found to be built up Rock, and Mineable only in one place, where he ployed the Miners, who used such dilligence that ey foon undermined a great part of the Wall which ing fired made a confiderable breach, at which the nglish enered with so much haste, that part of the all fell upon many and killed them, fo that having o fure footing they thought fit to retire. After this eneral Norris having certain Intelligence that the cunt de Andrada had affembled his Forces at Burgos, ad that the Count de Almeira was raising a greater evy either to relieve Groyn, or else to incamp beween the English and the place where they were to e-imbarque, resolves to send ten Regiments to visit he Spanish Army. In the Front were two Regiments ommanded by Sir Edward Norris and Collonel Wilam Sydney. The Main Body the General himself d, affifted by Collonel Medkerkes, a Low-Country ouldier. And three Regiments under the Conduct of ir Henry Norris, Collonel Hantly and Collonel Bret rought up the Rear. The Enemy though strongly atrenched at the Foot of the Bridg, yet were obliged abandon their Barricado of Barrels and Hogheads; nd likewise the Bridg which was flanked on both sides ith Cannon, and by the Valour of the English were otally defeated, to that every one fought how to ecape with his life, which gave an easy passage to the inglish over the Bridg, and to cut off the Spanierds t their pleasure, whom they pursued for three Miles ish great flaughter, taking the Kings Chief Standard, od abundance of Plate and Rich Apparel. After thich they plundred the Neighbouring Towns and illages, and then fet the whole Country adjacent on baving killed in this Expedition a great number Spaniards, and then returned aboard the Fleer, with

But whilft a contrary Wind recarded their intended ourse, Robert Rains Difex, either out of love of

Glore

DIT

100

DP.

re

T

ifb

etir

Wie

el

ifh

eti

ir i whi ant

God

eco

to the

le.

60

Glory, hate to the Spaniard, or pity to Don Autoni prompted rather by his own Mind than the Queen License, having got to Sea, came to the English Nav the Queen was as angry as ignorant of his Voyage being unwilling to expose her principal Nobility in fuch a private Enterprize, the had likewife a particular respect and kindness for the Person of Essex, and therefore when the first heard of it, faid, This Young Fellow is so ventrous that he will certainly be knockt on the head one time or other, though it was his hard fate to live till the had figned the Sentence of his death, and therewith her own too, for not being able to live without him, she died soon after he was Beheaded. Some thought that the Earl put himself voluntarily on this Action, in expectation of being fole Commander and Admiral of the Fleet, by reason he had ingaged to his Service the Hearts of most of the Collonels and Captains both of Land and Sea by his bounty and preferment of them, who he believed would now jointly confer this Command upon him, though he had no Commission from the Queen. But notwithstanding he miffed of his defign, yet he purchased honour in this attempt.

Sir Francis Drake with the Navy failed from the Groyn, and after having mer with a great florm, in two days they landed at Peniche in Portugal, and approaching the Castle the Enemy sled, and lest the poledion thereof to Don Antonio. From hence the Army marched by Land to Lisbon under the Command of General Norris, it being about fixty Miles, and General Drake was ordered to bring the Fleet about, and so up the River Tagus. In their march at Torres Vedras a Council of War was called, and it was concluded to be most proper to incamp on the East. fide of the City, to prevent all hopes of relief from the Spaniard, that thereby the Portuguess might have the more easie access to their King. After fix days march the Army approached the Western Suburbe of Lifbon, without fight or hope of encountring any emy; Then entring St. Katharines to scour the rects, they found none there but only a few old poor ople who were unable to run away; the rest make their retreat into the City; and Albert Duke of aftria their late Governor having already unfurnished Town of Ammunition and Provisions, leaving the portugues nothing but their empty Allegiances; these por wretches having no Weapon but their Tongues, apploy of them in their general Acclamations of, Long

e King Antonio.

The Army being now quartered in the Suburbs of fbon, and the Souldiers tired with their long march, euring to their reft, the Spanish Garrison in the City llied out upon them on that Quarrer wherein Colloel Brett commanded, who being relieved by the Engin from all paris, drove the Spaniards to a shameful erreat, and chased them to the very Gates of the City. Francis Drake failed with the Fleet from the Groin oward Lisbon, and came to the Town of Cascais hich he possest without any resistance, the Inhabiants upon fight of his Navy, flying with all their soods to the Mountains. Drake feur a Portugal Pilot offer them Terms of Peace, provided they would ccept Don Antonio for their King, and fend Provions to their Army. Which offers they readily acepted, and fent two of their Chief Men to fignific heir Loyalty to him, and that they would fend relief othe Army. Whereupon Sir Francis landed his lea, though not without danger from the Caftle. thich was possessed by the Spaniards and fired upon iem.

The Portuguess at Lisbon had promised Don Annio to assist him with three thousand Horse, besides her Supplies from the Duke of Braganza. Don ancisco de Toledo, and other Noblemen, but the aniards observed them so narrowly, that they were able to make Head, so that the limited sine of err coming being expired, and the unfortunate Don archio seeing but forty Horse & not above two hun-

De los les contrates de l'entre l'est

Foot arrive, and the Promifer of Muley Hame for of Morocco, of fending him confiderable aid likewise proved abortive, he was very much dis aved, and General Norris who defigued the Siege of Lifton found it impracticable by reason of fresh Forees which continually crouded in, which with the fick ness of his Souldiers, the scarcity of Provisions, & the want of Cannon, which General Drake was not yet arrived with, made him refolve not to attempt it ;el pecially fince the Portuguess in general appeared so if resolute and careless in restoring themselves to the Liberty. And having already done more than he pro miled, he ordered the Army to march to Cascais. Do Antonio out of his Princely disposition roward his Sub jects, earnieftly importun'd the General not to permit the Souldiers to plunder the Suburbs of Lifbon, which if they had done, they had been the richest Army that ever returned to England. Sir John Norris generously granted his request, and being ready to leave Lisbon. the Earl of Essex couragiously ran his Spear and brake it against the Gates of that City, crying out aloud, What is there never a Spaniard mewed up within this Town that dare adventure out to brake a flaff in favour of his Miffreis? But none of the Spanish Gallauts durst appear to answer his Challenge, keeping themselves fafe within their Walls,

The Army being arrived ar Cascais the General had notice by a Friar, that the Enemy were marching with a strong party to fall upon them, whereupon Sir John Norris tent a Trumper to the Spanish General, promising to meet him next morning if he would stay his coming, and defying him if he did not. The Earl of Estex likewise sent him a particular challenge to sight with any one of his own quality, or else six, eight, or ten to try their fortune in single combat, but the Spaniard was so far from answering them that in great sea he the same night decamped and returned to Lisbot threatning to hang the Messenger, who followed him so the very Gates. After this the Spanish Garrison of or Francis Links

rendred the Caftle of Calcais, which was ordere e undetermined and blown up, & the Army being in put aboard the Fleet, came to Vigo another wn in Portugal, where they found every fireet ongly barricado'd and yet but one man to defend m, the Inhabitants being fled in all hafte toward yon. The General set the Town and all the Counseven Miles round in a Flame, and then all the uldiers coming again aboard, Sir Francis Drake s questioned for neglecting to bring up the Fleet to foon according to Order, and thereby preventing taking that Town, which was thought very easie he Cannon had come in time, but he cleared himf from being any way culpable therein, truly alledg That it was impossible for him to pass the Chanel of Alaceve which the great number of Flars and shoal-water had rendred unnavigable. That if he hould have come directly up to Fort St. Julian which was strongly fortified with fifty great Guns, and store of Gallies with their Prows turned full upon them, he should certainly have exposed the whole Navy to imminent danger without any probable fuctess, and that if the Fleet had been ruined, the defruction of the Army would certainly have enfued. fter this the Engl sh being deaf to all the intreaties Don Antonio, who earnethly endeavoured to perade them to continue some time longer, and after ving taken from the Spaniard an hundred and fifty innon, and such a vast booty besides, as fully facisted e defires of the most covetous Commanders, Soulers and Marriners, the Fleet returned back to Plyouth, Sir John Norris and Sir Francis Drake having oth performed the parts of worthy Generals in this ortugal Voyage.

Whilst the Fleet lay in the Road of Lisbon they took sout fix y Hulks laden with Corn, Masts, Cables, Coperand Wax, being part of the Spanish King's Provious for the next intended Invasion of England, here Vessels belonged to the Hinse Towns of German

164. The Voyages and Adventures ny, who had been at great pains to be thus surprized for though their nearest way had been through the English Channel, yet for their better security they fetche a compass round about Scotland and Ireland being sensible that the Queen had some time before by her Letters prohibited them from furnishing the Spaniards either with Ammunition or any other War-like provisions, upon penaltie of forfeiting both their Ships And therefore when they afterward and Goods. made their complaints of the violation of their antient Customs and Priviledges by this Transaction, adding some seeming menaces as if they would right them selves if Justice were denied them, the Queen briskli answered them, That her former prohibition of nor Trafficking with the Spaniards in Contraband Goods did sufficiently justifie her proceedings herein, since • the thought it very reasonable to prefer the publick good & lafety of her Kingdoms before the benefit of any particular Town or City, and that no Priviledges or Customs, (which are to be reckoned only as private Laws) ought to be advanced against the securi ty of her Dominions which is the Supream Law. And that by the same Act whereby they alledge the violating their Rights, they themselves are condemned. For among the Priviledges granted to them by King Edward I. There is this express Article inferted, That they should not transport not Convey any Goods or Merchandize into the Councries of manifest & notorious Enemies to the Kingdom of England; that in the heat of any War, the Traffick of Neutral States or Cities was always forbidden, if they furnisht any party with Warlike That this had been practifed toward them not only by the English, but by Charles V. Emperor of Germany, the Kings of Sweden, Denmark and Poland, and lately by the Prince of Orange, and that iustly and by the Law of Nations. She therefore advised them that for the future they would so use the benefit of their neutrality, that whilst they assisted one of Sir France Drake.

0 = 0

0.00

k

of 25

1-

ri

W.

ge

1-

to

.

Of

D-

1-

of oat dhe

C

165

he Parry they did not injure the other. Laftly, he modefuly reprimanded them for their untently nenaces, especially to a Prince who, in respect Power, did not fear the mightiest Monarch upon latch, but yet in regard of Honour was willing to abrace Peace and Amiry with the meanest, and to reserve inviolably all the Laws of Friendship with I her Friends, and Neighbours.

This couragious Speech filenced these Complainants, deall their Ships were declated lawful Prize. And all their Ships were declated lawful Prize. And as ended this Portugal Expedition, wherein the sole Kingdom refted well satisfied, fince these Gal-

Generals had in so short a time surprized one own, and valiantly assaulted another. And had tewise put to slight the Forces of the most Potent ince in Europe: Landed in sour several Places, arched with Banners displayed through the Eneries Territories for seven days together, attempted to of their greatest Cities with a considerable Army, artered three nights together in the Suburbs therechasted the Enemy to their own Gates, took two siles by the Sea side, and deprived them of great res of all manner of Provisions: And lastly, had aght the English not to dread the mighty power of a Spanish Monarchy, since they now found by retted Experience, that it was very far from being wincible.

H

CHAP.

CHAP. X.

Sir Francis Drake's last Voyage to the We Indies in 1595. (Accompanied with John Hawkins, Sir Tho. Baskerfie Sir Nicholas Clifford, and others) whis Death, Burial and Epitaph.

W

no

th te

of

hi

R

ti

 $\Pi$

g

. P

.

1

W

S this Valiant and Heroick Worthy had for ny Years faithfully ferved his Prince. Country, fo he died in this Honourable Employme and was buried in that vast Ocean, wherein hel spent the greatest part of his Life: The last Voyage made, was to the West-Indies in 1595, himself Sir John Hawkins being Generals, Sir Tho. Balk feild and Sir Nicholas Chifford Lieutenant Gener with ten other worthy Captains, and divers Gentlem who imparquing at Plymouth, Aug. 28. failed ward the Grand Caparies, and Sept. 6, in the hei of the Northern Cape overfook a French man of W and a Rocheller from Newfoundland, whom t quietly let pass, and after that two Biskayners bo for Barbary: Sept. 9. They spyed a ship of W mouth, who coming to their General, went with to the Canaries; soon after they discovered twe French Men of War, who chased, but could not re them; Sept. 19. they met one of the Earl of Cu berlands Frigots, who told them the Kings Met War were going homeward: Sept. 25 they discove two Islands in 28 degrees, one called Hamferoth; "the other Forreventura, inhabited only by Sa People, and ten Leagues diftant from Grand Can in the Port whereof, Sept. 26. they impurqued Boats and Pinnaces, endeavouring to Land with beed; but the Enemy having notice of their commendad intrenched themselves in the Landing Place, and apout their approach, plyed them so fast with great and small shor, both from the Castle and Town, that they were constrained with the loss of some Men to retire to their Ships, the Spaniards being near four hundred ftrong.

The fame day they failed thence, to a place North-West from the Town of Sr. John de Luz, where was formerly a famous River running from the Rocks, but now over-grown, where they watered: The People of this Island are Barbarous and Mountaincers, and Captein Grimstone with four more, were very much wounded and torn by Dogs kept for that purpose, an fome others that firaggled into the Country fain; it yields much Wine, Wheat and other Grain, with flore of Rabbits, Partidges and Treffes, which have a Juice like Milk, but rank Poison; it hath many large hi Rocks in it, and twenty Leagues diftant is the Ide of Teneriff, the Pyke whereof is of a vaft beight. Sep. 28. they failed hence directly West, toward the West-Indies, and Octob. 24, the Hope and Adventure Frigats fell foul on one another by the darkness of the Night, and a great Tempest of Hail and Rain, so that they were forced to cut down the Miffen Maft of the Adventure, and throw it into the Sea. Octob. 27. they had fight of the Isle of Martineco, inhabited by Cannibals or Man-Eaters; they were thirty days failing from the Canaries to this Island, from thence they went to the Isle of Dominica twelve English Miles thence, and flored with Tobacco; the People are not altogether fo sude, but would give them Tobacco for Knives, and fach other Commodities; they ale Bows and Arrows made of Reeds, and headed with a harp piece of Brafile Wood, their Hair is very lo cut round the shoulders: Octob. 30, they t minica, and went into a River thereof, many of all The our of the Mountains on the West side into wherein are many wild Beafts and Serpents of Monfirous fhapes; From hence they failed toward his dela Hacha, and Nov. 7. discried three Islands between Guadaloupa and St. John de Porto Rico, and next day the General Landed his Men in one of their Ports, that every Captain might know his own Souldiers. These Islands belong to Virginia, and are many in number, but are without Inhabitants, having diverfair Harbours, wherein a thousand Ships may ride as Anchor, and full of very high Mountains.

H 2

Mov. 12. They arrived at Porto Rico, and Auchored within 4 Miles of the Town under a great Fort from whence they oft received many furious show The same day that worthy and vigilant Commander, Sir John Hawkins died there, and Sir Nicholas Clifford, Captain Stratford, and Mr. Brute Brown, were unded with a Cannon Bullet from the Fort, all at once as they fat at Supper with Sir Thomas Baskerfield and Sir Francis Drake, who had the stool struck from under him as he was drinking, and yet received no further damage: The same Night Sir Nicholas Clifford died of his Wound, and that Night they went and Anchored against the Town. Next day, Nov. 13. the General calling a Council, it was ordered that about Nine next Night, some Musketeers, Gunners and Fire-works should be embarqued in their Pinnages and Boats; and accordingly 500 Men went into the Harbour, to burn the five Spanish Men of War that lay there, one being 400 Tun, the rest less: In this great thip were planted store of great Guns, which together with abundance of small floor, played furiously on the English, who yet fought with so much Gallantry, that they burnt, flew and drowned all the Men in the great thip, wherein there were an hundred and fixty Canpen, besides small shot, losing only the Little Franof their approach, and much frustrated their design: By the Prisoners taken, the English understood that there here were three Millions of Treasure in the Town beonging to the King of Spain, which there five Man of War came to carry away, and the General hearing hat his Men were Prisoners there, fent the Goverour Word to use them well, as he expected the like of the Spaniards their Prisoners: They had notice ere were three thousand Souldiers in the Town thich flands in a very finall Island, having the Sea on me fide, and a great River on the other, built in a alley, with a strong Fort to defend it, and fee large. Nov. 15. Sir John Hawkins, and Sir B olas Clifford were thrown overboard, and the fa whey spied a Spanish Carvel, which they inflance purfied; but being perceived by the Castle of Port Rico, they shot of a warning Peice to them not to approach, who thereupon ran themselve, ashoar, and the Men fled to the Mountains, so that they could not come at them; Nov. 16. they departed from Porto Rico, where, though they got no great Profic, yet it was a most valient Attempt, & worthy to be recorded.

Being imbarqued, they failed with all speed to St John Jermans Bay, 36 Leagues from Porto Rico, and. Landed some Souldiers to Guard the Carpenters, while they built the Pinnaees, not far from which is an House called an Ingo of for making Sugars, inhabited by Spaniards: The lame day Mr. Brute Brown died. and Nov. 22. a Court Marshal was held to Question John Stanley for some Misdemeanours; next day Sir Tho. Baskerfield took two Negroes of this Mand: Nov. 24. the ship called John Trelawny of Plymouth was burnt in this Bay, and they failed to another island called Crusao, and arrived there the agth, going thence to a Town called Rio de la Hacha on the main Conti-Decemb. 2. all the Souldiers being par Boats and Pinnaces, about one a Clock in the entred the Town, the People being fled

Souldiers, who gave them a Volley of those 2 of who were raken Prisoners, the rest making their cleapers

170 The Voyages and Adventures

found neither Victual, nonemy thing elfe of Value in the Fown, the Spaniards having carried all away

te n

V

t

into the Woods a Week before, upon Notice of their coming. Decemb. 3. the Spaniards came to treat about ranfoming the Town, and next day brought some Pearl, but much less in value than they had compounded for, whereupon Sir Francis Drake observing their falshood, ordered the Town to be burnt: The Governous came again the day after with many fair Pretences, but they found it was only to delay time till they had given Notice to other places to festimate the found some of their Goods which and sound some of their Goods which they do their Ships, and when the General faw to the Come to no fair Agreement, he communded to

orn all Places where ever they came; and accordally the day before their departure, they left this town on a Light Fire, except a new Religious House minished, and another whither they use to bring all the King's Treasure and Merchandize, and of which be Loglish found a considerable quantity, with some rears which they brought to their General This Country yields store of Oxen, Goats, Sheep, Horses, Asses, Pellicans, and other Powls, and great plenty of Grass. The Inhabitants are Indians and Negroes, being wild savage People, except those miserable Wresches who are Slaves to the Spaniards. About ten Leagues from this Town is a very high Mountain always covered with Snow.

Dec. 19. They came to another Town called Sanda Martha, which they entred & found the People fled to the Woods & Mountains, but following they took forme Treasure, and other things of value, and made the Deputy Governour of the Town Priloter, and departed, leaving it on the Fire, being informed by the Sprmards, that they were within three Leagues of a Golden Mine. Dec. 25 they failed toward Nombre de Dios, and two days after Anchored before the Town. where Arnold Balkerfield their Serjant Major dyed: They then landed a Mile from the Town, and marching toward them, the Enemy gave them only one Volley of faot, and then fled into the Woods whither they had carried all their Goods, before leaving nothing but what was the Souldiers, which lay in the great Fort, wherein were only the three great Guns, one whereof broke with a fhor, and some of the Souldiers were taken Prisoners. The King of Spain usually fende all his Treasure by Boats from Panama to this tice. They found in the Woods fome Oyl, Wine. megar, Meal and Linnen Cloth: The General Intelligence of the Governours going toward ma, fent Sir Tho. Balkerfield with fix has en to surprize him; the way was extremed to Teavel in, both from the Finerry, Water

H4

d

Rocks, so that they went in much peril of their lives: In their March they saw abundance of Monkies and Apes, and could hear the roaring of Lyons, Panami is on the South Sea 18 Leagues from Nombre de Dios: After they had marched half way, they could go no farther, being prevented by a Fort built on the top of a Rock, which they must of necessary pass thorow, and was so nervow, that only one Man could pass at a time, so that their Men were slain as fast as they ascended up, and there being no other way, they were constrained to retire with the loss of some of their best Souldiers, and with much trouble at this great diappointment: Coming back to Nombre de Dios and finding it almost all consumed with Fire, they ned to their Ships; in this March a pair of the oct e fold for thirty shillings, and a Bisket Cake for tea

dillings, so great was their want both of Cloathing and Victuals. The Night before, the English had burnt the great House wherein the King's Treasure used to lye, and two leagues thence, a Town inhabited by by Negroes was burnt, who gave them a Volley of thot and so ran away leaving the Town aftre.

Jan. 25. They departed hence for Seoday, & rook Spanish Frigot coming from the Islands, wherein were four Spaniards and three Negroes, but nothing of value; the was fent from Nombre de Dios, to give notice to the other Towns to secure themselves : The fame day General Drake Commanded his first Men to be carried ashoar for refreshment, and built four Pinnaces, and took in fresh water. This Island of Scoday is a meer Wilderness without Inhabitants, but full of wild Beafts, as Bears, Allegators or Crocodiles like a Serpent, and Guanoes like a Snake with four Legs, and a long Tail, having many Priciles on his back: They live on Frees like Squirrils, and the Allegators in the Water, but prey oft in the Land, his Flesh is sweet like Musk, and in his Bladder Musk is found; he is as big as a Man's Thigh, and they car me ny of them. Jan. 22. they departed from Scoday to Island near Nombre de Dios, and two days after came to Porto Bello, where the fame day they arrived our Famous Hero Sir Francis Drake departed this Life, his Death being supposed to be much frastree by his unsuccessfulness in this Voyage; his great spirit always accustomed to Victory and Success, not bear the least Check of Fortune, which such Melancholly thoughts, as were thou chief cause of his end.

His Death was exceedingly lamented by all the Company, who looks upon him to be the Life and Soul of their Enterprizes and Undestakings, and of whole Admirable Valour, Wildom, Cate and Tenders ness they had found such large and nonstant experience; His Interment was after this manner and took being put into a Costa of Lead, was let down and the Sea, the Trampets in doleful manner Ecchoing out their Lamentations for so great a Loss, and all the Cannon in the Fleet were discharged, according to the Gustom of all Sca Funeral Obsequies.

After this fad Face, they continued here some while and in ten days arrived at Carthagena, and Feb. 13. espeed the Isles of Pino. March 1. Sir Thomas Baskerfield having now the fole Command of the Floet they chased reenty fail of the Kings Men of War, and fought with them three hours, firing feveral of their Ships, the reft flying away; next day they failed to Cape Anthony, and foon after deferyed the Cape of Florida, and Match 9. passed by the Bermuda's; April 8. 1586 they came to the Istes of Florio, Inhabited by Portugals, where they flay'd, watered, and Traffickt for Victuals, wherewith being well refresh'd, they in a short time arrived fafe in England. And thus baving brought our Renowned Knight thro' formuny Dangers and Adventures to his watry Grave. we will take our leave of him, with this fhort Epitaph, written upon him many years fince.

His Epitaph.

Where Drake first found there last he lost his Name, And for a Tomb lest nothing but his Fame; His Bodie's Buried under some great Wave, The Sea that was his Glory is his Grave, Of whom an Epitaph none can truely make, Forwho can say, here lies Sir Francis Drake?

The CONTENTS of the Life of Sir Francis Drake.

CHAP. I. His Birth and Education; His Losses by the Spaniards; His making two Voyages into the West-Indies for discovery; His Voyage in 1552. to Nombre de Dios, and surprizing it only with 52 Men, where he had a view of the Pile of Bars of Silver 70 foot long; to broad, and 12 foot high, pag. 1.

Chap. II. Captain Drakes proceeding to Rio de Grand and Carthagena; his entertaining the Symerons, and taking several Spanish Ships, and likewise the Town of Venta-Cruz. p. 17.

Chap. III. He goes back from Panama, and between Rio Francisco and Nombre de Dios, takes a Recoe of fifty Mules, each carrying 300 pound weight of Silver, and some Bars and Wedges of Gold, of which they carried off a great quantity, and buried 15 Tuns of Silver in the Sands, he comes back to his Ships, and returns safe to England. p. 41.

Chap. IV. With five Ships he undertakes a Voyage round the World in 1577, and in prosecution thereof, arrives at Port Si Julian, where he discovers a Conspiracy for which a Gentleman of his Company was beheaded p.55.

Chap. V. General Drake passeth thro the Streights of Magellane inso the South Sea, where he meets with a terrible Tempest for 32 days together, and lost Company of two of his ships; being left alone, he proceeds toward the Coast of Peru, and gets a prodigious quantity of Gold, Silver, and Jewels, p. 74.

Chap. VI. Having gained immense Treasures, he Lands at Panama, named by him Nova Albion, where the Indians Crown him King of the Country, from whence by the Moluccoes, and Cape of Good Hope, after having surrounded the World, he returns into England. Q. Eliz. comes aboard his Ship at Deptford, and Knights him, p. 94.

Chap. VII. His Voyage into the West-Indies in 1585, with Captain Carliel, Frobisher, Knollis, and many others, and their taking the Town, of St. Jago, Domingo, Carthagena, and St. Augustine, p. 124.

Chap. VIII. He is made Vice Admiral in the Spanish Invasion in 1588 and performs many worthy Actions, taking Don Pedro de Valdez, a Principal Sea Commander, Prisoner; the pretended Invincible Armado is utterly defeated and overthrown, p. 142.

Ch.IX. His Voyage to Portugal in 1589, for reftoring Don Antonio their Banisht King; with the taking the Town & Castle of Cascais & the Groyn, the defeating the Spaniards, burning the Town of Vigo, & gaining much Booty, p. 156

Ch. X. His last Voyage to the West-Indies in 1595, with Sir J. Hawkins, Sir Tho. Baskerfield, Sir Nich. Clifford, and others. His Death, Burial and Epitaph. p. 166. A Catalogue of Books Printed for Nath.

Crouch at the Bell in the Poultrey near Cheaplide.

History.

I. De Ngland's Monarchs: Or, A Relation of the most remarkable Transactions, from Julius Ceser; adorned with Poems, and the Picture of every Monarch from R. Will the Conqueror to this time. With a List of the Nobility, and the number of the Lords and Commons in both Houses of Parliament, and of ther useful particulars. Price one shilling.

2. The History of the House of Orange: Or a Relation of the Magnanimous Atchivements of his Majesties Renowned Predecessors, & likewise of his own Heroick Actions, till the Late Glorious, Revolution. Together with the History of K. William and Q. Marj, Being an Account of the most remarkable passages to this time. By R. B. Price one shilling.

3. The History of the two late Kings, Charles II. and James II. and of the most observable passages, during their Reigns; and the secret French and Popish intrigues in those Times. Pr. 15.

4. The History of Oliver Cromwel L. Protestor, being an Impartial Account of all the Battles, Seiges, & Military Achievements, wherein he was ingaged in England, Scotland and Ireland; and of his Civil Administrations, till his Death. Relating matters of Fast, without Reslection or Observation. And illustrated with several Pictures. By R.B. price is, containing an Account of all the Battels, Signature of the Reign of K. Charles I. 1625, to 1660. The Tryal of K. Charles I. at large, and his last Speech; with Pictures of several Accidents. Pr. 1. Shilling

Antient and present state of London & Westminster, shewing the Foundations, Walls, Gates, Bridges, Churches, Rivers, Wards, Halls, Hospitals, Schools, Inns of Court, Charters, and Priviledges thereof; with the most remarkable Accidents, as to Wars, Fires, Plagues, &c. for above 900 years past. Pr. One Shilling. 7. A Dmirable Chriosities, Rarities, and Worders, in England, Scotland and Ireland, or an account of many remarkable persons and places; and of the Battles, Sieges, Earthquakes, Tempests, Inundations, Fires, Thunders, Murders, & other occurrences, for many hundred years past: with the natural and artificial Rarities in every County, Eleveral Pictures p. 15.

HE History of the Kingdom of Scotland, containing an Account of all the Wars, Battels, to other remarkable Transactions, Revolutions, & State Intrigues in that Nation during the Reigns of 72. Kings & Queens to the 7th. year of King William III. Intermixt with variety of strange Accidents, Prodigious Appearances, and other considerable Events. And a List of the present Nobility of that Kingdom. Illustrated with Pictures. Pr. One Shilling.

an Account of all the Battles, Seiges, & other memorable Passages during the late Wars there, till the entire Reduction thereof by the victorious Arms of K. Will. III. To which is prefixed a relation of the Ancient Inhabitants, & the first Conquest of that Nation by K. Henry II. The horrid Rebellion in 1641. & the Popish and Arbitrary designs in the last Reigns. Pr. 15-three parts: Containing, 1. A brief account of the antient Kings and Princes of Britain and Wale; till the final extinguishing of the Royal British Line.

2. Remarks upon the Lives of all the Princes of Wales of the Royal Families of England, from K. Edward I. to this time, particularly of Edmund the black ### and foldby Wath. Crouch.

Prince

Prince of Wales, who with 30000 English deteated an Army of 100000 French at Cressy, & at Poissers with 10000 beat 80000, and took John the French King Prisoner, Also of Hen. of Monmouth (afterward K. Hen. 19 V.) who with 13000 routed 90000 French, whose Son Henry VI. was crowned K. of France at Paris. 3. Remarkable Observations on the most memorable Persons and Places in Wales, and of divers considerable Passages for many hundred years past: VVith the birth and strange actions of Merlin the samous Welsh Propher. And the Natural and Artificial Rariries in every County of that principality, price one shilling.

He Unfortunate Court Favourites of England; Exemplified in someRemarks upon the Lives Actions and Fatal Fall of divers Great Men, who have been Favourites to several English Kings and Queem. Namely, I. Peirce Gavefton Favourite to K. Ed. 2. II. III. Hugh Spencer the Father and Son, both Favourites to K. Ed. 2. IV. Rog. MortimerFavourite to Q. Habel, Mother to K. Ed. 3. with their private Amours, &ce. V. H. Stafford Favourite to Crook-backtRichard with that King's secret Intrigues for usurping the Crown, & murdering his Nephews. Likewise the Character of Jane Shore by Sir Tho. More who faw her. VI. Cardinal Woolfey; VII. Tho.L. Cromwell; both Favourites to K. Henry 8. VIII. E. of Effex, Favourire to Q. Elizabeth. IX. D. of Bucks Favourite to K. James I. & K. Charles I. X. E. of Strafford, Favourite to K. Charles I. With all their Pictures. Price one shilling.

He English Empire in America, or a prospect of his Majesties Dominions in the West-Indies, namely, New found-land, New-England, New York, New-Jersey, Pensylvania, Mary-land, Virginia, Carolina, Bermudas, Berbuda, Anguilla, Monserrat, Dominica, St. Vincent, Antego, Mevis or News, St. Christophers, Barbadoes & Jamaica: With an account of their Discovery, Situation and Product: The Religion and Man-the findings, &c. To which is prefixed a relation of the discovery of the New World and of the remarkable Voyages of Sebaffian Cabot G. Frobilher, Captain Davis, C. Weymouth, G. Hull, G. Hudson, Sir T. Cavendith, the E. of Cumberland, Sir W. Rawleigh & other English Worthies. Vyith Pictures of the strange Fruits, Birds, Beafts, Fishes, Insects, Serpents & Monsters found in those parts of the World. pr. 15.

Raft-Indies: With an Account of the Religion, Government, Wars, strange Customs, Beasts, Serports, Monsters, & other Observables in those Countries. A description of the Isle of St. Helena, and the Bay of Souldania; intermixt with pleasant Relations. pr. 1s.

14. He English Hero: Or, Sir Francis Drake Revived. Being a full Account of the dangerous Voyages, admirable Adventures, notable Discoveries & Magnanimous Atchievements of that Valiant and Renowned Commander. As I. His Voyage in 1572, to Numbre de Dios in the West Indies, where they saw a Pile of Bars of Silver near 70 foot long, 10 foot broad and 12 foot high. II. His incompassing the whole World in 1577, which he performed in 2 years and to months, gaining a vaft Quantity of Gold and Silver. III. His Voyage into America in 1585. and taking the Towns of St., Jago, St. Domingo, Carthagena, and Sr. Augustine. IV. His last Voyage into those Countries in 1595. , with his Death and Burial. Revised, Corrected, enlarged, and beautified with Pictures. By R. B. pr. one thilling.

account of the Travels of 2 English Pilgrims fome years since, and what Accidents befel them in their Journey to Jerusalem, Grand Cairo, Alexandria, &c., II. The Travels of 14 Englishmen in 1669. With the Antiquities, Monuments & Memorable Places menuous in Scripture. To which are prefixed, Memorable Places menuous and the Scripture.

rable

To

70

ÇO

T

at

Pe

P

in

A

1 ti

01

.

0

th

I

0

0

I

1

I

E

able Remarks on the Antient and modern State ewish Nation, As 1: A Description of the Hol is Scituation, Fertility, 46. 2. The several contest of the Jews: 3. Probable Conjectures what some of the Ten Tribes carried Captive by the ns, with Divers pertinent Relations pursuant thereto. . The State of the Jews, fince their extermination with the present condition of Palestine. 5. Of the Sep magint or 70 Jewish Interpreters of the Law of Moles Together with a Relation of the great Council of the Jews in Hungary, in 1650: to examine the Scriptures concerning Christ. Written By S. B. an Eye-witness. The Wonderful delution of the Jews by a falle Christ at Smyrna 1666. The final extirpation of the Jews in Persia the same year, and the occasion thereof. The Proceedings between the Jews & O. Cromwell. Prot. in 1655. The Epistle of Agoarus to our Saviour with his Answer; Beautified with Pictures. pr. 1s.

16. Extraordinary Adventures of several Famous Men: With the strange Events, & signal mutations and changes in the Fortunes of divers Illustrious places and persons in all Ages; being an account of multitude of stupendious Revolutions, accidents, and observable matters in divers States and Provinces throughout the World; With Pictures. Pr. 1 s.

Three whereof were Gentiles. 1. Hector Son of Priamus K. of Troy. 2. Alexander the great King of Macedon. 3. Julius Cæsar sirst Emp. of Rome. Three Jews. 4. Joshua C. General of Israel. 5. David K. of Israel. 6. Judas Maccabeus a valiant Jewith Commander against Antiochus. Three Christians. 7. Arthur K of Britain. 8. Charles the Great K. of France, & Emp. of Germany. 9. Godfrey of Bullen K. of Jerusalem Being an account of their Lives, and Victories. With Poems and the Pictures of each Worthy. By R. B. Pr. 15.

firsted in the Lives of nine Famous Women. As 1. Deborah the Prophetess. 2. The valiant Justith. 4. Q. Esther. 4. The virtuous Sulanna. 4. The Chast Lucretia. 6. Boadicia Q. of Britain, in the Reign of Nero, containing an account of the Original Inhabitants of Brittain. The History of Danaus and his fifty Daughters, who murdered their Hulbands in one night Of the valour of Bodicia, under whose conduct the Brittains slew 70 thousand Romans, with other remarkable particulars. 7. Marianne Wife of K. Herod. 8. Glotilda Q of France. 9. Andegona Princess of Spain. Adorned with Poems and Pictures. Pr. 15.

mercy, discovered in above 300 memorable Histories; containing, 1. Dreadful Judgments upon Atheists, Blasphemers, & Perjured Villans, 2. The milerable end of many Magicians, &c. 3. Remarkable Predictions & Presages of approaching Death, & how the event has been answerable. 4. Fearful judgments upon bloody Tyrants, Murderers, &c. 5. Admirable Deliverances from imminent dangers and deplorable distresses at Sea and Land. Lastly, Divine goodness to Penitents, with the Dying thoughts of several samous Men, concerning a snurre state. Pr. 15.

Nparallell'd Varieties, or the matchless Assions and Passions of Minkind displayed, in near 400, notable Instances & Examples, discovering the transcendent Effects, 1. Of Love, Friendship and Gratitude. 2. Of Magnanimity, Courage and Fidelity. 3. Of Chastity, Temperance and Humility: And on the contrary, the Tremendous consequences 4. Of Harred, Revenge and Ingratitude: 5. Of Cowardice, Barbarity & Treachery. 6. Of Unchassity, Intemperance and Ambition. Imbellished with Figures. Pr. 15. 21. The Kingdom of Darkness: Or, The History of Demons, Spectres, Witches, Apparitions, & other supernatural Delusions, & Malicious Impostures of the Devil. Containing near 80 memorable Relations, Fof

btl de

m

D

ma

fal

Ri

ge

te

W

ol

Dİ

ne

2

and fold by Nath.

and Domeflick, antient and modern. Co n Authors of andoubted Verity. With a Pr winting the common Objections of the Sadduces theifts of the Age, who deny the being of Spirits, riches, &cc. With Pictures. Pr. one Infling

2. C Urprizing miracles of Nature and Art, in two D parts; containing, 1. Miracles of Nature or he wonderful figns, and prodigious Afpects and Apcarances in the Heavens, Earth and Seas with an acount of the most Famous Comers, and other Prodigies; from the birth of Christ to this time. 2. The Miracles of Art, describing the most Magnificent Buildings, & other Curious Inventions in all ages, as the feven wonless in the World, & many other excellent Structures nd Rarities throughout the Earth. Beautified with fictures. pr. one shilling.

33. THe General Hiflory of Earthquakes: Or An Account of the most Remarkable Earthquakes, in divers parts of the World, from the Creation to this time, particularly those lately in Naples, Smyrna, Famaica, England and Sicily; With a Description of the famous Burning Mount Atria, and Averal other late frange Accidents. As I. A fraprizing Account of Angels Singing Plalms in the Air, over the ruins of aProtestant Church in France in the year 1686. With the words they Sang in the hearing of many hundreds. II. The Life of a great Person of near an hundred years old, now an Hermit in a Forest in France, with the Derotions, Cloathing, Diet, &c. of him and his Compapions, &c. III. The wonderful Army of Grashoppers near Breslaw in Silesia. September 7. 1693. & in other parts of Germany, which in their March took up fixicen Miles devouring every green thing. IV. Three Miraculous Cures wrought by Faith in Christ. in 1693 As 1. of Mary Maillard the French Girl healed of an extream Lamenels. 2. The Wife of Mr. Savage cured of a Lame Hand. 3. A Shepherd near Hitchia in Hartfortsbire instantly healed of the King's Evil, under which he had languished Twency Years. Pr. 1 s.

Dooks Printed for,

Emorable Accidents and Unheard of Transactions, containing an account of several frange Events: As the Deposing of Tyrants, Lamentah Shipwracks, Dismal Missortunes, Stratagems of War, Perilons Adventures, Happy Deliverances, with other remarkable Occurrences, and select Historical passages, which have happened in several Countries in this last Age. Printed at Brussels in 1691. and Dedicated to K. William 3, Oc. Published in English by R. B. pr. 15.

lours; being a Relation of the horrid Perfecution of the Pope & Church of Rome, for many hundred years paff, in Piedmont, Bohemia, Germany, Poland, Lithuania, France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Scotland, Ireland and England; with an abstract of the cruelties exercised upon the Protestants in France & Savoy in 1686, & 1687, and an account of God's Judgments upon Persecutors. Price one smilling.

Miscellanies.

lect Emblems, Divine and Moral, curiously Ingraven on Copper Plates, with 50 delightful Poems and Lots, for the lively Illustration of each Emblem, whereby instruction may be promoted by pleasant Recreation; to which is prefixed, APoem, intituled, Majesty in Misery, or an Imploration of the K. of Kings, written by K. Charles I. in Carifbrook Castle in the Isle of Wight, 1648. with a curious Emblem. Collected by R. B. Price 2 s. 6d.

27. E Xcellent Contemplations, Divine and Moral written by A. L. Capel, with some account of his Life, his Letters to his Lady, and his last Speech. Also the Speeches of D. Hamilton, and the Earl of Holland, who suffered with him: Price one shilling.

a8. V Inter Evenings Enterraintments, in two parts, Containing, r. Ten Pleafant Relations of many Notable Accidents, 2. Fifty mous Addies is and Morals upon each. Enlivened with above Pictures, for illustrating every Story and Rindle cellently accommodated for chearful Society and versation. Price one shilling.

10

Sops Fables in Profe and Verfe, the 2d Part Collected from Antient and ModernAuthors th Pictures and proper Morals to every Fable veral applicable to these Times, Pr. 1 s. By R. B.

Divinity.

y.

ey

ns. n,

2-1.

5, 16

al

of 1-

0

THE Divine Banquet, or Sacramental De-votions, confishing of Morning and Eveng Prayers, Concemplations and Hymns for every day the Week, in order to a more solenta Preparation or the worthy Receiving of the Holy Communion, epresenting the several steps and degrees of the forws and fufferings of our bleffed sa tion, till he gav p the Ghoft, As I. his Agony in the Garden. 2. His eing betrayed by Judas. 3. His being falfly acculed, nitten, buffered, and spit upon before Cajaphas the igh Priest. 4. His condemnation scourging, crowning ith Thorns, and being delivered to be Gracified by obrius Pilate. 5. His bearing the Cross. 6. His Crucixion. 7. Our Saviours Institution of the Bleffed Sa-rament, Also brief Resolutions to these Objectias alledged for the omission of this Important duty. Vith eight curious Sculptures proper to the several arts, and Graces. Imprimatur Z. Illiam, R. P. D. len. Episc. Lond. a Sacris. Pr. 1 shilling.

r. A Guide to Eternal Glory: Or, brief Directions to all Christians how to attain Everlasting Salvaon: To which are added several other small Tracks. s 1. Saving Faith discovered in three Heavenhy Contrences between our bleffed Saviour, and 1. Publican A Pharisee. 3. A doubting Christian. 11. The hreefold state of a Christian: 1. By Nature. 2. y Grace. 3. In Glory. III. The Scriptures Con-

of quettion and answer, wherein there is an of the way to Salvation, and Spiritual this compared with Spiritual. 4. The Character of at Christian, 5. A Brief Directory for the great, a collary, and advantagious Duty of self Examination whereby a serious Christian may every day examination and a Beggar. 7. Beams of the Spirit, or Condial Meditations, enlivening, enlightning and glading the Soul. 8. The Scraphick Souls Triumph is the Love of God; with short remembrances and pion thoughts. 9. History improved, or Christian Applications of remarkante passages in History. 10. Holy Brethings in several Divine Poems, upon divers Subjects and Scriptures. pr. 15.

arkable Scripture Histories, turned into English Verse. With Forty Pictures proper to each story; to tydelightful for the virtuous imploying the vacant hou of young Persons, and preventing vicious divertise ments. With Scripture Hymps on divers accasions. pr. 8

Address to all young Persons to remember the Creator in the days of their Youth. Togeth with Remarks upon the Lives of several excelle young Persons of both sexes as well Ancient as Midern, who have been famous for Virtue and Piety their Generations. With twelve curious Pictures, I lustrating the several Histories. Price 1 s. 6 d.

34. The Vanity of the Life of Man represented the Seven several Stages thereof; With Pi tures and Poems exposing the Follies of every As Price Eight pence.

Praise for the Spirit of Heaviness. A Poe Wherein are discovered the grand Gauses of the Churches trouble and misery under the late discovered.

pipensitions. With a complete History of the Lance irion for those Renowned Worther that fell in Engand by Popish Rage & Cruelry, from the year 1680, numbly dedicated to their Majesties. By B. Keach.

A Ntichrift Stormed, or the Church of Rome proved to be Mystery Babylon the Great Whore, Rev. 17. by many & undeniable Arguments, inswering all the objections of the Papills, and all others. Together with the Judgment of many Antient and Modern Divines, & most Eminent Writers concerning the rife and final Ruin of the Beast & Rabylon, proving it will be in this proteon Age, with an account of many strange Predictions relating to these present times. By B. Keach Prise one shilling.

Contemplations & principle in Prayers, Contemplations & principal containing Devorious for Morning, Noon, & Night of every day in the week; with Prayers before and the Holy Communion: And likewise for Personal all conditions, and upon all occasions: With Communion thanks in the Holy Communion and upon all occasions: With Communion thanks in the Holy Communion and Upon all occasions: With Communion thanks in the Holy Communion and Upon all occasions: With Communion thanks in the Holy Communion and Upon all occasions: With Communion thanks in the Holy Communion and Upon all occasions to the Holy Commu bound Six pence.

io io re

dif

R

E

OU

rife

8.

Du

na

he

114

M

ty

,

d

P

A

nt

OC

ifi

Ses of Scripture, wherein Believers are allifted in preparing their hearts, & exciting their affections. Graces, when they draw nigh to God, in that most awful and solemn Ordinance of the Lord's Supper-By Jo Flavel late Minister of Christ in Devon. Price one shilling.

39, JACOB Wreftling with GOD, and prevailing; Or, a Treatife concerning the Necessity and Esticatory of Faith in Prayer: Wherein divers weighty Questions and Cases of Conscience about praying in Faith, are stated and resolved: For the satisfying of scrupulous Consciences; Conviction of formal Hypocrites, awaking of all Saints, both weak and strong, to this duty of prayer. pr. one shilling.

ele Darkiels Printe of Darkne Courte matter of our Juffification of the n Righteouluels no Flesh can or sha he fight of God. II. Tha of God is the only matter of our Jul me & Season wherein God dot th by Tho. Taylor, formerly Mi ation in St. Edmund's Bury, nov fourteen pence. Earth or Good News for Re pness: Being an Account of the nces & Evidences of many Emit eral Declarations made by then m. Diplaying the exceeding Ri e and Love of God in Support nt Temptations, & at length filling Confolations. Approved of as ve foreing of poor Doubting Believers r of the Gospel Price One Shilling all Printed for Nath. Crouch at the Bell in the Poultrey, near Cheapside.

FINIS.

the same of the sa